

APPROVED DESCRIPTION OF ARCHBISHOP EAMES' POSITIONS

- RECENT IRISH
PRESS LEAKING/BRIEFING
- Eames considered that Albert Reynolds had gone further than any previous Taoiseach to recognise the traditions in the North.
  - Eames stood by the amendments which he himself had previously proposed to the Joint Declaration.
  - Eames continued to be concerned that - although the Irish Convention would lie within the Irish Government's jurisdiction - it could not be sold in the North.