Introduction

0.1 Editor's Introduction

The Constitution of Arizona (1910) was written from October to December of 1910. Following the Arizona-New Mexico Enabling Act of 1910, 52 delegates from twelve counties met in Phoenix to draft the state's foundational text.

Rather than starting with single, coherent set of propositions (such as the Virginia Plan in the 1787 Federal Constitutional Convention), the Arizona Convention approached constitution-writing with a more open proposition format. Individual delegates presented propositions on specific subjects, which were numbered and referred to standing committees established to consider the propositions relevant to their subject of expertise. These committees prepared reports on the propositions in which they recommended indefinite postponement, adoption, amendment, or a substitute proposition on the same subject. These reports were then referred to the Convention to be taken up in the Committee of the Whole. The Committee of the Whole considered the standing committee reports and drafted its own reports to either adopt the recommendation of the standing committee report or to offer its own recommendation. The Convention then voted to adopt or reject the Committee of the Whole recommendation. If the proposition was not indefinitely postponed at this stage, it was referred to the Committee on Style to be amended and/or engrossed. If the Convention approved these changes, the proposition returned to the Committee on Style for incorporation into the draft Constitution.

To construct the Quill timeline, the editors consulted a number of primary sources, including the Records of the Constitutional Convention, the Minutes of the Arizona Constitutional Convention, and the Arizona Republican. A full list of source materials can be found on the "Full Record" view. Where relevant, multiple sources have been used to corroborate the events in a timeline. Future iterations of this project could incorporate the accounts of the proceedings published in other contemporary newspapers as well.

From these sources, the editors have reconstructed a robust view of the daily proceedings of the Convention and the Committee of the Whole. As is common of state constitutional conventions, the standing and select committee records do not survive. In many cases, the only evidence of a committee's proceedings is the text of its final report as it was entered onto the journal of the Convention. In these instances, the committee sessions have been recreated based on reports and debates that were delivered in the Convention. In order to avoid implying that sittings occurred on days where there is no evidence to suggest that was the case, the standing committee sessions have been created to align with the days on which they reported to the Convention.

Much to the particular disappointment of modern scholars on the Arizona Constitution, the records of the Committee on Style are missing. Based on the debate in the Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention, it is clear that the committee made a number of substantive changes to several propositions after their final reading. However, the substance of these changes does not survive.

The lack of reports as well as intermediary copies of propositions and the draft Constitution necessitated some difficult editorial choices. For example, the editors chose not to represent the engrossment of propositions. Rather, the text is shown as engrossed as the articles of the draft Constitution are adopted. These editorial decisions are indicated by editors' notes within the timeline.

To create the draft of the Constitution, the editors compared the text of the agreed propositions with the text of the version of the Constitution that was signed by the delegates and the amendments described in the Records and the Minutes. The amendments agreed by the Convention were subtracted from the text of the final version and supplemented with the texts of the propositions as modelled in Quill in order to arrive at an iteration of a draft. Upon close reading of the Records, it is clear that the individual articles of the draft came up for consideration as they returned from the printer. The editors have attempted to re-create the order and groupings in which the articles were presented to the Convention by proposing the Constitution in a four-part draft.

An interesting finding that resulted from this exercise is that the Committee on Style did not include the entire texts of the agreed propositions in the draft. Certain provisions, such as Section 29 of Substitute Proposition Number 94 on the right of workers to organize, were excluded from the draft by the committee. This proposition was eventually incorporated into the Constitution as Article II.

The Arizona Constitutional Convention was uniquely fragmentary in its proposition format and utilized an exceptionally complicated committee approach. Over 150 propositions and pieces of proposed constitutional text filtered through the various committees of the Convention. This procedure is captured in a document event's "Related Events" tab. A more general overview of documents' journeys throughout the Convention is provided by the "Calendar View". LD Senior Documentary Editor Quill Project Pembroke College, Oxford. February 2023.

0.2 How to use this work

This text is a companion to the digital editions published by the Quill Project (www.quillproject.net). This PDF contains the various source materials used to construct the digital editions, laid out by committee and committee session.

Throughout the work, quick-jump codes are included (e.g. 'e948421'). When typed into the web interface for the project, these provide a quick way to locate the relevant resource.

The online interface provides visualizations of the texts under discussion, search tools to find the origin of particular phrases, and tools to evaluate the relative contribution of particular individuals, amongst other resources.

[e933314] Reverend Crutchfield: Oh, Lord! We come before Thee, the members of this convention, in the attitude of prayer, and we ask Thy blessings upon each and every member of this convention. Inspire their minds with the love of their state and the love of Holy Spirit. Be mindful of each member of this convention that he may have peace and joy in his great labors, and bless each with wisdom and prudence that he may have only the desire to serve his people in this convention. We pray the blessings upon the President that he may be guided by the Holy Spirit and be granted wisdom as the leading officer of the convention. We pray Thee, Oh Lord, that this body of men, the representatives of the people of Arizona, may frame such a constitution as will meet the approval of every citizen and that it may grant unto Arizona statehood, and place it among the grand galaxy of states in these United States, and that Arizona may be the brightest star in the Union. Grant us peace and love of country and love of mankind in our hearts and guide us through this day of work. These blessings we would ask of Thee, in the name of Jesus Christ, Thy Son, Amen.

[e933315] Mr. President: Will the secretary read the minutes?

[e933316] Secretary: Because of the lack of typewriters, and the building having closed at any early hour the stenographer was unable to transcribe her notes, but I have a part of them which I will read if it is your wish.

[e933317] Mr. President: We will omit the reading of the minutes for the present, as the secretary has not been able to get them transcribed.

[e933318] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I move that we now adjourn for thirty minutes, or at the call of the gavel.

[e933329] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, the committee on Standing Committees is ready to submit its report [...] I will now read the report of the committee. The committee on standing committees reports as follows:

[e933331] Mr. Orme: Mr. President, I rise to a point of order, the gentleman from Yavapai has no right to report as he is not the chairman of the committee.

[e933332] Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President, the gentleman from Yavapai is all right. I was not present at the opening of this convention. I yield to Mr. Cunniff.

[e933333] Mr. Cunniff: Where efficiency has been the first consideration we have assigned the smaller memberships and where representation is paramount we have assigned a larger membership on committees, and in doing so we have followed the work of other conventions.

[e933334] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move that this report be accepted.

[e933335] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I do not care to accept this report without further consideration. I think that the report should be carefully studied by every member before it is accepted, and I move that the committee have 100 copies of the report printed and one copy placed on each desk for the benefit of the members.

[...]

Mr. Crutchfield: [...] I second the motion of the Gentleman from Graham.

[e933336] Mr. President: Before the motion to accept the report is seconded I wish to suggest that this convention give all such matters due consideration and that every member have a full and complete knowledge and understanding of the reports of the various committees.

[e933337] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, there was no second made to the motion that 100 copies of the original report be printed and one placed upon each desk.

Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President, I am sure that every member of the convention closely scrutinized the report. It is the wish of this committee that the convention have a perfect knowledge of the work of the committee and we will have the copies printed. I second the motion of the Gentleman from Graham.

[e933338] The motion prevailed.

[e933343] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, the committee on rules has a partial report to make, the reason we have not a complete report at this time is because we have failed to secure a full attendance of the members of the committee. I would add that it is the duty of every member of the committee to be present and if the members do not attend their names should be handed to the president of this Convention. Our partial report is as follows:

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 11-12)

[e933344] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I move that the report be adopted.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I second that motion.

[e933351] The motion prevailed.

[e933346] Mr. President: I have a suggestion to make, to the effect that the resolution of the convention, with regard to the use of the convention chamber for members and attaches only, be waived in order to allow the cartoonists to have space in the convention chamber, as I am informed that the cartoonists cannot make cartoons of the members of the convention from the back view, therefore, I suggest that they may be granted space in the convention chamber.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, do you not think it would be better if the cartoonists would make cartoons of some of the members from a back view? (laughter)

Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President, I move that the cartoonists be given a corner in the convention chamber.

Mr. Webb: I second the motion of the gentleman from Maricopa.

[e933347] The motion prevailed.

[e933349] Mr. President: Is the Committee on Attaches ready to report?

[e933350] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, that committee is now in session, but will not be ready to report for some time I believe.

[e933352] Recess was taken to await the action of the committee in session.

[e933369] Mr. President: [...] Please arise and we will have the invocation pronounced by Reverend Seaborn Crutchfield.

[e933371] Secretary reads the minutes.

[e933372] Mr. Winsor: I should like to know in the reading of this record if it is the verbatim report of the minutes.

Mr. President: The secretary is reading the journal which is made up of the minutes.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, the secretary reads the amendment to the resolution to read "thereof," and it should read "thereto."

Mr. President: I believe he read it thereto.

Secretary: If I read it "thereof," it was my mistake in reading it as the word of the stenographer is "thereto."

[e933373] Mr. Winsor: The motion to create a Committee on Finance was made by Mr. Cunniff of Yavapai and not by Mr. Winsor. I move that the minutes be corrected to read Cunniff and not Winsor.

Mr. Webb: I second the motion.

[e933374] The motion prevailed.

[e933375] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I would suggest that in behalf of the secretary and stenographer that they are not yet familiar with the names and faces of the members of this convention and necessarily there will be mistakes.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 13-14)

[e933376] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, the minutes read that the committee was allowed to stand as approved by the president. It seems to me that this is a superfluous motion, since the president was to select the committee. I move that the minutes be corrected, or that the clause be stricken out.

Mr. Webb: I second the motion.

[e933377] The motion prevailed.

[e933378] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, are there any other alternations or corrections in the minutes as read? If not, the minutes will stand approved as read. Gentlemen of the convention, the secretary will continue the reading of the minutes of the journal of Tuesday.

Mr Winsor: Mr. President, I believe that the wording should be minutes of the convention rather than journal, as the stenographer keeps the verbatim record, which is the journal and the minutes will not be made a part of the journal record. I move that the word minutes be used in place of journal in proceedings of the convention for daily acceptance. The journal, I understand, when completed, will make a document known as the original document.

Mr. Webb: I second that motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 14-15)

[e933379] Mr. Ellinwood: There may be several documents when the verbatim report is completed, but the minutes are the proceedings to be read.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, in looking up the reports of other conventions, I find that the minutes are a different record than that of the journal.

Mr. Webb: The rules of the convention may be more clearly understood after a report of the Committee on Rules, but I have here the records of the conventions of Utah and Wyoming, both of which are verbatim and known as the journal, and for this reason, I take it that this convention desires a full and complete verbatim journal, which should be given to the public every morning and read for adoption to this convention.

Mr. Parsons: Mr. President, I would like information on this matter. If a verbatim report is to be read every day, we had better petition for a greater length of time, as it will require no little time to read these records for the adoption. For this reason I think that...

[e933380] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I arise to a point of order. The gentleman from Cochise is not speaking to the question. The question before the house is that the minutes are not the journal record, and that a verbatim report of the proceedings will be found upon the desks every morning, but the minutes as are now being read shall not go by the name of journal report.

[e933381] [Editor's Note: Webb's point of order was not mentioned again.]

(Editorial)

[e933382] Mr. Winsor: I move that the word minutes be used in place of journal.

Mr. Webb: I second that motion.

The motion prevailed.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 14-15)

[e933383] Mr. President: The secretary will read the minutes.

[e933384] Mr. Winsor: I move that we dispense with the reading of the report of the Committee on Committees as we have it before us.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I second the motion.

[e933385] The motion prevailed.

[e933386] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, are there any other alterations, if not, the minutes will stand approved.

Secretary: (reading) Resolution introduced by Mr. Webb of Graham.

[e933396] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I would suggest to the convention that the Chief Clerk be known as the Secretary and the Assistant Chief Clerk as the Assistant Secretary.

[e933397] [Editor's Note: Although there is no record of a formal vote on Cunniff's amendment, the President subsequently refers to the Chief Clerk and Assistant Chief Clerk as the Secretary and Assistant Secretary, respectively, suggesting that Cunniff's amendment was adopted.]

(Editorial)

[e933398] Mr. President: Will the Secretary and Assistant Secretary arise and be sworn in[?]

[Editor's Note: The Minutes notes this moment as occurring later in the session, after the Report on Attaches is adopted.]

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 15-16)

[e933399] "I hereby solemnly swear to support the Constitution of the United States, and faithfully to perform the duties of Secretary and Assistant Secretary of the Constitutional Convention of Arizona."

A.W. Cole and Frank DeSouza: I do.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 15-16)

[e933400] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I have been waiting for the chairman of the Committee on Attaches to move the adoption of the report of the committee, but he seems to be absent.

[e933401] Mr Keegan: Mr. President, I move that the report of the Committee on Attaches be adopted.

Mr. Webb: I second that motion.

Mr. President: It has been moved and seconded that the report of the Committee on Attaches be adopted.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 16)

[e933402] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, would the secretary please read the report?

Mr. President: The secretary will please read the report.

[e933403] Mr. Cobb: I request that the initials of Mr. Murphy be changed to J. B.

[Editor's Note: It is unclear from the Record what these initials were prior to the amendment.]

[e933404] [Editor's Note: The editors assume the correction was made, as no objections were raised.]

(Editorial)

[e933405] Mr. Winsor: I move that the words "five dollars" be changed to "two dollars" with reference to the pay allowed the chaplain.

[e933406] Mr. Webb: I arise to a point of order. There is a motion pending.

[e933407] [Editor's Note: Though there is no explicit record of the outcome of Webb's point of order, Winsor moved his motion to reduce the salary of the chaplain again, implying that the point of order was carried.]

(Editorial)

[e933408] Mr. Winsor: I move that the secretary strike out the words "five dollars" and insert the words "two dollars" as per my first motion.

Mr. Morgan: I second that motion.

Mr. President: It has been moved and seconded that the words "five dollars" per diem be stricken out and the words "two dollars" inserted with regard to the pay of the chaplain.

[e933409] Mr. Baker: Mr. President, the labourer is worthy of his hire. The best service to the convention comes through the chaplain who pronounces the invocation upon this convention. Why should we desire to place a lower estimate on his valuable services?

Mr. Webb: I do not see why any attache should not have full pay for his or her services.

[e933410] The motion was lost.

[e933411] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I am aware that it is very unpopular to try to reduce the salary of any attache, but in this case I feel that it is a wise move, as the gentleman is only employed for the short while in which he gives his invocation, and is free for the rest of the day. It is not like the clerk or the stenographer who works all day and therefore I feel that the services of such clerks and stenographers should not be on the same scale as the workman who is employed for only a few hours. For this reason I suggest the reduction of the salary of the chaplain, that the expenses of the convention may be lessened in every way possible.

Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I do not believe in cutting down the expenses of this convention at the expense of Heaven.

[e933412] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, are we to have the report of the Committee on Committees?

Mr. Cunniff: The matter of the committee on standing committees is before the convention. I move that this report be adopted.

Mr. Webb: I second the motion.

[Editor's Note: The Minutes name Weinberger as the seconder. Furthermore, the Minutes notes this motion as being moved later in the session, after the Report on Attaches is adopted and the attaches sworn in.]

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 16-17)

[e933413] The motion prevailed.

[e933414] Mr. Winsor: I arise to a point of order. The question before the convention is to strike out the amendment for the adoption of the report. My motion was not acted upon.

[e933415] Mr. President: The motion was put to the convention but lost.

[e933416] Mr. Webb: I move to indefinitely postpone the motion.

[e933417] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, no action was taken upon my motion to amend the report.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, the amendment was lost and I move that the question be indefinitely postponed. I was not familiar with the original question. I will acknowledge the motion was not in order for the reason that it could not be applied.

[e933418] Mr. Winsor: Roll call.

The roll was called showing 21 "ayes" and 30 "nays."

Mr. President: The vote stands 21 "ayes" and 30 "nays," on the amendment to change the words "five dollars" to "two dollars." The motion has been lost.

[e933419] Mr. President: [...] Gentlemen, those in favor of adopting the report as read answer aye, those opposed nay. The ayes have it.

[e933420] Mr. President: [...] For the information of the convention, I would like to ask the chairman of the committee on rules what arrangements have been made to get more stenographers.

[e933421] Mr. Winsor: It seems necessary to await the report of the Committee on Attaches.

[e933422] Mr. President: I wish to say that it will be necessary to have other stenographers before the work of the convention can proceed. If there are no objections a recess will be taken.

[e933423] Mr. President: [...] If there are no objections a recess will be taken.

[e933424] Mr. Baker: Mr. President, before the recess is taken I move that the convention get up a form of congratulations or any form suggested by the President and send to the constitutional convention of New Mexico, which has been in session two weeks.

Mr. Cunniff: What is the question, please?

Mr. President: Mr. Baker will please state the question.

Mr. Baker: Since the convention of New Mexico is in session and we are fully organized, I move that we get up a form of congratulations and send it to the convention of New Mexico.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 17-18)

[e933425] Mr. President: Since the convention of New Mexico has been in session for two weeks and has not sent us any congratulations, why is it necessary that we honor them?

Mr. Baker: Of course, I have little native pride, but as they are not aware that we are fully organized, they would not know where to send congratulations; therefore I move that congratulations be dispatched from the members of the constitutional convention of Arizona to the constitutional convention of New Mexico.

Mr. Coker: Mr. President, I second that motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 17-18)

[e933426] The motion prevailed.

[e933427] Mr. President: It is necessary that the attaches be sworn before their names can go upon the payroll or work assigned them. If they will come forward, I will administer the oath.

[e933428] Attaches present with uplifted hands.

Mr. President: "I hereby solemnly swear to support the Constitution of the United States and faithfully to perform the duties of attaches in the Constitutional Convention of Arizona."

Attaches: I do.

[e933435] Mr. Jones of Yavapai, submitted the Certificate of the Members of this Convention as follows:

[Editor's Note: Because A.M. Jones was the chairman of the Committee on Credentials and this report pertains to membership of the Convention, the editors have inferred that the certificate originated in the Committee on Credentials.]

(The Minutes of the Arizona Constitutional Convention, Pages 17-19)

[e933430] Mr. Jones moved, seconded by Mr. Jacome, adoption of Report; carried.

[e933436] Mr. Jones moved, seconded by Mr. Jacome, adoption of Report; carried.

[e933437] Mr. President: If there is no further business before the convention we will stand adjourned until 2 p.m.

1.5 Wednesday, 12 October 1910, at 14:00 (s15780)

[e933447] Mr. President: The convention will come to order. Quorum present.

[e933448] Mr. President: The convention will come to order. Quorum present.

[e933449] Mr. President: [...] Gentlemen of the convention, the secretary of the territory has allowed \ $170.00 for stamps. I do not know whether this is sufficient, but I will state that I have signed the requisition. If this is not quite enough we must put in the actual amount required in the requisition. As I stated I have signed the requisition and if this is satisfactory it will stand as it is now. I would also state for the information of the convention that I am not yet ready to announce the selection of standing committees. I want more time. If the gentlemen of the convention have anything to do I call for the same.

[e933450] Mr. President: [...] Gentlemen of the convention, the secretary of the territory has allowed \ $170.00 for stamps. I do not know whether this is sufficient, but I will state that I have signed the requisition. If this is not quite enough we must put in the actual amount required in the requisition. I would also state for the information of the convention that I am not yet ready to announce the selection of standing committees. I want more time. If the gentlemen of the convention have anything to do I call for the same.

[e933451] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, we have discovered a few mistakes of the Committee on Attaches and I desire to bring this before the convention. The committee has overlooked the name of Miss M. Alice Berry in assigning clerkships, and I am sure that it was unintentional on the part of the committee members. As you remember, Miss M. Alice Berry was called from the gallery on Monday to act as temporary stenographer and this work she has been doing since that time and will continue until the committee secures expert and official stenographers, but it is the wish of the members of this convention that she be retained in the convention and that she be included in the list of clerks and stenographers. I now move that Miss N. Alice Berry be granted a permanent position in the convention as a stenographer, and to act as temporary stenographer until some one is secured to take her place, and that she be granted remuneration from the time of her services on Monday, October 11, 1910, and that as a clerk she is granted a salary of five dollars per day.

Mr. Moeur: I second that motion.

[e933452] The motion prevailed.

[e933454] Mr. Cunniff: The committee on standing rules has completed its work.

Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President, since reporting, it has been suggested by other members of the committee that there might be other matters come up that would need to be acted upon by this committee, but I am certain that the members of the committee would be willing to be discharged.

Mr. Cunniff: I would like an understanding of the matter.

Mr. Winsor: The motion under which the Committee on Committees was selected seems to me to provide that it be automatically dismissed, and that if any other matters come up there should be a special committee appointed for that particular purpose.

Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President, I think that it is understood that this committee should be automatically discharged.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 19)

[e933455] Mr. Cunniff: I move that the committee on standing committees be discharged.

Mr. Coker: Mr. President, I second the motion.

[e933456] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I rise to a point of order. That the committee was automatically discharged when the report was adopted.

[e933457] Mr. President: The point of order is sustained.

[e933458] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I now offer the following resolution:

[e933459] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, there are to be twenty-four standing committees; the report so states.

[e933460] Mr. Webb: (reading) I find twenty-one committees.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, the gentleman has omitted the first three names.

[e933461] Mr. Webb: This is my mistake, the three other committees I did not see. Resolved that the convention shall have twenty-four committees. The committees to be those named in the report of the Committee on Committees.

[e933462] Mr. Webb: [...] Mr. President, I move that this resolution be adopted.

Mr. Winsor: I second that motion.

[e933463] Mr. President: Gentlemen you have heard the motion, are you ready for the question?

Mr. Cunniff: Roll call.

Mr. President: The secretary will call the roll.

[e933464] On roll call the motion prevailed.

[e933466] Mr. Webb: I have the following resolution to offer:

[e933467] Mr. Webb: [...] I move that the resolution be adopted.

Mr. Feeney: I second that motion.

[e933469] Mr. Goldwater: Mr. President, I would like to have the secretary read that report again, as to the salary of the attaches.

Mr. President: Secretary will please read the report.

Secretary read the report.

[e933470] Mr. Goldwater: Mr. President, the pages will receive five dollars per day, I move that I resign from this convention as a member serving for four dollars per day, and be hired as a page. (laughter)

[e933471] Mr. President: The gentleman's motion is out of order.

[e933473] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I move that the report be amended to read three dollars in place of five dollars for pages.

[e933474] Mr. Moeur: Mr. President, I object to cutting the salary of any employee of this convention. Their services are worthy of the salary allowed them.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, those pages are already employed; their services now engaged, and I object to cutting their salaries.

Mr. Cunniff: Roll call.

Mr. President: The secretary will call the roll.

Mr. Baker: (upon his name being called,) No. Mr. President, please explain what the vote is about.

Mr. President: Those who vote "nay," vote against the motion to amend the report as to the salary of the pages; those who vote "aye," vote in favor of the motion.

[e933475] On roll call the motion was lost.

[e933476] Resolution adopted.

[e933477] Mr. Winsor: I move that the convention adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mr. Webb: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 20)

[e933478] The motion prevailed.

Convention adjourned until 10 a.m., October 13, 1910.

We thank Thee that they have been permitted to meet again in health and in peace and we ask Thee to pronounce a blessing upon their heads this day. Bless the leading officer with wisdom and understanding of his duties that he may guide the work in a prudent and judicious manner. And now, Oh Lord, there are likely to be contentions and disagreeances [sic] arise among the members will Thou temper the minds of these men to wisdom and grant that they may be guided in all their words and acts both in convention matters and in their acts to each other. Let love and peace abound in all hearts and charity abide there too. Forgive us of our sins and remember us in all the ways of life and save us in Thy Kingdom is the supplication of all our hearts today, and these blessings we ask of Thee in the name of Thine only Begotten Son, Amen.

I have tried to secure the best members for each committee, and I trust this selection will meet with your approval. The secretary will read the following assignments:

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 22-23)

[e933496] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move that 100 copies of the Standing Committee Assignments be printed.

[e933504] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, the committee on rules and procedure has a report to make.

Mr. President: We will hear that report.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, your Committee on Rules, and order of business, to which was referred the matter of the employment of official stenographers for the constitutional convention, with authority to contract for such work, begs leave to report as follows

[e933505] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, we have been asked to state as near as can be stated, the total cost of the work. That is impossible, owing to the fact that we do not know how long the convention will continue, but it is estimated at about \ $3,500.00 or \ $4,000.00. This is about the cost of other convention reporting, figuring on the Utah basis, which, of course, was a longer session than any other convention with which I have compared the cost of reporting. Mr. Tiffany's bid was \ $12,000 and Mr. O'Neal's was almost the same. For this reason I believe that Mr. Larrabee's offer is the very best we can do. Mr. Larrabee has the reputation of being the most proficient reporter in the southwest and he will do this work at one-half the cost of either of the others.

Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I know Mr. Larrabee quite well, and I have had work done by him, and I can state that he is a proficient reporter.

[e933506] Mr. Winsor: I again move that this report be adopted and that Mr. Larrabee is employed as stenographer for this convention.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I second the motion of Mr. Winsor.

[e933630] Reverend Crutchfield: Our Great and merciful heavenly Father, we again present ourselves before Thee in Constitutional Convention assembled, and before taking up the duties of the convention would ask of Thee a blessing. Oh Lord hear our petition this day. We ask Thee for wisdom and prudence in all works and measures that may come before the convention this day. Help us to be good men and great men, and bless us with that love and charity for each other that we may say and do good things to each other, and cause that no strife or contentions may arise among these men to hinder them in the great work which is to [be] perform[ed.] Bless the absent families of these men and comfort and cheer their hearts and grant them your protection.

Now, Oh Lord we dedicate ourselves unto Thee for we know that Thou art all merciful and Thou are all love.

Forgive us our sins and save us in Thy kingdom is our supplication and our prayer, all blessings we ask Thee in the name of the Redeemer, ever so Amen.

[e933649] The sergeant at arms announced that Mr. Tovrea, Mr. Connelly and Mr. Short had taken their seats.

[e933652] Mr. President: Gentleman of the convention, are there any committee reports?

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 25)

[e933655] Mr. Winsor: The Committee on Rules and Procedure has its report ready to present.

Mr. Crutchfield: The Committee on Preamble and Declaration of rights will be ready to report a preamble to the constitution of the State of Arizona tomorrow.

[e933658] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I have a resolution to offer:

”Resolved that propositions for incorporation in the Constitution of Arizona may be introduced under the appropriate order of business on, and after Saturday October 15, 1910.” I move that the resolution be adopted by the convention.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I second the motion.

[e933666] Mr. Winsor: [...] I move that the resolution be adopted by the convention.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I second the motion.

[e933669] Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I would like to hear the resolution read again.

Mr. President: The secretary will please re-read the resolution.
Resolution re-read.

[e933671] Resolution adopted.

[e933701] Mr. Winsor: The Committee on Rules and Procedure is ready to report.

[e933703] Mr. President: I suggest that the chairman of the committee read the report.

[e933707] Mr. Winsor: Inasmuch as there may be several questions raised during the reading of the report and more or less discussion on those questions, it was thought best that the chairman read the report.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I think it would be more satisfactory to the convention if copies of this report were printed and placed on the desks for study by the members, as the reading will consume much time and it is absolutely necessary that the convention understand these rules before we can adopt them.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, if there are to be printed copies of the report supplied the members of the convention it seems to me useless to have the report read.

[e933710] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move that copies of the rules be printed.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I second that motion.

[Editor's Note: The Minutes, page 25, record that this motion was seconded by Ellinwood]

Mr. Cunniff: As to the element of time, we have already wasted sufficient time for the reading of the report, but I feel that it is a matter that should be given much study and I would feel that it was wisdom and prudence on the part of the convention to defer the matter until the rules have been submitted to the members in print and given due deliberation, therefore, I move that printed copies of the rules be furnished the members of the convention for their consideration.

Mr. Webb: I second the motion of the gentleman from Yavapai.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 25-26)

[e933727] Mr. President: Gentlemen, you have heard the motion. Those in favor please rise. [37 rise for and 15 against.] The motion was carried. I would like to ask for the information of the chair, can we have the rules printed for tomorrow?

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): Mr. President, I am on the printing committee, and will state that these rules can be ready for tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

[e933735] The sergeant at arms announced by Mr. Morgan had taken his seat.

[e933740] Mr. Standage: Mr. President, is there any reason why these rules cannot be read this morning? There are a number of members of the convention, as well as myself, who would like to hear the rules read. I move that they be read.

Mr. Osborn: Mr. President, I second the motion of Mr. Standage.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 26)

[e933767] The motion prevailed.

[e933822] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I will read for a while and then call on some other member.

"Mr. President:

Rule 6. The unfinished business in which the Convention was engaged at the time of the last adjournment or recess, shall have preference in orders of the day, and shall continue to be among the orders of the day for each succeeding day until disposed of in any other manner by a majority vote.

Rule 7. Communications from the Governor or Secretary of the Territory may be received, read and disposed of at any time except when the President is putting the question or while the ayes and naves are being called.

Rule 13. It shall be the duty of the Secretary to keep the Minutes of each days' proceedings and to provide a typewritten copy of the same for the use of the President. He shall each day prepare a calendar of the orders and business of the day, and a like calendar for the committee of the whole, and shall cause to be placed on the desk of each member, at or before the hour of convening, a typewritten copy of the same. He shall perform such other duties as may be required of him by the Convention or by the President.

Rule 14. It shall be the duty of the Sergeant at Arms to attend the Convention during its sitting, preserve order in the corridor and gallery, execute all processes issued by authority of the Convention and directed to him by the President; give notice of all messages the Convention may require. When requested to call a member of the Convention, he shall do so by name.

Rule 15. It shall be the duty of all employees of the Convention to attend all sittings thereof, and to attend at the Convention Chamber at other hours if required to do so, and to perform such duties as may be assigned them. Rule 17. In all cases the member who shall first arise and address the chair shall speak first, but when two or more members rise at the same time, the President shall name the person to speak.

Rule 18. No member shall interrupt another while speaking, except to call to order or to correct a mistake.

Rule 19. Rule 25. A motion to adjourn and a motion to lay on the table shall be always in order, except when a motion for the previous question is pending at which time neither can be repeated until the motion for the previous question is disposed of, without the unanimous consent of the Convention. And these motions shall be decided without debates.

Rule 26. The President shall put the previous question in the following form: "Shall the main question now be put?" and all amendments or further debate of the main question shall be suspended until the previous question shall be decided; and the previous question shall not be put unless seconded by three members. And a call for the ayes and nays shall be in order after the main question has been ordered to be put. After the adoption of the previous question, the vote shall forthwith be taken upon amendments in the order presented and then upon the main question.

Rule 27. When a motion or question has been once put and a decision rendered by the chair, it shall be in order for any member who voted in the majority, or when the Convention is equally divided, for a member who voted in the negative, to move for a reconsideration thereof, on the same or succeeding day, and such motion shall take precedence over all questions, except a motion to lay on the table, a motion for reconsideration, or a motion to adjourn. A motion for reconsideration being put and lost it shall not be renewed on the same day, but such motion for reconsideration may be renewed on the succeeding day, and not thereafter.

Rule 28. A member may call for a division of a question which shall be divided if it comprehends proportions in substance so distinct that one being taken away, a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the Convention. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible, but a motion to strike out being lost, shall preclude neither amendments nor motion to strike out and insert.

Rule 29. Every member who shall be within the bar of the Convention when question is put, shall give his vote, unless the Convention, for special reasons, shall excuse him, and when the yeas and nays are ordered, no member shall leave his seat until the vote is declared.

Rule 30. A member who is not within the bar of the Convention when a vote is taken upon any question, shall not be allowed to vote on that question, except by consent of the Convention.

Rule 31. The yeas and nays shall be ordered upon the request of any member, but a call of the Convention shall not be made without the consent of eight members.

Rule 32. No new motion or proposition shall be admitted under the color of an amendment, as a substitute for the motion or question under debate.

- (g) Questions pertaining to priority of business.

Rule 35. If any member in speaking or otherwise, shall transgress the Rules of the Convention, the President shall, or any of the Convention may, call him to order, and the member called to order shall take his seat, if required to do so by the President, until a question of order is decided.

Rule 36. The President shall decide all questions of order, subject to an appeal by any member, on which appeal no member shall speak more than once, unless by permission of the Convention, except the member appealing who may speak twice.

Rule 37. Every question of order which shall be decided on appeal shall be entered on the minutes with the division thereon.

Rule 38. If any member be called to order for words spoken in the debate, the member calling him to order shall repeat the words expected to, and they shall be taken down in writing at the Secretary's table, and no member shall be held to answer or be subject to the censure of the Convention for words spoken in debate, if any other member has spoken or other business intervened after words are spoken, and before exception to them be taken.

Rule 48. The same rules shall be observed in Committee of the Whole as in the Convention, so far as the same are applicable, except that the previous question shall not apply, nor the yeas and nays be taken, nor a limit be made as to the number of times a member may speak.

Rule 49. In Committee of the Whole [a] proposition shall be read by the chairman and considered item by item, unless otherwise directed by the committee, leaving the preambles, if any, last to be considered. The body of the propositions shall not be defaced or interlined, but amendments shall be noted by the chairman or secretary upon a separate piece of paper, and so reported to the Convention.

Rule 50. There shall be a special calendar for the Committee of the Whole, on which shall be placed all propositions matters which by order of the Convention or under and other these rules are referred to such committee. Every proposition shall be considered and acted upon in the Committee of the Whole in its order upon the calendar.

Rule 51. A motion for the Committee of the Whole to rise and report progress shall be in order at any stage and shall be decided without debate.

Rule 52. All matters intended to become a part of the Constitution shall be presented by a member of the Convention or one of the standing committees thereof, in the form of a proposition, and shall be in writing and in the following form:

A PROPOSITION

No...

Introduced by Mr. ..., of ...County.

A Proposition relative to ...

It is hereby proposed:

Rule 53. The regular order to be taken by Propositions introduced in the Convention shall be as follows:

(a) Upon introduction a Proposition shall be read first time in full, whereupon the President shall announce, "First Reading of the Proposition."

(b) Unless otherwise ordered the Proposition shall be referred to the Committee on Printing and Clerks. in the absence of a contrary motion, there shall be printed five hundred copies of each Proposition. Within two days, exclusive of the day of reference, the Proposition shall be reported back to the Convention, together with the printed copies thereof.

(c) The proposition shall be read a second time in full, whereupon the President shall announce, "Second reading of the Proposition," and shall refer it to an appropriate standing committee. (g) The Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation having completed its revision shall report the Proposition to the Convention, within two days, exclusive of the day of reference, when the revised proposition shall be read in full and the question shall be on the adoption of the Proposition so revised. [e933751] Mr. President: Gentlemen, is there anything else to come before the convention this morning? I suggest that the chairman of the committee on rules make the corrections in the rules that are necessary so that they can go to the printer immediately.

[e933752] [Editor's Note: The report was sent to the Committee on Printing.]

(Editorial)

[e933866] Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President, I would like to suggest that I would not care to be limited to twenty-four hours for reconsideration of a motion, I think we should not be limited as it may require more time for reconsideration than twenty-four hours.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, the rule here proposed is the broadest I have ever seen written upon the subject. A motion to reconsider is often abused by one who favors measures moving a reconsideration immediately after its passage, then voting against his own motion, thus preventing a future motion for the reconsideration by a member opposed to him. The rule here proposed will prevent sharp practice of this kind as it will permit a second motion to reconsider on the following day, and the objection made by the gentleman from Maricopa will probably be removed when he recalls the fact that any proposition may be amended at any time up to the final passage of the constitution as a whole and in a complete form.

[e933879] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): Mr. President, it seems to me that these rules should be adopted, and that we are making a mistake in not adopting the rules. I move a reconsideration of the motion to lay the rules upon the table until the printed copies are submitted.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 34-35)

Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, it seems to me that it will be a mistake to make a speedy decision in the matter of the adoption of these rules. A clear and thorough understanding should be had by each member on all matters proposed before their adoption.

[e933890] Mr. Winsor: Mr President, I arise to a point of order, the gentleman from Cochise is not speaking to the question.

[e933892] Mr. Webb: Mr President, amendments to the rules must be made before the measures can be adopted, but the motion is that of adoption.

Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, I understand, but I think that we should have a printed copy of the rules before we adopt the rules, in order that amendments may be made before adoption.

Mr. Webb: The gentleman will withdraw his motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 35)

[e933898] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I move that tomorrow be set aside as the day for consideration and adoption of the rules.

Mr. Cobb: I second the motion of Mr. Winsor.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 35)

[e933902] The motion prevailed.

[e933904] Mr. Cassidy: Since Monday is court day in Maricopa County, and there are three or four members of the convention who will wish to be in attendance at court, I would ask that they be excused.

[e933907] Mr. President: If there are no objections those members may be excused.

[e933909] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I understand that there are several members here who have urgent business at home and who could make that trip between now and Monday. If there is nothing to come before the convention between now and Monday, I move that the convention adjourn until Monday morning.

Mr. Cooper: So far we have no report of the convention proceedings and it will take from now until Monday to get this work out. If there is no further business to come before the convention, I would second the motion to adjourn until Monday morning, which will allow ample time for the business now before the convention to be done.

[e933915] Mr. Baker: Mr. President, there is work that we could probably take up tomorrow if we were in session, and I do not see any need of wasting our time outside, therefore, I move that we adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Osborn: I second the motion.

[e933921] Mr. President: I would suggest that the Committee have copies of the report of the Committee on Rules and Procedure on the desks tomorrow morning.

Convention adjourned to 10 a.m., October 15, 1910.

[e934275] [Editor's Note: The Convention considered Rule 53.

In the Minutes, section (i) of Rule 53 mistakenly reads: "The report of the Committee of the Whole on the completed Constitution shall be acted upon by the Convention and the Constitution considered section by section, and no Proposition shall be embodied in the Constitution or become a part thereof without it receives the approval by an aye and nay vote of a majority of the majority of the members elected to the Constitutional Convention." This section has been corrected in the document text by substituting in the correct text from the Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention.

Note also that the Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention have mistakenly omitted the word 'arranged' in section (h).

Note thirdly that the Records and the Minutes disagree on the pluralisation of the word 'amendment' in section (j).]

[e934375] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move that the convention rescind the action, authorizing and empowering the Committee on Rules to contract with the reporters to make a verbatim report of the convention proceedings.

Mr. Wood: I second the motion of Mr. Cunniff.

[e934379] Mr. Baker: Mr President, for information I would like to know why the convention should rescind their action on this question? As for myself I do not object to the matter either one way or another.

Mr. Cunniff: In the first place it might be nice to have a verbatim report, which no one will read, except for political purposes. It is the desire of the delegation from Yavapai County to rescind this action on the matter of reporting the proceedings for the reason that we can see no possible use for the material. It is a useless expense of the money. It also seems that there is an almost complete failure on the part of the committee to secure competent reporters. We would suggest that if there are any of the members who have prepared speeches or flights of eloquence, which they desire preserved in the journals that they have typewritten copies included in the journal and to let this suffice for that part of the report. The other matter will appear in print, or much of it as will be read, as will the constitution itself. For that reason we would be glad to dispense with the verbatim report.

Mr. Wood. I second the motion of Mr. Cunniff

Mr. President: I would like to ask the chairman of the committee on rules what prospect there is of securing competent stenographers, and at what price.

Mr. Winsor: The first offer of Mr. Larrabee was not carried out because he was unable to secure competent help, but we have another bid which amounts to the same as the first cost, that is \ $3500. Every constitutional convention has a verbatim report of its proceedings and it seems to me that we would be preserving much valuable matter of historical interest. As for the political uses to which it might be put it would be to the advantage of every member to have a perfect record of these proceedings.

Mr. Mouer: Most of the members have come here pledged and there should be nothing said in this convention that we should be ashamed to have in print. I am in favor of having a verbatim report.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 39-40)

[e934381] Mr. Coker: Mr. President, I move that this question be made a special order for this afternoon.

Before we begin the task of this day we desire to petition Thee for Thy Spirit that whatsoever these men may undertake they may be guided by inspiration. Now O Lord we do not want to undertake this great work without Thy Holy Spirit being poured upon us[;] therefore we ask that we have it for guidance in all the labors of this day. There may be complications arise and discussions arise which may perplex the minds of these men, now heavenly Father we ask Thee to grant them wisdom and prudence to solve all such complications. Bless the president of this convention and to preside over these meetings and Bless also the members and especially the chairmen of the committees that their duties may be performed without friction or complications or if there are any that they may have the wisdom in solving them. Bless all Thy people of this State and this great nation and all those who have duties of office to perform. Help us O Lord to become a great and a good people, and we all hail in the Prayer of Thine only begotten Son, "Our Father who are in heaven hallowed by Thy name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven, and give us this day our daily bread and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. Suffer us not to be lead into temptation but deliver us from evil for Thine is the kingdom and the Power and the Glory, forever, Amen."

[e934595] Mr. President: [...] Any other business to come before the convention?

Mr. Short: Mr. President, for the information of the convention I would like to say that the lowest bid the printing committee has received for the printing of 250 propositions is \ $1.25 per page. The lowest reasonable bid we have received for printing 500 copies is \ $3.00 per page. The difference between 250 copies and 500 copies is \ $1.75 per page.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, we beg to ask if the committee has a bid for the 250 and 500 copies from the same party, or from different parties?

Mr. Short: I think it is very probably that we can get figures on 500 copies since we have received the bid on 250. The reason we asked for a bid on 250 was on the suggestion of the Secretary of the Territory, who advises that he considers 500 rather an unusual number; more than we would probably need.

Mr. Cunningham: I suggest that a committee be appointed to enter into discussion with the Secretary of the Territory concerning the printing of 500 copies.

Mr. Baker: I cannot see the necessity of visiting the gentleman in question. If the report of the gentleman from Yuma is correct, he has already arrived at the conclusion that he will not approve bills for 500 copies for the use of our convention. All I can say is to leave him where he is. As a lawyer, I doubt his power, and I am not willing to accept it either.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 55-56)

[e934598] Mr. Webb: I move that 500 copies be ordered printed regardless of what Mr. Young thinks, and the printing committee make a contract with the lowest bidder for 500 copies.

Mr. Winsor: I second the motion.

(The Minutes of the Arizona Constitutional Convention, Page 59)

[e934478] Reverend Crutchfield: Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for bringing us safely to this place, and we call upon our God for His blessings on this beautiful day. We thank Thee for the happy lives that Thou hast given us, and that we have been spared another day to undertake the duties assigned us. We ask that we may have Thy Spirit to abide with us, and attend us in all that we may have to undertake, and that there may not one step be taken that would not be for the best good of the people. We realize, Oh God, our weakness, and that we are considerably led into paths of temptation, and that we need Thy Holy Spirit as a guidance in all the walks of life. Deliver our minds from every evil thought and replace the evil with good. Cause that all the acts of these men may be for the good of this great country and for the good of the State. Bless the president of this convention that he may have an abundance of Thy Spirit to guide him in his many duties as the leader of these men and bless every member of this convention. Oh, Lord, we would dedicate ourselves, and all that we do unto Thee, knowing that Thou art all wise and Almighty. All these blessings, we ask in the name of Thine only Begotten Son, Jesus Christ our Redeemer, Amen.

Secretary (reading):

[e934499] [Editor's Note: Proposition Number 2 was referred to the Convention alongside the committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e934503] Mr. President: What will you do with this report?

Mr. Winsor: I move that the rules be suspended and that Proposition Number 2 be read a third time, and placed on final passage.

Mr. Cunningham: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 57)

[e934505] The motion prevailed.

[e934509] Mr. President: If there are no objections Proposition Number 2 will be recommended to Committee on Federal Relations.

[e934517] Mr. Kingan: Mr. President, I understand that Congress has fixed the boundaries of this Territory and that there is no other authority except the Supreme Court that can alter or make any decision in the matter of boundaries or disputes between states. I think there is nothing else to do but accept the decisions of [the] Congress of the United States, and I can see no use of referring the matter to the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. Parsons: I am informed that we have to regard the boundaries as they are now fixed by Congress as correct and final without any reference or consideration of any dispute that may have arisen, for this is a matter for the Supreme Court to decide.

Mr. Ingraham: As far as the Yuma delegation is concerned we are here by virtue of several hundred votes and despite the decisions of any state in the matter of this so-called dispute, we are averse to giving up the land that is under dispute, and we cannot do so.

Mr. Franklin: I do not now recall that the boundaries of any other states are under dispute, except those of California and Arizona, but I agree with the gentleman from Prima that it is a matter for the Supreme Court of the United States to decide, and the boundaries already fixed by Congress are the boundaries that will define the limits of the State of Arizona, and we can only accept those boundaries.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 57-58)

[e934519] Mr. President: The motion before the convention is to recommit Proposition Number 2.

Mr. Ingraham: Roll call.

Secretary: Mr. Baker.

Mr. Baker: Here, Mr. President, inasmuch as I am uncertain, I had better vote no.

Mr. Ellinwood: The motion to recommit is before the house, and the vote for the final passage is called for. It is very important, to my mind, that in cases where there are disputes over a boundary at the time of the making of a state constitution, we should have the boundary clearly defined.

Mr. Baker: It seems to me that the state boundaries should be set forth for the state as they are for the territory. I agree with the gentleman from Pima. I believe that any disputes that arise must be decided by the Supreme Court of the United States. I think that the boundaries set forth for the territory should also be defined in the State Constitution.

Mr. Winsor: Some of the members of the convention seem to be laboring under a misapprehension. This vote is not final and there is ample time to make such corrections after the proposition returns from the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation.

Mr. Cunniff: What is the use of the members debating the matter of the boundaries when they are subject to the decisions of the Supreme Court. The only thing we can do is to take them as we have them defined for the present territory. The committee on style, revisions and compilation will not change the boundaries, as that should be done by the committee to whom the proposition is referred for such corrections.

Mr. Kingan: I do not know of any other means to determine this matter. If Congress has fixed the boundaries that is the end of it and it is useless to refer it to anyone.

Mr. Cunniff: I should say that it should be the state department instead of the interior department.

Mr. Baker: The boundaries of Arizona is a very important matter. There is no chance for dispute in this matter. I do not believe it necessary to be in haste in the matter as it can be decided as late as two weeks from this date, or longer, and since it seem uncertain I move that it be brought up again as it can do no harm to consider the matter fully. We should at least know the exact boundaries ourselves as defined in the State Constitution.

Mr. President: Under the rules, the proposition on the second reading must be read in full, although a vote of the members to dispense with it can be had if they so desire.

Mr. Winsor: If we are to dispense with the reading of any propositions I would suggest that it be the first reading rather than the second.

Mr. Short: Mr. President, I want to state that it was not the desire of the printing committee to go to the office of the Secretary, but he called us to his office and when he addressed us on this matter he backed off against the wall, and said that he would not sign checks against the government for the printing of such an excessive number of copies as we had ordered. Personally, I stated that I did not think it was necessary to have so many copies printed, but we were not acting on our own wishes but according to the wishes and desires of the convention.

[e934475] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): The Committee on Clerks finds that in order to have as correct a report of the convention as possible, it will be necessary to have three stenographers. Secretary (reading):

[e934483] [Editor's Note: The Convention received the communication and did not act on it further.]

[e934484] Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I desire to rise in my place to speak on a question of personal privilege. I have in my mind an issue, a paper known as the "Daily Globe" of date, Tuesday, October 18, 1910, in which I find the following language in an article published in that paper, pertaining to myself, individually as a member of this convention, and to other members of this honorable body, and the language to which I refer is as follows: "And talking about soreheads, there certainly are some in the convention; notably Webb of Graham, who aspired to the presidency and never got a chairmanship; Franklin of Maricopa, Baker of the same shire and a few others. President Hunt evidently took the view that they would be able to accomplish more good unhampered by a chairmanship."

Mr. President, had I noticed this language or communication in the press ordinarily, I should have paid no attention to it whatever, but I find that this communication, upon its face, apparently emanates from a gentleman who was given my vote and by the entire vote of this honorable body has been allowed great personal privileges upon this floor with us, and who is to draw a salary by virtue of the unanimous vote of this convention.

The gentleman whom I refer to is the private secretary to the president of this convention, and his name is A. A. Cohn. No, Mr. President, I regret such language, such a communication of that kind, coming from that source, and it is wholly unwarranted, is unseemly, ungracious and uncalled for. I wish to add to that the statement, that so far as I am personally, concerned is absolutely false and untrue.

I appeal to my brother members of this convention, if by my conduct as a member of this honorable body, if by a single vote, if by a single speech I have made, or act of mine, in attempting to serve the people's interests in this honorable body that I have exhibited the slightest spirit or disposition to be a sorehead; I am conscious of the fact that I have deliberately here attempted, coolly, dispassionately, and with a deliberate heart to act for the best interests of the people of this territory in this convention, without any hope of honors from this convention. I realize that I was sent to this convention, not to grow in personal aggrandizement at the hands of my brother members, but simply as a hard working member of the convention and I hope when the end of this convention shall come, I shall be able to bear away the good feelings of my fellow members in this convention.

I say "sorehead" is a political term. I had the honor of making the opening speech. But I want to say Mr. President, that if the president's private secretary sees fit to use this kind of language without any cause in any shape or form, that man is a drawback to the Democratic party. I have been further informed that he was chief cook and high bottle washer to Hoval Smith in a recent campaign.

I accord the president, the privilege and right to appoint any one his private secretary, but I do deny and assert that when the private secretary of the president will use terms to members in this sort of a way without anything to support it, it is unseemly, uncalled for and unjustifiable.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 62-63)

I am also mentioned in this article as a "sorehead" and I wish to repudiate it. It is an atrocious and unfounded insinuation and ought not to come from this hall, where we are called to do a great duty without favor, and I stand here to tell you gentlemen that I have not rushed in here with a proposition. I am willing when this constitution is finished and the conventional act is passed, to accord that to the people of Arizona and those who participate in it here. It is true that I was an aspirant to the presidency of this convention, but I do not believe that was cause for such statements from any source, but I wish to say, Mr. President, that you are placed in a compromising position, coming from the source it does; from a man elected by my vote and the votes of this convention. I would deeply deplore it on that account, as it reflects on the president and this convention. Whenever I propose a measure here, I propose it on its merits. No member will ever find me doing anything, but voting on all measures as I believe to be right and I shall do it with a free hand and without favor when the convention closes, the people will see that the pledge made has been fulfilled.

[e934486] Mr. President: I, too, deeply deplore this matter. Some of the Republican members of this territory (sic) have said that I have shown preferences in selecting the chairman of the committees, but each and every gentleman knows that I have asked each of them which committee they preferred to be on. Mr. Baker told me that he was physically unable to take care of a committee. I have not read the newspaper article, but because Mr. Cohn did valiant service in the recent political campaign, I considered him worthy, and I trust that the article emanating from the Globe paper will be retracted in a gracious manner. [e934501] Reverend Crutchfield: Oh Lord, our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee that we have been preserved on this another beautiful day and we call upon our God for His blessings on this day. We thank Thee that we are happy and healthy and that our lives have been spared and that we are permitted to meet for the duties of another day. We ask that we may have Thy Spirit to abide with us and attend us in all that we may have to undertake and that there may not one step be taken that would not be for the best good of the people. We realize that we are weak and that we are lead into paths of temptation and that we need Thy Holy Spirit as a guidance in all the walks of life. Deliver our minds from every evil thought and replace the evil with good. Cause that all the acts of these men may before the good of this great country and for the good of the State. Bless the president of this convention that he may have an abundance of Thy Spirit to guide him in his many duties as the leader of these men and bless every member in his efforts to keep his pledges and to perform the work that he has been elected to do. Now Oh, Lord, we would dedicate ourselves and all that we do unto Thee, knowing that Thou art all wise and Thou art merciful, and will bless our petitions in as much as they seem unto You as our needs. All these Blessings we ask of Thee in the name of Thine only Begotten Son, Jesus Christ our Redeemer, Amen.

[e934608] Mr. Short: I would like to learn the number of the proposition in question. Is it Number 7? I notice that Numbers 17 and 18 have been returned. The delay in printing Number 7 may be on account of it being a longer proposition. Numbers 4 and 6 were each long propositions and could not be printed as early as the short ones, but they will probably be in this afternoon.

Mr. Feeney: I understand that some of the press representatives have been lobbying on the floor.

[e934711] Reverend Crutchfield: Almighty God our Heavenly Father we thank Thee for the past sabbath day for which we have had relaxation from the busy bustle of the past week and that we are permitted to come back here refreshed in mind and body for work.

We pray Thee that we may have the guidance of Thy Holy Spirit in all we do. Some of the pages may not have had the opportunity of worship yesterday. Some of these men may not have the opportunity of going to their respective places of worship, but make our prayers responsive to the will of the Lord so we may accomplish that which we are sent into the world to do. We can all both Jew and Greek and Gentile, bond and free approach the Throne of Grace in time of need. First the president needs it, the secretary and the chairman of this convention and all the men who are at work to accomplish that for the good of our citizenship.

We pray Thee that every one may have grace to the end, and may we remember Lord that the man who ruleth his own spirit is greater than the one who ruleth a city and therefore we can pray all together the Lord's Prayer: "Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day or daily bread and forgive our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil for Thine is the Kingdom and the Power and the Glory forever Amen.

[e935095] Mr. President: Gentlemen, the order of the day.

Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President, the Committee on Preamble and Declaration of Rights is ready to report, if it is the desire of the convention to receive the report.

Mr. President: What is the pleasure of the convention?

Mr. Crutchfield: The Committee is ready to report but since there has been another preamble submitted and it may be the wish of the committee of the whole to await the new proposition. I would state the the preambles are the same with the exception of the designation of the Deity. The convention could determine the matter of the designation of the Deity to be used in the preamble, without submitting this to the printing committee.

Mr. President: The matter will come up in the regular order of business in the committee of the whole. The secretary will read the report.

Secretary (reading): "Phoenix, Arizona, October 25, 1910. [e935220] Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I move that the rules be suspended and the title only be read.

[e935224] Mr. President: On the second reading of propositions, I think it would be well to read the title only. What is the pleasure of the convention?

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, if there is any time that the rules should be suspended it is on the first reading, when we have not the printed copies before us, but now that we have this matter on our desks and can carefully follow the reading, I think that we should have the propositions read in full.

Mr. Parsons: With reference to the remarks of the gentleman from Yuma, I do not think that his reason for having the propositions read in full on the second reading is as justifiable as the gentleman from Maricopa in not desiring the second reading, from the very fact that we have the printed copies and can read them ourselves. I am certain that the majority of members would prefer to suspend the rules in this instance.

Mr. Winsor: We had better make a motion to suspend the rules each day as that is what we seem to do any way. I think that it is very important that the propositions should be read and that every member have his copy before him and follow the reading. Mr. President, I would like to know the reason why the gentleman from Maricopa does not want the second reading of these propositions.

Mr. Baker: I moved that the rules be suspended on the reading of Proposition Number 38, but it was my intention to make the same motion on each proposition as they were taken up.

Mr. President: Gentlemen, you have heard the motion of the gentleman from Maricopa with regard to the suspension of the rules on the reading of propositions in full on the second reading. Those in favor of the motion say "aye," those opposed "nay." I am in doubt. Secretary will call the roll.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I feel that the statement made by the gentleman from Yuma is correct. It seems to me that the time for the suspension of the rules in the matter of the reading of propositions is the first reading and not the second, when we have them on our desks and can study them as we follow the reading. I would prefer to hear the second reading.

Mr. Baker: Mr. President, roll call on the motion.

Mr. President: The secretary will call the roll.

[e935173] Proposition No. 5, referred to Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation.

Take us by the hand and lead us safely through the labors and tasks of another day, for we would not undertake this work without Thine aid and assistance. Lead us ever in the straight and narrow way and when we have finished our building and our work here on earth save us we pray Thee in Thy Kingdom above, is our supplication in the Name of Thy Son Jesus Christ, our Savior, Amen.

[e935106] Mr. Winsor: In the report of the committee of the whole there is a technical error, which might be very confusing. The report states that the committee recommends that Proposition Number 5 be substituted for Number 1. The committee recommends that Proposition Number 5 be adopted and Proposition Number 1 be indefinitely postponed. I move that this consideration [sic, correction] be made in the secretary's minutes.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion of the gentleman from Yuma.

Secretary (reading): Phoenix, Arizona, October 26, 1910

M.G. Cunniff, Chairman.

[e935158] Mr. Webb: I believe there is a mistake in the matter of this proposition. As I recall it, the proposition was not submitted to the committee on style, revision and compilation, but was adopted as a separate proposition and given its proper place in the constitution. The rules were suspended, and it was not referred to the committee.

Mr. Cunniff: I made the original motion. It was not taken out of its proper order and referred to the committee.

Mr. Webb: I would like the record on the original motion.

Secretary (reading): "Mr. Cunniff moved, seconded by Mr. Jones that the rules be suspended on Proposition Number 1. Mr. Ingraham moved to amend Proposition Number 1. Proposition Number 5 read third time, and put on its final passage. On final passage, was adopted unanimously."

Mr. Cunniff: I suggest that the phrase "final passage" means that the proposition goes to the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation.

Mr. Winsor: Under the rules that will have to return.

Mr. President: Read the proposition in full.

Secretary (reading): Proposition Number 5 by Mr. Baker of Maricopa County. A proposition relate to preamble.

[e935521] Mr. Lynch: Mr. President, I have a communication from Judge Lewis, and also a communication from another party, which I would like to have referred to the judiciary committee.

Mr. Franklin: I suggest that we have the communication from Judge Lewis read.

Mr. President: The secretary will read the communication from Judge Lewis.

Secretary (reading): "Globe, Arizona, October 7, 1910. Mr. John J. Birdno, Safford, Arizona.

I am returning you therewith the letter from Mr. Folson which I read with a great deal of interest. I heartily concur in the views he expresses and would deem it a greater advantage to Arizona if we can succeed in having the appropriate system for the selection of our judges of the Supreme Court. As an alternative, however, I deem it of the greatest importance that the judicial elections be held separately from the election of other officials. If you want to read the greatest argument that was ever made, to my knowledge, for the appointive system, get a copy of the Federalist and read what Alexander Hamilton had to say in his argument for the appointive system when the Federal Constitution was under construction.

Very truly yours, E. W. Lewis, Judge."

[e935529] Communication from Henry H. Folson of Boston, Mass., referred to the judiciary committee.

[e935534] Mr. Lynch: Mr. President, I would like to have the next communication read, as I have not been able to read it myself.

Mr. President: I think that it had better be typewritten first. I have no desire to burden the secretary. Gentlemen, there seems to be no further business.

[e935530] Communication from Henry H. Folsom of Boston, Mass., referred to the judiciary committee.

[e935536] Mr. Feeney: Mr. President, I would like to explain a little matter with regard to our postman. It seems that he is being greatly imposed upon in the matter of the carrying of the mails from this hall to the post office. He has to pay the express from here to the post office and return. He is required to sort the mail at the post office and carry all the mail to and from this hall. Since we are sending out a great deal of matter and also receiving much mail, and the work is very hard, I move that the mail man be allowed his legitimate expenses in the matter of carrying the mails.

Mr. Simms: I second the motion.

[e935537] Mr. Short: Mr. President, I would like to know why the members of the convention cannot have their mail delivered here as well as to any other part of the city. That is the work of employees of the post office department in this city, and I do not think it is necessary for our mail carrier to take the mail farther than the box outside this building.

Mr. Feeney: I would say that the post office clerks should certainly sort the mail for this convention hall as well as any other part of the mail, but so far they have placed that work upon our mail carrier, and for his trouble and expense he should be properly paid.

[e935538] Mr. President: Gentlemen, are you ready for the question? Those in favor of the motion of the gentleman from Cochise say "aye" and those opposed "nay." The chair is in doubt. Those in favor of the motion rise. (24 in favor.) Those opposed rise. (16 against.) The motion is carried. Other business of the convention.

[e935782] Mr. President: [...] Other business of the convention. Gentlemen, we have gone through the order of business for this morning, what is your further pleasure?

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, there is a matter on which I wish to speak. It is a matter of mailing the printed propositions. I think that a complete mailing list should be submitted to the mailing clerks with the specified number of copies each member may desire mailed. Yesterday when the Yavapai County delegation called for their usual number of copies, we were informed that copies could not be had as they were not available. I was informed, too, that some members have excessive mailing lists, and that one member has something like 250 names on his list, while others are of considerable length. I think this matter should be regulated by the printing committee. I would suggest that the members submit a mailing list and that the various delegations agree upon the number that should be sent by them. Let the committee on printing and clerks arrange for such copies as they desire within reason. No member should be given any special privilege in this matter over other members, who may fail to get their copies, or are somewhat late in submitting their particular mailing lists.

Mr. Kingan: Did the gentleman from Yavapai offer that as a motion? If so, I second the motion.

[e935783] Mr. Ellinwood: If each member is allotted an even number there will be less than ten copies to each member, with the one of each he retains on his desk there are but eight or nine for mailing. If each delegation could make a uniform list and agree on the matter of mailing the propositions, it would create less trouble and provide for each member securing his rightful number.

Mr. President: Gentlemen, you have heard the motion of the gentlemen from Yavapai.

Mr. Webb: I believe the mailing clerks have a complete list, but I think it will be necessary for them to arrange with the various delegations or the printing committee to make out a list that will be within the present limitations.

[e935790] Mr. Parsons: I desire to amend the motion of the gentleman from Yavapai County, and make nine the number that may be sent out or allowed by printing committee to each member for mailing purposes.

Mr. Cunniff: I accepted the amendment of the gentleman from Cochise

Mr. Roberts: I desire to second that motion.

Mr. Cunniff: I do not see how the printing committee is going to comply with this method as they will not know how many copies each member may demand unless they have a definitive number provided for each, and if there are some members who do not care to mail out any propositions those who do could no doubt make arrangements to secure the copies assigned to members who have no mailing list.

Mr. Parsons: Mr. President, it seems to me that the various delegations can arrange among themselves a list that will meet all their demands, and if each member is allowed so many copies each delegation can agree as to the mailing of them.

Mr. Standage: I desire to say that I believe there are a number of the members of the convention who do not care to mail any of these propositions, for instance the Maricopa County delegation. Their friends are mostly within the county and they read the papers daily and get reports without the copies of the propositions, for that reason I believe those who desire more than the allotted number can secure copies from the number assigned to the Maricopa County delegation by concurring [sic., conferring] with them.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, the committee on rules is very glad to say that we are not sorry we fixed the number of copies at 500.

Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, you have heard the motion of the gentleman from Yavapai County, are you ready for the question?

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 94-95)

[e935801] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, you have heard the motion of the gentleman from Yavapai County, are you ready for the question?

[e935804] Mr. president: Gentlemen, we have received from the constitutional convention of New Mexico printed copies of the propositions introduced there. They can be had by the members of this convention for perusal. Gentlemen, we are through with the business, what is your pleasure?

Mr. Weinberger: Mr. President, I move that the convention take a recess until 2:00 p.m.

Secretary (reading): Proposition Number 119 introduced by the ordinance committee, relative to ordinance.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 96-97)

[e935687] Mr. Cunniff: I move that the rules be suspended, and this proposition be read by title only, referred to the printing committee and 500 copies ordered printed.

Mr. Winsor: As I understand it, this is the introduction of a new proposition, and the report of a committee cannot be offered as a substitute; it can be offered in no other way than a proposition. It may be taken up by title only. I second the motion of Mr. Cunniff.

(Editorial)

[e935690] Mr. Cunniff: This being a proposition submitted for the first reading, it may be read by title only, under the suspension of the rules.

Mr. Cassidy: I would like to inquire whether this proposition follows the exact wording of the Enabling Act. If it does, I do not see any need of having it printed.

Mr. Ellinwood: I would like to have the proposition read for my information.

Mr. Baker: The reason given is the very reason why the proposition should go to the printing committee. Now, this proposition deals with those ordinances that are provided for in the Enabling Act. It is a very importance measure. This proposition must necessarily differ from the wording of the Enabling Act in that it changes 'they' to 'we' and other phrases of that kind.

[e935691] Mr. President: For the information of the gentleman from Cochise, read the proposition.

[e935735] Mr. President: Secretary will now read the minutes.

[e935746] Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I move that the rules be suspended and the reading of the minutes be dispensed with.

Mr. Osborn: I second that motion.

[e935749] Mr. Cunniff: I would like to know the reason of the gentleman from Maricopa for dispensing with the reading of the minutes.

We must understand that the greatest length of time of the convention should be given to the discussion of reports before the committee of the whole and not in the reading of the minutes, and we must employ our time with watchfulness and with wisdom that we do not consume the best part of it in the reading of matters that are the least important. I understand that the most important work is the discussion of reports before the committee of the whole, and that to suspend the lesser matter of procedure will be to save time to be devoted to the greater measures. I realize and feel, as many of you do, that it is time, high time, for us to get down to solid work and for this reason I move to suspend the rules in the matter of reading the minutes, and proceed to the more important labor of this convention.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, it seems to me that if we are to have a record of the proceedings of each day, and to know that the record is correct, we should have the minutes read. With respect to the work of the standing committees, I believe the only way in which the work can be expedited is to have the members of the committees attend every meeting and stay with the work until something is accomplished. If the members do not attend the meetings then the work cannot be done. It is the duty of the various members to be present at those meetings and it is also the duty of the committees to go to work at once, formulating articles of the constitution, and not to wait for all the propositions that may be submitted to them.

[e935758] Mr. President: Gentlemen, you have heard the motion of the gentleman from Maricopa, are you ready for the question? Those in favor of suspending the rules and dispense with the reading of the minutes, say "aye," those opposed "nay." The "nays" have it. The secretary will read the minutes.

[e935744] [Editor's Note: Proposition Number 25 was referred to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e935748] Mr President: Will the secretary please read Proposition Number 25.

Secretary (reading): Proposition Number 25, introduced by Mr. Cassidy of Maricopa County. Relative to prohibiting public officers from accepting or using passes.

Mr. Goldwater: As a matter of information, I would like to ask whether any members of this convention have passes.

Mr. Baker: Mr. Secretary, will you please read the proposition referred to in the report. I understand that so much of the proposition as the committee thinks is proper is to be found in another proposition.

Mr. Winsor: I would like to have some information from the committee submitting this report, as to the reason it should be referred to the committee on executive. What has that committee to do with the subject of transportation?

[e935752] Mr. Franklin: Mr. President, I rise to a point of order, and to obtain information. How is it possible for the committee on railroads whatever it reports on a proposition to recommend that the proposition not be passed, and also recommend that it be referred to another committee.

[e935759] Mr. Winsor: I move that the proposition take its regular order on the calendar and be considered by the committee of the whole.

[e935763] Mr. President: Gentlemen, if there are no objections, it is so ordered.

[e935805] Mr. Jones, Chairman of the Committee on Railroads, reported Propositions Nos. 25, 34, and 81.

[Editor's Note: The Records only include the reports on Propositions 25 and 81, however, the Minutes indicate that there was a report on Proposition 34 that is not included in the Record.]

[e935807] [Editor's Note: Proposition Number 34 was referred to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e935831] Secretary (reading): "Phoenix, Arizona, October 28, 1910. Mr. President: Your Committee on Railroads begs leave to report that it has examined Proposition Number 81, and respectfully recommends that it do not pass for the reason that such provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act as are applicable to interstate traffic are embodied in Proposition Number 113; that certain provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act are not applicable to local commerce, and that a delay might result in the creation of a commission in the event that there be a delay in the first legislative enactment provided therefore. F.A. Jones, Chairman; We concur: M.G. Cunniff, C.C. Jacome, E. E. Ellinwood, S.B. Bradner."

[e935835] [Editor's Note: Proposition Number 81 was referred to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e935845] Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, this was a matter we had before the committee just before the adjournment at noon, or after. I gave notice in that committee that I would file a minority report. It seems I have not had the opportunity. I ask the the privilege of filing a minority report on this proposition.

[e948416] [Editor's Note: Ellinwood's proposal didn't appear to receive a second, and no minority report was ever filed. The Editors are thus representing the proposal as dropped.]

(Editorial)

[e935852] Mr. Cunniff: The submission of these reports is a little premature. It was my understanding in going over this proposition that it should not be submitted until the committee's report in full is submitted. Otherwise, I do not see how we can act intelligently. Therefore, I move that the matter be referred to the committee on railroads, so that all propositions reported on and the complete report of the committee may be submitted, at the same time.

Mr. Roberts: I second the motion.

[e935856] The motion prevailed.

[e935868] Secretary (reading): "Phoenix, Arizona, October 28, 1910. Mr. President: Your Committee on Labor begs leave to report that it has examined Proposition Number 47, and respectfully recommends that Proposition Number 47 be referred to the legislative committee. John Bolan, Chairman; We concur: Thomas Feeney, S.B. Bradner, William Morgan, W.F. Cooper." Mr. President, shall I read the proposition?

Mr. Winsor: I move that the report of the Committee on Labor be accepted, and that the proposition be referred to the legislative committee, as the committee desires.

Mr. Langdon: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 104)

[e935872] The motion prevailed.

Mr. President: Proposition Number 47 will be referred to the Committee on Legislative Department, number 2.

[e936217] Secretary (reading): "Phoenix, Arizona, October 28, 1911 [sic]. Mr. President: Your Committee on Labor begs leave to report that it has considered Proposition Number 39, and respectfully recommends that Proposition Number 39 be referred to the legislative committee. We recommend the striking out of the clause reading 'and for the employment of convict labor for such purpose.' John Bolan, Chairman; We concur: Thomas Feeney, W.F. Cooper, William Morgan, S.B. Bradner."

Mr. President: This will have to come up in the committee of the whole, as long as there is a recommendation.

Mr. Winsor: The recommendation of the committee was simply a recommendation to the committee it was referred to.

Mr. Bolan: Mr. President, that is why the recommendation was intended.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 104-105)

[e936231] Mr. President: All in favor of accepting this report, and referring the proposition to the committee on legislative matters [Committee on Legislative Department, Distribution of Powers and Apportionment], make it known by saying "aye," all opposed "no."

[e936232] The "ayes" have it; and Proposition Number 39 is referred to the committee on legislative department.

[e936236] Secretary (reading): "Phoenix, Arizona, October 28, 1910.

Mr. President: Your Committee on Labor begs leave to report that it has considered Proposition Number 38, and respectfully recommends that Proposition Number 38 be referred to the Committee on Public Service Corporations other than Railroads. John Bolan, Chairman; We concur: Thomas Feeney, S.B. Bradner, William Morgan."

[e936240] Mr. President: If there is no objection to referring this proposition to the Committee on Corporations other than Railroads, it is so ordered.

[e936241] [Editor's Note: The report is implicitly adopted when the proposition is referred.]

I move that it be referred to the Committee on Separate Submission.

[e935775] Reverend Crutchfield: Our Gracious Heavenly Father, and God of this great Universe, we thank Thee again this morning that we are alive and are again permitted to come to this place of business, without any illness or accidents having happened to any of these men. We thank Thee that Thou hast been so mindful of these men and the great labors they have to perform, that Thou hast blessed them with health and peace and a desire to faithfully perform the duties of the Convention, and now, Oh Lord, we would ask Thee to take them by the hand and lead them in the path of wisdom, and grant that they may serve Thee in serving the interests of Thy children. We would none of us attempt our duties in life without Thy help and Thine assistance and guidance in all our lives; therefore we pray Thee that Thou wouldst have us walk. At the end of this third week of arduous labor and for the work that has been accomplished we thank Thee that all has been well with these men and now that the work is being brought to the committee of the whole for adoption into the Constitution, we ask that Thou wouldst specially bless these men with wisdom and knowledge in the great work that is before them to do. Lead us ever in the path of righteousness, and now Oh Lord after the manner of Thine only Begotten Son we would say, Our Father which are in heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil for Thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever, Amen.

Mr. President: Read the minority report of the committee and the minority reports for the information of the gentlemen of the convention.

Secretary (reading): Substitute Proposition Number 4, introduced by the Committee on Legislative Department, Distribution of Powers and Apportionment, being a proposition relative to direct legislation.

There is also a minority report filed by M. G. Cunniff, J. Weinberger and Lysander Cassidy; also one by Thomas Feeney, Fred Colter and Mit Simms.

[e935982] Mr. Cunniff: I have submitted a minority report on that proposition.

Mr. Coker: I have already submitted a minority report on the proposition.

Mr. President: Read the minority report of the committee and the minority reports for the information of the gentlemen of the convention.

Secretary (reading): [As stated by Mr. Winsor, supra] Substitute Proposition Number 4, introduced by the Committee on Legislative Department, Distribution of Powers and Apportionment, being a proposition relative to direct legislation.

There is also a minority report filed by M. G. Cunniff, J. Weinberger and Lysander Cassidy; also one by Thomas Feeney, Fred Colter and Mit Simms.

[e935984] Mr. Wells: Mr. President, it seems to me that the substitute is incomplete. I would like to ask for information why the blanks are made, and why the figures are not supplied.

Mr. President: I believe that the per centum will be left to the convention, in which the intelligent minority will have a show.

Mr. Wells: The proposition should be complete, in my judgment, because if completed it might save considerable time in discussion if we know what the percentage was to be. If the committee arrives at a certainty instead of this uncertainty, it might save a great deal of time in discussion, and it might as well be arrived at now as then. Thought I do not know whether it is included in the motion, I offer as a suggestion that the matter of blanks be settled now.

[e935986] Mr. Webb: Gentlemen, I desire that my name be stricken from the majority report. I submit this minority report, on which I would like the secretary to put the proper heading. I would like to say that a full and free discussion was had of whether or not to fill these blank spaces with any specific percentages, and this was gone into very fully in the course of the committee investigation. We decided that no figures should be named therein, for it makes no difference what figures might be put in, an amendment certainly would have been made. It was after full consideration that the blanks were left.

Mr. President: Read the minority report submitted by Mr. Webb of Graham.

Secretary reads report of Mr. Webb.

[e935990] Mr. President: Gentlemen, the question comes up on the printing of the proposition and amendments.

[e936179] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I move that the rules be suspended and that Proposition Number 128 be read the first time by title, and no copies ordered printed, inasmuch as it is merely desired to refer this matter to the Committee on Suffrage and Elections, in the hope of securing a constitution amendment of a few lines to cover what it took me four pages to cover.

[e936181] Mr. Ellinwood: I would like to have it read first.

Mr. President: First reading of the proposition.

Mr. Ellinwood: It seems to me that this is a matter of such universal interest, and comprehends the subject in such detail, that we should have the usual number of copies printed.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I certainly have no objection to having it printed, except that it would not be desirable, and I do not think it would be possible to secure the inclusion of anything like all that detail in the constitution. The idea of submitting it in that form was merely for the purpose of giving some idea as to the object and purpose of the constitutional provision desired, and I believe that it would be a useless expenditure of money to print it, but I have no objection whatever to doing so.

[e936183] Mr. Cunniff: I move that under a suspension of the rules, it be read the first time by title only, and submitted to the proper committee.

[e936185] Mr. Ellinwood: It seems to me that this is one thing that we want to look into. If the proposition comprehends such detail that it should not go to the printer, it properly is not here as a proposition. We do not know what might come before the committee. We have no copy before us.

Mr. Winsor: We will have a copy of the committee's report.

Mr. Ellinwood: That would be true of every proposition before this convention. There may be [a] minority report; there has been heretofore, and there may be some necessary amendment. It seems to me that we should have all the light possible, by having the original proposition printed.

[e936188] Mr. President: The motion is on the suspension of the rules. Those in favor of the motion answer "aye;" those opposed "no." The motion is lost.

[e936191] Mr. Winsor: I move that it not be printed.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910)

[e936194] Mr. Winsor: While I am perfectly willing to withdraw it, inasmuch as I do not think this is a matter to quarrel over, I would like to say that it would not be a suspension of the rules for this proposition not to be printed. However, I do not wish to have a quarrel, so I withdraw the motion. I would rather see it printed than wrangle.

[e936196] Mr. President: If there are no objections the proposition will go to the printing committee and 500 copies ordered printed. Hearing none, it is so ordered.

[e935910] Reverend Crutchfield: Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee this morning that we are still alive, and that we are still probationers of hope on this side of the grave, and we are looking forward to the time when we shall be released. We thank Thee that there are no visible signs of Thy displeasure upon any of us. May God be upon us this day. This is about the period in the convention when reports will come in, and it may be that on some occasion we will be too hasty. We pray Thee, therefore, that Thou wilt so rule in our hearts, as to overthrow those things which would be for our good. May we not lose our temper in the heat of discussion and the interchange of thoughts. Recognize the fact that we are all mortal beings; that we are frail, and do not understand things as the Divine Spirit, and do Thou therefore help us always to have charity one toward another. May our work be blessed. [All in unison] Our Father, who are in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name; Thy Kingdom come; they will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. Amen.

[e935980] Mr. Cobb: I have a resolution to introduce.

Secretary (reading): ”Resolution Number 11, introduced by Mr. Cobb of Graham County.

Whereas, the apportionment of members of the legislature of the State of Arizona among the various counties thereof will be made in proportion to their population, and

Whereas, the population of Graham County as given in the published report of the census office includes what will be on January 11, 1911, Greenlee and Graham Counties, therefore,

Be It Resolved, that the secretary of this convention be authorized and instructed to request the director of the census, by wire, to furnish the population of Graham County, or if that is not available, the enumerated population of every justice, or census precinct in the present limits of Graham County.”

[e935992] Secretary (reading): ”Resolution Number 12, introduced by Mr. Webb of Graham County.

Whereas, the preliminary work of this convention is completed and the adoption of constitutional matter as separate propositions will speedily follow, and

Whereas, the publication of such separate propositions so adopted would be of great interest to the people of Arizona; therefore,

Be It Resolved, that the printing committee be, and is hereby instructed, to call for bids for the publication in some newspaper of general circulation of all propositions as the same may be separately agreed to, and report back to this convention the result of such call for bids.”

[e935994] Mr. Webb: I move the adoption of Resolution Number 12.

Mr. Osborn: I second the motion.

[e936007] Mr. Webb: I would like to call attention to the fact that this resolution will not impose an obligation upon us, it simply instructs the printing committee to see what this printing can be done for.

Mr. Ellinwood: I cannot see the purpose of publishing in any newspaper a part of the constitution.

Mr. Webb: Will the gentleman from Cochise yield for a moment? He is speaking under a misapprehension. The constitution will be passed as separate propositions; one part has already been passed, that is the preamble. Each part should be published as passed, for the information of the people of the territory.

Mr. Ellinwood: I certainly was under a misapprehension as to what was meant by this resolution. I understand that the separate articles meant were the separate things named in the "Enabling Act," but the purpose is evidently that each separate matter as it comes before our body during our session shall be at once submitted to the people. Is that the purpose?

Mr. Webb: I think the meaning is very clear. It means that each separate proposition as adopted shall be published. The purpose of this proposition is simply to learn what it would cost to publish each part as rapidly as passed.

Mr. Cunningham: I understand that the purpose of this resolution is simply advisory to the printing committee, and intended as such, the committee to report back to the convention.

Mr. Ellinwood: But why should they be put to all the trouble if we are not going to adopt it or act upon it. We might as well discuss it now. There is a very serious matter to which I wish to call your attention. We have no particular paper in Arizona that would give all the people of the territory an opportunity to see what was printed. If this is for the purpose of putting it before the people, then you will have to publish it in all the papers, which would certainly entail a very large expense.

Mr. Webb: We cannot well discuss this question until we have the estimate of the cost. If the cost is only nominal, I do not think even the gentleman from Cochise would object to it. But, on the other hand, if the cost is excessive, we would not have it done. It would be no great burden on the printing committee to call for bids, and report to the convention.

[e936013] Mr. Ellinwood: I wish to move as an amendment, that the committee at the same time report the circulation of each paper putting in a bid.

[e936015] Mr. Webb: I accept the amendment.

[e936023] Mr. Winsor: I move as another amendment, that the printing committee at the same time, ascertain whether the Secretary of the Territory will approve the item.

[e936028] Mr. Webb: I accept that amendment. I had intended to incorporate that in the motion.

[e936031] Mr. Cunningham: I move as a further amendment—

Mr. Webb: I rise to a point of order. There can be no further amendment.

[e936034] Mr. President: The point is well taken.

[e936042] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): It seems to me that almost any newspaper in the territory is enterprising enough to publish this, and I believe we would have only to furnish the copy to them.

[e936049] Mr. President: Gentleman, you have heard the resolution and amendments. You will answer as your names are called. The secretary will call the roll.

[e937057] Mr. Ellinwood: [...] I move the adoption of the report.

Mr. Parsons: I second the motion.

[e937109] Mr. Kingan: I did not catch the full import of the measure. I understand that it provides for the people indicating who they prefer for United States Senators. Am I correct?

Mr. President: That is the purpose of the measures.

Mr. Kingan: I am opposed to the matter, Mr. President, for this reason. The constitution of the United States provides in Section 3 of Article 7, that the legislature of the state shall elect Senators. I think we should obey the spirit as well as the letter of the Constitution of the United States. I think it means that the legislature in their untrammelled discretion shall elect Senators, and that the people under the constitution of the United States have no right to dictate to the legislature who they shall vote for for Senator. The convention reposes that duty and that power in the legislature. It does not lie in any other person. Personally, I would like to see this, but I believe as long as the constitution says the legislature shall elect as they see fit, I think to dictate or to instruct the legislature would be repugnant to the spirit of that document.

Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, I have some data in print which I think thoroughly answers the statement of the gentleman from Pima. The legislatures of more than two-thirds of the states have passed resolutions favoring this plan. The House of Representatives has passed a resolution for a constitutional amendment to provide for the popular election of Senators. The matter was before the national Democratic convention of 1908, and they favored it. Mr. Taft in his acceptance speech announced himself in favor of this reform. The Senate, however refused to concur in the proposed amendment. Because of the apparent hopelessness of action by Congress a number of states have accomplished the desired result by independent action. The states of Oklahoma and Nebraska deal with the matter in their constitutions. Senators are now nominated by direct primary in the states of Alabama, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Nebraska, North Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin. The resolution contemplates that the election shall be advisory to the legislature of the new state, to express the wish of the people.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. Ellinwood has just given you the figures on the question. There is at the present time because of the action of two-thirds of the state, an amendment to the Constitution of the United States to that effect, though it is not actually in existence. Following to its logical conclusion the proposition of the gentleman from Pima, we would decide that the electors for President of the United States might be absolutely untrammelled by the wishes of the people voting for them.

Mr. Winsor: I take it that when the gentleman from Pima made a plea for the right of an untrammelled legislature under the spirit of the Constitution of the United States, to elect United States Senators, he must have had in mind the untrammelled legislatures of Illinois, Colorado, Montana, New Jersey, and other states which have recently come into prominence.

Mr. Wells: I would like to ask for information the scope of the measure. I did not catch it when it was read.

Mr. President: Read the resolution, Mr. Secretary.

Secretary reads resolution.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I think the gentlemen who have spoken on this subject have taken a wrong view of the matter. The report of the committee only refers to the first election after statehood.

Mr. Wells: That is the subject that I wish this convention might thoroughly understand. Now, it is the desire of this body to keep away from all entanglements, and to proceed in a manner so that some result will come from our action here. I am in complete harmony with direct elections, but we should here confine ourselves to the Acts of Congress, and particularly the Enabling Act, which should be our guide. The intention of Congress as defined in the Enabling Act is that the laws of the territory as they exist today shall guide us in electing our first state officers. If you will turn to the Enabling Act, and permit me to go through it as I did for myself in this investigation, you will see that the intention of Congress is to adopt, or rather refer the matter to the existing laws of the Territory of Arizona. I know we want to be right in this, and our only wish is to conform to that which will bring results. On page 13, in section 19, the first reference is made to the conduct of elections. Also see page 16, sections 21 and 23. In section 34 we have the conclusion. There we have the express direction that all laws of said territory in force at the time of its admission into the Union shall be in force in said state until modified. Of course, we can go ahead and provide for direct nomination, etc., but are you proceeding safely in doing that? Is it safe to proceed when we have to change the meaning of the Act of Congress? It seems to me that is not safe. I merely suggest this.

Mr. Baker: I think the gentleman from Yavapai has fallen into the error of confounding the election provided for in the Enabling Act for state officers, with the primary election. They are wholly and distinct. The Enabling Act is perfectly silent upon the question of primary election. There is, however, a further difference, as pointed out in the case of Woodruff vs. State, 65 New Jersey 59. I am free to confess we can in no way alter nor will this convention attempt to alter the terms of the Enabling Act as to the regular election of state officers. It is clear in my mind that the act being silent as to the mandatory system for nominating officers, this convention will be absolutely free to provide for such mandatory election.

Mr. Parsons: As I view it, the gentleman from Pima has stated that he does not want to violate the spirit of the United States Constitution. I know of no better way on earth of observing the spirit of the Constitution than to vote for, and adopt, this report, giving us a chance to see that the legislature will do what the constitution contemplates it should do, elect Senators in an untrammelled manner. If the legislature wants to carry out the wishes of the people, how will they know unless the people instruct them in some manner. I think we should fix the act in the strongest terms, so that the legislature will know and be bound by what we want them to do. The gentleman from Pima says we are reversing the Enabling Act, but that law was in force in one of the thirty two or thirty three states of this Union, which have already done just what we are trying to do. I have heard of no Senator or United States Representative having his seat contested on this ground. Further, the Secretary of the Territory (who has well deserved the title, "The Watchdog of the Treasury,") may not approve of the expenditure occasioned by this bill. If that were the case, I am sure a number of members of this convention would pledge themselves to make good any such expense incurred in that behalf.

Mr. Cunniff: I agree with what has been said by the distinguished gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Baker. All the Enabling Acts are very much alike. My distinguished colleague, Mr. Wells, has pointed out certain sections of the Enabling Act which bear but little on the subject, but he fails to give much light upon the question raised by Mr. Baker, namely, that the Enabling Act is silent as to the method of holding this election. Other things such as qualification of voters are mentioned but we have absolutely nothing about method. The Enabling Acts of the seven states most recently admitted into the Union have provisions on this subject, and the gentleman who drew up our Enabling Act had some reason for leaving out such a provision, and making a change. The distinguished gentlemen in Washington undoubtedly had these other Enabling Acts before them while preparing ours. Our Enabling Act simply provides that the election shall be held at the same time named by the proclamation of the Governor of Arizona, and is absolutely silent on the point made perfectly clear in other Enabling Acts. Let us consider page 16, Section 22, of the Enabling Act. It seems to me that in the absence of definite information in the Enabling Act, we certainly have the right and privilege, and as intelligent men, I think we ought to exercise it. This constitutional convention, I believe, has the authority to draw up an ordinance governing the election to be held and, therefore, I feel we are taking wise action in requesting the Committee on Elections to perfect a plan for holding the first election.

Mr. Ingraham: The Committee on Suffrage and Elections, Mr. President, desired information upon two points, one a point of law, and the other a point of policy. The point of law has been touched upon here; the point of policy has also been handled to some extent. It seems to me that, briefly, the point of policy is this: When Arizona stands knocking at the doors of Congress if our ordinance provides that our first Senators be chosen by a direct vote of the people, will that militate against the admission of Arizona? Also, there is a question of policy, whether Senators ever be chosen by direct vote of the people. The point of law involved is briefly, whether we have the power to provide an ordinance for the primary election, not only concerning United States Senators, but also state and county officers to be chosen under this constitution. It seems to me there are just as full and authoritative expressions used in our Enabling Act, as in that of Oklahoma. We have the power to provide for the ballot which shall be voted at that election; and if we have that power we have the same power to prescribe what shall be the official ballot for the state officers also. The only point at which our power to provide for such election might come in conflict with the provisions of the Enabling Act, or with the authority of the territorial officers, to my mind, is the question of the expense of the primary election. Would it be a legitimate tax on the appropriation made by Congress for paying the expenses incurred under this Enabling Act? Further, I wish to call to your attention the fact that after the Democrats and Republicans have chosen their nominees, there still remains another step. Shall those names be put on the official ballot, and shall the secretary of the territory, or other officer, who is provided shall canvass the vote in this election, also canvass the advisory vote for United States Senators? Now, we of the committee, have come here for the light. We know that there are many lawyers in this body, and before we take any steps we should consider fully the advice of these lawyers as to the law, and of the other members as to the question of policy.

Mr. Franklin: This discussion is getting to a very interesting phase. I infer from the Enabling Act that although the Governor of the Territory is by proclamation to call the election, that proclamation is governed as to time by this constitutional convention. The grant of power to this constitutional convention is limited as to the time of holding this election. There is no other grant of power that we can exercise except this matter of fixing the time. From this Enabling Act we see that the laws of this Territory are to govern until otherwise changed. If we confine ourselves to sections 22 and 23, it is a very serious question as to the legality of this convention prescribing any other method or means of electing these officers than those means now prescribed by the territorial laws of Arizona. I realise that the people of Arizona, almost irrespective of party, are in favor of election by direct primary of the officers of this state, including an advisory vote for the Senators. I am heartily in accord with this, but as question of policy I doubt whether this is legal, if it should be taken to the courts. While I believe in the broad statesmanship of the members in the halls of Congress unaffected by party considerations, I am not fully persuaded either as to the legality or the propriety of this course. I shall however yield to the wishes of the majority of my party and vote for this resolution.

Mr. Cooper: I am in accord with the sentiments just expressed by the gentleman from Maricopa, and I, like him, fear any departure from the strict provisions of this Enabling Act. This is the first time in the history of this territory that we have had the opportunity placed before us for admission to statehood, but it is not the last opportunity we shall ever have to prescribe the methods of election or for carrying out the wishes of the people. If it were, matters might present themselves in a different light, but the situation, existing as it does, I think it would be unwise and unsafe for us to take one single step that might interfere with our admission. I, like the gentlemen who have spoken, believe in most thoroughly, and have the most hearty desire to see, the people governing themselves, but I feel that we should not take the slightest risk as to our admission in anything we do in this convention.

Mr. Webb: I would like to call the members' attention to the fact that the Enabling Acts for New Mexico and Arizona are identical except as to paragraph 19. The difference between these and the other states which have recently been admitted into the Union, is due to the fact that they had only one election, while we have two. Their election was for the ratification of the constitution and the election of state officers at the same time; ours provides for two separate elections. This question was taken before the Supreme Court of Oklahoma, from the opinion of which the court I will read extractions. Other conventions have had the matter up. The laws of the Territory of Arizona provide a primary election for all county officers, and it was the intention of the Committee on Suffrage and Elections merely to extend the provisions of the law of 1909 to govern state officers.

Mr. Lynch: The gentleman from Maricopa has told us that our only right with reference to the first election is the naming of the time of same. I cannot as a legal proposition hold myself to believe that we have no further right. Mr. Webb has pointed out our only remedy and available loophole. We have in force a primary law, we have no right to change it, except in such particulars as are necessary to put it into operation in the first election for state officers.

Mr. Cunniff: I should like to ask how we can specify the time of this election. We have no means of knowing when Congress will have acted.

Mr. Webb: The time will have to be prescribed tentatively, and this election held within a certain limit. We can state that it shall be held at the time named in the proclamation of the governor.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): Speaking of the time of this election, after the President takes action, he shall then notify the governor, who shall within thirty days after the receipt of such notification issue his proclamation of election, said election to be held not earlier than sixty nor later than ninety days after the proclamation of the governor ordering same.

Mr. Wells: The argument has drifted in the right direction. I make no point as to the election of United States Senators, for the Senate and House of Representatives are judges of the authority of their members. Whether we are right or wrong will cut no figure with them. Now the question of legality had been mentioned by Mr. Franklin and the two gentlemen from Graham. We do not wish to have any entanglement if we can avoid it. The only remedy I can see is suggested by the gentleman from Graham. The laws now in effect are kept in force by the Enabling Act. The laws of the Territory of Arizona control within the jurisdiction of Arizona; the laws of the United States control within the jurisdiction to which it is intended to be applied, and this Enabling Act is intended by Congress to be applied to the territories of Arizona and New Mexico, and not elsewhere, and any conclusion reached by the courts in other states and territories does not apply here at all. This Enabling act is our guide, and we must stand by it. I do not say that Congress would interfere if we elected our Senators or state officers in a different way; they might leave this matter to our Arizona courts. Why should we legislate at all, when such legislation may be in conflict with the desires of Congress. In this way we can keep out of trouble. It seems to me that it is perfectly plain and there is no difficulty about it. We might just as well keep our hands off, and stand in a position about which there is no question.

Mr. Winsor: Look again at section 21 of the Enabling Act. I tried to make this point clear in my previous argument. The power of the convention rests in the first few lines of section 21 of the Enabling Act; the substance of it being that this convention shall provide for the submission of the constitution to the people of Arizona at an election. Now can there be any doubt that we have full power over the method of that submission?

Mr. Ellinwood: We are getting away from the question of law, with respect to what the courts call an election, for a primary election is not an election according to the courts.

Mr. Kingan: The law of 1901 provides for nomination and not for primary elections.

Mr. Ellinwood: Again I refer you to section 34 of the Enabling Act.

Mr. Kingan: It certainly was not the intention of Congress in the Enabling Act to provide that the convention should exercise the right to prescribe an election nor is it the duty of this convention to do so unless Congress intended that we should.

Mr. Ingraham: I would like to refer you to section 13 which refers to election of officers, and I call the attention of the convention to the words of the provision of statute laws of the Territory of Arizona for 1901.

Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I do not desire to continue this discussion, which has already been too lengthy, but I wish to say that the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Ellinwood, has amply explained my original statement with reference to this matter, and has referred to the section, which is very clear in my mind, that the primary election is very different from the state election and this distinction should be thoroughly understood now, and in the book to which I referred, I find nothing further.

Mr. Kingan: Does the law state there shall be any primary elections? There can be no election of candidates except by nomination, and there is no authority for any other kind of an election.

Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I think that the makers of the Enabling Act presumed to know the law, and there is a broad difference between primary elections for state officers and the regular election. I found no case than that which has been quoted where it was necessary for them to designate between the two elections.

Mr. Wells: The form of ballot would be declared by the governor.

Mr. Ingraham: I would think that such must be provided and declared by this convention, that is the form of ballot.

Mr. Wells: Yes, I think that it should be provided by the convention, but the question would be "yes" or "no," not as to the resolution or the authority of the resolution.

Mr. Ingraham: I wish to refer to the ordinance of the territory of Oklahoma upon this point. I think that it is within our power to do the same as Oklahoma and that this convention must provide and declare and prescribe by ordinance in a similar manner for a state election and the form of the ballot that shall be used at that election. I ask you to return to section 17 of the Enabling Act, and Section 23. There is no question in my mind that it is within the right and power of this convention to provide by ordinance for the state election of officers. There is no authority in the present laws for the state ballot. There is no authority in the present laws for the state ballot. There is no authority in the State of Arizona for state officers, for the election of a new judiciary, for we have never had an elective judiciary or elective state officers. There is no authority for the election of a Congressman to the lower house. We have a delegate to Congress and not a Representative, and the laws of the territory are entirely void of any provision. I am certain that by ordinance, we as a constitutional convention, shall prescribe and provide for such an election as this section refers to.

Mr. Ellinwood: I realize that the purpose of this discussion is that those who have the question to decide may act rightly in the matter and without any error whatever, but in my mind it is perfectly clear, and I agree with the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Baker, that the requirements are absolutely clarified in this very section 23, of the Enabling Act, whereby the constitutional convention shall prescribe by ordinance that an election shall be held, and the question of the primary election is not a part of this subject. Primary election is a different matter and absolutely foreign to this section and to the subject under discussion. The primary election has reference to some general election and the manner of such election, but this question does not apply to the matter at all, is not before the convention in that light, therefore, I say that the remarks of the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Baker, are clear and comprehensible, and that this convention has the power to prescribe for such an election as is defined in the sections quoted, 21 and 23.

Mr. Cunniff: I agree with the gentleman from Maricopa and the gentleman from Cochise.

Mr. Ingraham: I would like to ask the gentleman from Cochise a question: Must we not provide a mode for this election in this convention?

Mr. Ellinwood: I would refer you to the provisions of the Enabling Act in section 34. Now, Mr. President, it seems to me that this section defines the whole question so clearly that there should be no further debate, for such provisions with regard to elections or mode of elections are subject to the acts of this convention. The gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Wells, who is never far from right, and usually covers all questions in his explanations, has not understood the provisions of this section with regard to the matter of elections, either as a general or primary election for the state officers or United States Senators.

Mr. Kingan: Mr. President, I would like to ask a question.

Mr. President: The gentleman from Pima will ask the question.

Mr. Kingan: Does not section 19 explain the matter of elections, and is not the Enabling Act our sole guidance in this matter?

[e937112] Mr. Winsor: Inasmuch as this question has been discussed from beginning to end three or four different times, and as the time allowed by the Enabling Act for this convention is rapidly drawing to a close, I move the previous question.

Mr. President: Your Committee on Federal Relations begs leave to report it has examined Proposition Number 2 and respectfully recommends unanimously that said Proposition Number 2 be adopted. (Editorial)

[e937405] Mr. Parsons: Mr. President, I desire to say with reference to this report, that your committee investigated the matters as thoroughly as possible. There is a map on the wall here, so the delegates will have the opportunity to see just exactly where the contested portion of the Territory of Arizona lies. By virtue of the terms of the California Constitution of 1880, they certainly surrender any claim to any territory east of the mid-channel of the Colorado River, because they expressly state in that constitution that their eastern boundary line shall extend along the mid-channel of the Colorado River. In the Gadsden Treaty the boundary line is defined as the mid-channel of the river from where it intersects with the boundary line between the United States and Mexico, and absolutely waives all claim to the contested property. For these reasons your committee recommend the adoption of the proposition.

[e937412] Mr. Parsons: When this proposition was first introduced, the matter of printing came up and the action taken specifically waived the printing of any copies.

Mr. Cunniff: We decided we did not need the copies then, but now that the matter has come up in this form for the consideration of the convention, we should have printed copies before us.

[e936145] Secretary (reading): "Phoenix, Arizona, November 1, 1910. Mr. President: Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, begs leave to respectfully recommend that the phrases, 'legislative assembly,' 'general assembly,' and 'legislature' used in various Propositions, 'legislature' be adopted as the one to use in the constitution and that mandates to the legislature be phrased the 'The legislature, at its first session shall' in preference to other forms. M. G. Cunniff, Chairman."

Mr. Webb: While it is a fact that such terms as legislature and state legislature are used in many constitutions, still I think this is an important matter and should be discussed by the convention and before the measure is adopted or put into the constitution that we determine upon some phrase or term to be employed with reference to that body, and I suggest the term of "general assembly."

Mr. Cunniff: I agree with the gentleman from Graham, and the report is made in order that the members of the convention may have an opportunity to determine the phrase or term that should be adopted.

Mr. President: I suggest that it be taken up by the committee of the whole. If there are no objections it is so ordered.

[e936935] Mr. Baker: When the motion is put up for the ayes and nays, I shall vote aye, because I believe that some clause should be enacted to provide for publicity of campaign funds, but I am in doubt as to the authority of this body to enact any such law in the constitution. I think this is purely a legislative matter. We cannot afford to incorporate in the constitution such measures as will make our constitution too voluminous, and I feel that it is just what we are bound to have if we include all such measures as may come up before this convention.

Mr. Cunniff: I agree with the gentleman from Maricopa. This act is only tentative, and we will have the right to slash these matters, and on final adoption there will be a great shifting and such matters as are not to be included in the constitution will be left out in this final shift.

Mr. Doe: I agree with Mr. Baker. This is purely and simply a legislative matter and we are only wasting time by considering it.

Mr. Bolan: I think that this is a matter that should be placed before the people. The people expressed their wishes when they sent this body as it now stands and what they do in this convention is the voice of the people. I agree that this matter is legislative in its nature but it is the sense of this convention to have such a measure in the constitution and not leave it wholly with the legislature. This is only the fundamental law.

(Editorial)

[e937011] Mr. Franklin: I would like to understand this matter more thoroughly. I understand that this Proposition Number 50 does not allow any limitations to amounts that can be required [sic, recovered] by employees for damages by death or injury and that no contract can be made by any employer to prevent the employee from securing damages for death and injury. I think that this measure should be made not only to include employees but other persons, as in the case of a railroad accident. Should not other persons as well as employees be protected? I would like a little advice on the matter.

Mr. Baker: The question as to no limitation to the amount that employees can sue for in case of death or injury is very clear to my mind, but I would like to know why everyone, whether an employee or not, should not be protected in the matter of accident, death or injury? I would not only favor the measure as a protection to employees but I would make it to cover all persons who may be included in an accident,—where such persons were subjected to accident, death or injury, as in a railroad accident.

[e937019] Mr. Kingan: I agree with the gentleman from Maricopa. Mr. Franklin and I wish to offer the following amendment: "In Proposition Number 50 as amended, that in line three on page one, strike out the words, 'made by any employee' and in line four, same page, to strike out the words 'causing the,' of any employee."

Mr. Franklin: I second the motion to amend as suggested by the gentleman from Pima.

[e937039] Mr. Baker: I would like to ask the gentleman from Cochise, who introduced the proposition, from what state constitution, if any, he took the proposition.

Mr. Parsons: From the verbatim copy of the constitution of Wyoming.

Mr. Cunningham: We understood that this was a measure which considered only the causes where employer and employee were concerned and for this reason we did not take any steps to amend it to include others, as we took it that the original proposition was intended to cover only those who were employees of certain corporations, as the case might be.

We believe that most of these men here (nearly all in fact) are here for the good of their country at large, and we pray Thee that the spirit of brotherly love may influence them for the good of this great state which we hope will be the brightest of the grant [sic, great] galaxy of states. [e936619] Mr. Cunniff: Several matters the last few days have been put on the calendar of the committee of the whole, and have been considered by the committee of the whole on the same day. When such is the case, it is impossible for the members of this convention to take other than snap judgment on the matter, and it was the necessity of making a snap judgment of that sort on a matter that came before the convention that got us into the snarl we were in yesterday afternoon, making the convention re-refer a matter to the committee. My understanding of the rules is that when a matter is referred to the committee of the whole, it should be put on the calendar for the following day, in order that members of the convention may have a chance for sober study, in order to take wise action.

[e936885] Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, I am opposed to the prosecution of any person except upon indictment by a grand jury. It is too sacred to be left in the hands of a district attorney, who might have some spite, or the person bringing charges against such person charged, might have some spite and of the pettiest nature, yet that person would be subjected to a trial by the district attorney, who would use his power and authority for the conviction of that person, and we all know the abuse of the authority that is proposed in the district attorney. I claim we should have the protection of the fifth amendment of the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. Cunningham: Of course the gentleman from Cochise also knows the abuse of the authority reposed in the lower courts as well as the higher, but I am in favor of the adoption of this proposition because it gives each person a hearing within a very short period of time without awaiting the action of a grand jury and because that person, if he can secure protection at all, can do so before his district attorney. Again it is a very great saving of time and expense to grant a prompt hearing to persons charged. In a court of this kind he can have his witnesses there for his defense and that is the very quickest and least expensive hearing that a person can be given. It is a real preliminary hearing and he has a right to such preliminary hearing. The grand jury system of this territory is in great error under the present system. I am progressive enough to put such a law, such a protective law, into our constitution. I am ready, and I have already raised my voice in this hall in defense of the courts, but I feel that this is the safest, the best, the most certain and the least expensive method of granting the people the right of a preliminary hearing and an early hearing before our courts of justice.

[e936887] Mr. Parsons: Eliminating the matter of expense in this important question for argument's sake, and taking up the matter of a speedy trial it seems to me that nothing could be more just or speedy than to give each person charged the right to come before the magistrate of his own county and that is the freest and best preliminary hearing a person could be granted, but not to relegate him to the room of a grand jury where he does not have nor is allowed council nor conversation with the witnesses. I say that he should have a hearing not in a star chamber but before his county magistrate of the law, in his own precinct, and if he cannot secure justice before such a magistrate there can be no justice in our courts either lower or higher.

Mr. Cooper: I agree with the gentleman from Cochise, that not only from the standpoint of a much smaller expenditure of money, is that there is more justice and more speed in the granting of a hearing before the magistrate of one's own precinct, than it would be to bring him before a court of strangers. The question of a grand jury means that men, business men, must sacrifice their business and their interest to go and sit on a grand jury at the call of a judge and that to save time and expense it would be a question well worth our attention and incorporation into the constitution.

Mr. Ellinwood: Under the system, I can see no justice, and I say that the expenditure is not to be counted when the life or imprisonment of a person is pending, and that no person should be brought into court without first being indicted by a grand jury. In many cases a grand jury hearing means dismissal, but if held the charges are not made as weak on the grounds as would be those offered by a district attorney. The greatest preliminary hearing a person can be granted is that of the grand jury, a body of eighteen or twenty-four men, whose judgment can surely be relied upon as to guilt or innocence sufficient to send the defendant to the court.

Mr. Lynch: There is just a little difference in my experience in the figures of my opponent in the matter of criminal cases or courts. Now there is a question that has not been touched upon and which I consider a very important one and that is this: A person who is committed to await the action of a grand jury whether he be liberated by that body or indicted and then granted liberty from the courts, there is forever a stigma placed upon his name simply because he was bound over to the mercies of a grand jury.

Mr. Cunningham: The arguments submitted here have been sufficient from the standpoint of justice and right, but now to take up the question of expense. I say that to this phase of the question cannot be eliminated from consideration, for a question of economy of time as well as money is sufficient to make the proposition justifiable.

Mr. President: Gentlemen, the question comes up on the amendment offered by Mr. Ellinwood.

Mr. Doe: If you grant to the district Court the power the grand jury now has there might come a time when there would be an absolute in need of a grand jury for a trial by such jury and the power to call one would be lost, and I would advise that we be careful in the vote we cast on so important a matter.

the lawyers, that they may every one have a brief; for the physicians, that they may each have a patient; for the preachers that they may have a pulpit. Grant that in arranging and framing this constitution, it may meet the demands of all these classes of men, so that we may have a brotherhood in this proposed state. We pray Thy blessing on our president, as he enters upon his duties, for during the hours of labor there may be some things come up in which he will need wisdom in all his rulings. Forgive us our sins, and at last in Heaven give us all a home, we ask in Jesus' name, Amen.

We would ask Thee Oh Lord that Though wouldst give unto us Thy Holy Spirit this day for we would not begin the duties of another week without Thine assistance, and therefore we place ourselves into Thy kind and protecting watch care knowing that Thou Art all merciful and Thou Art all Kind and Thy great love for Thy children here below will cause that great blessings will come to those who seek or say only that which would be for the great good of their State and their Country and that every act of this convention may be prompted by that love and the desire to serve their country and their constituents. May they have nothing but the view of making a good and sound and progressive constitution. [e937332] Mr. President: Questions comes up on the report of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation. Roll call on the adoption.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I would like to offer an amendment.

Secretary (Reading): That in Section 1 at the end of the first paragraph, the following be added: 'Provided, that the judge of the superior court must summon a grand jury on petition of ten percent of the qualified electors of the district under his jurisdiction.'

[e937337] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move the adoption of the amendment.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second that motion.

[e937344] Mr. Cunniff: I would like to say that this amendment is not the same as the one we had up the other day.

Mr. Lynch: There is but little difference between the two amendments and the one that was submitted the other day was voted upon and defeated by an overwhelming majority and I cannot see why, or the purpose, of hanging this measure up any longer. It will have to be sent back to the Committee on Style, Revision, and Compilation and reported again, and this seems to me to be a great waste of valuable time.

Mr. Baker: My objection to the amendment is that too many petitioners will be required to get a grand jury in some of the superior courts; take Maricopa County, it would take 500 voters to most courts and I do not see any reason for fixing a higher percent.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I have an idea that the reason the amendment to this proposition was defeated the other day was because of dissatisfaction over the percentage, and I thought that those opposed to the amendment might change their vote if the percent was changed. For this reason I have offered the amendment, and I believe that we can secure its passage.

[e937316] Secretary (reading): "Whereas it has been brought to the attention of the Common Council of the City of Phoenix through the public press that the Constitutional Convention now in session at the Territorial Capitol in this city are considering the so-called initiative and referendum provisions of the proposed constitution for the future State of Arizona.

AND WHEREAS, the Common Council of the City of Phoenix feels that a great injustice will be done the citizens and taxpayers of the City of Phoenix if said Constitution is so framed as to give counties control over matters purely affecting the local affairs of any city, town or other subdivision, adhering to the doctrine that in all matters distinctly of a local nature, the people resident there-in and bearing the burdens of government thereof should control, and not non-residents and non-taxpayers, and as the governing body of the City of Phoenix we resent the idea that any person because he happened to be a resident of Maricopa County, although perhaps residing fifty miles distant from the City of Phoenix and knows nothing, or worse still, does not care anything whatsoever, about our local needs or conditions tell us what we must, or must not do or have;

AND WHEREAS the Common Council believe that injustice to the City of Phoenix and its governmental welfare that it should take this means of expressing its protest against county control of its local affairs, to the Constitutional Convention. Now,

Therefore,

THE COMMON COUNCIL of the City of Phoenix, do now resolve as follows:

That it is the sense of this body that it is unqualifiedly opposed to any provision being inserted in the proposed constitution for the future State of Arizona which in any manner extends the control by counties of matters purely affecting local affairs of cities.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a copy of this resolution be delivered, by the City Recorder, to the President of the Constitutional Convention now in session at the Territorial Capitol in the City of Phoenix with the respectful request that the same may have the immediate consideration of the said Convention.

[e937423] Reverend Crutchfield: Once more we come before Thee Oh Lord our great and merciful heavenly Father and once more we ask of Thee for Thy mercies and Thy blessings and for guidance in this great work unto which we are called. Every one of these men from the members of the convention, the clerks and the pages need Thy help and Thy guidance in their labors that they have to perform and therefore we ask Thee Oh Lord to lead us, to take us by the hand for we indeed would place our hands in Thine and beseech Thee for all the blessings that Thou seest that we are in need of, for every task that we are to perform for Thy assistance we would ask. We do acknowledge Thy divinity and Thy mightiness and we are grateful in our hearts for these blessings and with praise for Thy goodness and Thy kindness unto us we do ask that Thy Holy Spirit be with us to lead us aright that we may be ever found doing right and living the lives that Thou wouldst have Thy children live. Grant that these men may write into this Constitution only that which will be for the best good of the people and that they may keep good their pledges unto the people. Now Oh Lord we do ask these blessings in the name of Thy Son, Our only Redeemer. Amen.

[e937745] “Phoenix, Arizona, November 8, 1910. Mr. President: Minority report on Committee Substitute Proposition Number 82, introduced by a minority of the Committee on Judiciary. The undersigned minority of the Standing Committee on Judiciary recommends the adoption of the following Substitute Proposition for majority committee report. (The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 239)

[e937748] Mr. Winsor: I do not think the committee intends to take that course, for if Proposition Number 82 were indefinitely postponed it would carry with it the substitute and all the minority reports, and I think that they intend to have the Substitute Number 82 to come in lieu.

Mr. Cunningham: This is the desire of the committee.

Mr. Winsor: Then I think the proper motion to make would be to adopt the Substitute Proposition in place of Proposition 82.

that these men may not have any selfish motives, or have anything in view of a personal interest. Help them, Lord, to have virtue enough to extend to the other party (the minority or the majority, as the case may be)— that they may have virtue enough to accord to them that which they claim for themselves. May they have nothing in view in this world but the good of the people of this great country, and may this country be a great country after they have framed a constitution. And though the critics are suggesting what they ought to do, and what will become of the country if they do not do this, that, or the other thing. [sic] These critics would like very much to have the places of these men, but they could not fill them, Lord, if they had them. We pray Thee that these men may have faith and grace and courage enough to do the right thing, no difference what the critics may say. We pray Thy blessings upon these men today. They have hard work, both the President, and the Chairman of these committees, and those that have this conference in hand. Help them, Lord, to have clear vision and clear apprehension, and help us to pray, every one of us: Our Father, who are in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name; Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for Thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

[e937673] Mr. Cunniff: I would like to say that I am desirous of attending every committee which I should attend, and sitting as long as the rest of the committee will stay, but I find almost every day there is a conflict. Committees are called to meet apart from the stated hours of those committees. It seems to me we had better have a revision of the schedule of committee meetings, so that a delegate is not prevented from doing his duty.

[e937675] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I believe the work could be expedited if we could have evening sessions, particularly for the purpose of getting the committees together. That is where the work is lagging. It is impossible to set them up here in the afternoon.

[e937707] Reverend Crutchfield: Our gracious Heavenly Father, we thank Thee that so many members of this convention are able to answer to the roll call this morning, and we have no news of any sorrow or misfortune of any of them or any of their loved ones, and we thank Thee that we are privileged to gather here for the business of this convention. We have come to the place where we are expecting something nice and good and crisp and short and pointed, in the way of a constitution. We pray, Lord, that the people shall not be disappointed; that they may have a constitution that will be a credit—that will stand on record for ages to come as a constitution perpetuating good government for a good and useful territory or state. We pray Thy blessing on every member of this constitutional convention. May Thy prosperity come upon all in their callings and professions, and may they be prosperous and happy and have a happy family. We pray for the blessings of God on this Territory and on this incoming state. We pray that this may be one of the greatest and grandest states of the union, inasmuch as we have a good citizenship and a good set of men who are building up this country that it may be more and more inviting to the best class of emigration to come here. We pray upon every man in his work today Thy blessings. There may be some difficulties and perplexities, and we pray they may have light to get through these dark places. We cannot expect perfection from imperfect beings, but we may have relative perfection, and we pray for it, and for the success of this convention until its close. Take hold of our hands and lead us. Hear us in these morning prayers, and forgive us our sins, and after this painful life is ended give us a home in Thy kingdom, where he will praise Thee for ever and ever. Amen.

[e937797] Mr. Cunniff: May I ask for a little explanation of this. I understand that the proposition is incorporated in a report which the judiciary is going to make.

Mr. Crutchfield: A minority report would have been prepared on this subject, but I was assured by the members of the judiciary committee that ample provision for a juvenile court was made, and so a minority report has not been submitted.

Mr. Ingraham: I beg leave on behalf of the minority to file a minority report later on that. The proposition that has been prepared by the judiciary committee does not provide for a juvenile court, and I think this is very important, as are also one or two other propositions of Mr. Keegan on the same line; so I shall put in a minority report.

Mr. Crutchfield: I join in the request.

[Editor's Note: This exchange explains the passage from the Minutes that the minority report was filed later (Minutes, page 151). Only the majority report was presented to the Convention, and in response to its contents, the Convention requested a minority report.]

[e937869] Mr. President: I would like to ask the Committee on Judiciary why, when these propositions were referred there to get an expression of their ideas as to the law on these propositions, that committee being composed of many eminent lawyers, they are sent with the recommendation that they be referred to some committee on which there are no lawyers?

Mr. Cunningham: In explanation, I would like to say that both of these propositions touch on the same matters, and are matters of policy of the state. If it becomes the policy of the state to exempt property such as a homestead from forced sale, the judiciary committee says it can be made constitutional; there are no laws against such an exemption in the constitution. The statutes of the state can deal with it, or it can be made a constitutional provision. The legislative committee is the committee on policy, and we feel that they should decide on the matter whether the constitution should contain such a provision. The judiciary committee feels as if they should not dictate the policy.

[e938216] Reverend Crutchfield: Our gracious Lord, we thank Thee that we have had another Sunday of rest and refreshment and the privilege of going to the House of God to worship without distraction of mind, and that we are privileged this morning, so many of us to answer the roll call, even though it is on the second call. We thank God there are so many of us alive, and that no sorrowful news has reached our ears of any of our loved ones. Now a new week and a new day has dawned upon us, and we have new responsibilities and new obligations. We pray Thee Lord to lead us this day. We have come to the point in the convention now that work shall be dispatched rapidly, and we pray that the men may take the proper time, and that they may have studied so carefully, that they may have thoroughly digested all of the propositions that have come up, so that they may send out a constitution to this State so that the people shall be satisfied and the world shall honor this convention because of the work they do. We pray, therefore, this Monday morning that we may have the privilege of the presence and aid and assistance and comfort of God, so that we shall do the right and be restrained from doing wrong. Let the blessing of God be upon these men and their families from whom they are separated. Let the good hand of God be upon the homes represented here this morning, and may each one be guided in the way of life everlasting. May the very thoughts of these men be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, our strength and our Redeemer. Help us to pray, one and all, from the last Page up to the President of this convention and say: Our Father, who art in Heaven; hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil; for Thine is the Kingdom, and the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

[e938234] The chair recognized the gentleman from Yuma, Mr. Winsor.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege, not in anger nor yet in sorrow, but with a heart full of gratitude. I have been visited most unexpectedly, despite the fact that for two weeks (and I know you all will bear me out in this) I have had practically nothing to say on the floor of this convention, despite that fact that in consideration of matters coming before this body I have contented myself for more than a fortnight with the modest and retiring "aye" or "nay," despite the fact that I have been both willing and eager to leave the sterner [sic] activities of our debates to those abler than myself, I find in a publication known as the "Democrat," published, I believe, somewhere in Arizona, and, Mr. President, I am told that it is published right here in Phoenix, I find the following:

“Mr. Winsor has done more talking and accomplished less than any other individual in the convention, and that is saying a heap. And it is to such pastmasters in the art of indulging in cheap talk that has made this convention the butt of ridicule in Arizona.”

Now, Mr. President, when I explain to you that my constituents in Yuma County sent me here, not only under the impression that I was incompetent, but that I was also absolutely lazy, you will understand why I feel so grateful over the statements contained in this publication. You will understand why I have sent large numbers of this paper home to prove to my constituents that I have at least been doing a lot of talking. I only regret that my ability as a “hot air artist” was not known some few days earlier. In that event I think I could have made a little easy money during our frequent adjournments, serving as a hot air balloon at the Fair Grounds.

This paper pays me further notice, Mr. President, and I find the following:

“Mr. Winsor of Yuma charges that the attitude of the ‘Democrat’ toward his kind of people is due to the influence of Mark Smith and Mr. Ellinwood.”

Now, Lord bless you, Mr. President, I want to absolutely disavow the possession of anything like so low an opinion of Mark Smith, who has so ably and so long represented us in Congress, or of the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Ellinwood, whose ability and whose activities in this convention entitle him a dozen times over to the press notices that have been accorded to myself. (applause) It could not be, Mr. President, that I would lay to the door of Mr. Ellinwood and Mr. Smith responsibility for the ridiculous assertions the “Democrat” has indulged in with respect to this convention in the last few days, since I respect both their judgement and their intelligence.

It may or may not be, Mr. President, a matter of political history, one way or the other, it is a thing of the past, that in matters concerning the Democratic party and the people of Arizona I may have differed with Mr. Smith and Mr. Ellinwood, but, Mr. President, I could not hold them responsible for the undemocratic utterances, for the foolish utterances, for the childish utterances of this paper, for I have never held them to be either fools or knaves.

So far as I am concerned, Mr. President, I have no care in this matter one way or the other. To me it seems a compliment that anyone should be criticized by a publication guilty of the sort of utterances this one has indulged in during the past few days, but I deplore the fact that men elected upon a platform pledged to do certain things, and possessing the courage and the manliness to carry out these promises, should be for that very thing subjected to criticism from one that should be their friend. I do not think it is conducive to good government, Mr. President, that such things are permitted to exist.

We have heard it from the Republican platform, and from various sources (none of which were friendly, or are friendly, to my kind of people, if it please you) that if we carry out our promises we will not get statehood. We have heard these charges until I, for one, am sick of them, and I want to say, Mr. President, that no man craves for himself or his people the boon of statehood more than I. No man [according?] to his ability or opportunity, has labored more zealously, more earnestly, for its consummation than I. No man will rejoice more fervently the day our years of bondage shall be ended than I, but on the day Old Glory floats to the breeze, proclaiming to the world that Liberty has added another jewel to her peerless diadem, I want to know that that jewel,—our jewel,—is the equal in purity and lustre, if not in size, to any other diadem in Liberty's crown. (applause) I want to know that the work of the cutter has left no flaw in this diamond of ours to take away its value, to mar its brilliance and beauty, to keep it from shining through the ages the harbinger of peace and contentment, prosperity and plenty; the vindication of the wisdom and patriotism of the framers of the Declaration of Independence, the exponent of that genuine Democratic principle—equal right for all, special privilege for none. (loud applause)

[e938235] Mr. Parsons: I desire to add just a word to what the gentleman from Yuma has said, although I am not, perhaps, in a position equal to that occupied by him as one who might initiate these remarks, and though I may be possibly accused of putting myself in the position of one subject to the application of that old proverb, "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread," yet, as I believe there are more fools than angels among us, I am going to rush in, and I want to say to you that I want to emphasize every word of the gentleman from Yuma, and call attention to the fact that he has been no more bitterly assailed than has every other member of this convention. In another issue of the paper than that from which he has quoted, I read these words, this paper that bears as its masthead the pennant on which is inscribed, "Arizona Democrat," and it says:

"Thank God, there never will be another gathering in Arizona like the present convention. One dose of this medicine will last this territory for all time."

I think every man within the sound of my voice has a right to say that his indignation is aroused by such an unwarranted statement as this. They have personally assailed Mr. Winsor untruthfully, and they have assailed the convention untruthfully, notwithstanding they have been accorded the privileges of the floor of this hall by the action of this convention, and it forty-one of us, who constitute the great working majority of this convention, have accorded that privilege to the press at large, I say we have a right to expect of a man, or of a corporation, or whatever it may be that controls the destination and policy of such a paper, that we receive at least decent treatment and I say the treatment accorded to us by this paper is indecent.

I regretted very much a few days ago to see a communication in one of the papers as to an assault that had been made upon a member of the minority of this convention, and I talked with my friends then of denying the source of that report the privileges of this floor, and I say now that a paper that pretends to be an unciator [sic, enunciator] of the principles of Democracy should not be permitted the privileges of this floor under such circumstances. (applause) They will probably say, "that is some of Parsons' hot air," but if they do I want to say a little from the other side. There is a Republican paper published in this town, and here is what it said on the same day that this article was printed in the "Democrat:"

"Members of the constitutional convention who are keeping their pledges to the people must be quietly laughing to themselves over the whining of the corporation satellites and the subsidized press. These gentry in their hearts have always been opposed to every measure which means the protection of the people."

Here is the milk in the cocoanut [sic]:

“Corporation tools are doing all in their power to befuddle the members of the constitutional convention, but so far without success.”

That is what the Gazette says. Compare that with what the paper that pretends to be an advocate of Democratic principles, and which do you think is the Democratic paper?

Gentlemen, I say to you that when men who have come here, who are known to have had simply an eye single to the performance of a duty that we hold to be sacred, that of carrying out the instructions of our constituents, when we know that nothing has occurred in the acts of this body to contradict in a single particular any effort on our part to do that, I say, when a paper that pretends to be a Democratic paper voices such miserable libels against the members of this convention, it should be deprived of the privileges of this floor. (applause)

[e938236] Mr. Cunningham regretted that his colleagues had entered upon a defense of their conduct against the charges of the Democrat. Said he: 'The right has grown up in this territory for newspapers to misquote, until now it has become a constitutional right, which we ought not to try to abridge.

[e938250] Reverend Crutchfield: Lord, Thou shalt hear our voices ascending high, to Thee we direct our prayers, to Thee lift up our eye[s]. We lift up our eyes to Thy holy hill from whence cometh our help, for our help cometh from God. All nature this morning rejoices, the trees, the singing birds and the lowing herds are all lifting their voices in praise to God this morning, and we ought, every one of us, to lift our voices in supplication to the God of our salvation this morning and return thanks for our preservation through the night and pray for a continuation of thy mercies over us today. We want to have health and we have it and enjoy it this morning which we thank God. We want these men to be strong in mind and body so that they shall be strong in all that they have to do and do the work gladly and cheerfully and willingly so that our fellow citizens may be blest by what they do, and so send a blessing upon every one of these men in their work. They have toils and cares that some of us do not understand. They need the spirit of God to lead them. Oh Lord, forbid that any one man in this convention should take his cause out of Thy hands and undertake to run this business without the assistance of God. Assist every man in his work so that he shall do it to the great good of our fellow citizens. This morning we all need Thy presence, we need all of us this morning to humbly bow our heads and pray: Our Father Who are in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name; Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, on earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us; Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for Thine is the kingdom, and the power and the glory forever. Amen.

[e939054] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I rise to a point of personal privilege, speaking not in anger, but in disgust.

Thirty years ago, Mr. President, as a smooth faced boy, I came to Arizona. I enjoyed but little schooling, whatever the advancement I may have made has come to me through opportunities like the present, of associating with whom it has done me good to know.

naturedly. But when, through some act of mine, my friends receive undeserved ridicule or harsh criticism, Mr. President, I do resent it.

Yesterday the Graham County delegation received a telegram from a distinguished citizen of Safford in which complaint was made against certain practices of the railroads in matters relating to the shipment of stock, and asking that a clause be put in our constitution protecting future shippers from the same abuse. After consultation with Mr. Jones, the chairman of the committee on railroads, and acting on his suggestion, this telegram was read to the convention and referred to the railroad committee, at which time a member of this convention saw fit to make some sarcastic remarks, but against him I hold no resentment as I feel sure a misapprehension of the facts led him into the error, but I find upon my desk this morning a paper published in this city in which almost a column is devoted to attempted witticism at the expense of the author of this telegram, and the members of this convention.

Now Mr. President, I want to say that writer of that message, George A. Olney, of Safford, is my friend, and I am honored by his friendship. In intellect, in brain power, in good citizenship, in all that goes to make a manly man, George A. Olney towers head and shoulders above the common herd and the manly appeal he makes to you, Mr. President, and to you gentlemen of this convention, is deserving of, and ought certainly to receive courteous treatment and your careful consideration.

I appeal to my friends, Mr. Wills of Pinal, Mr. Colter of Apache, Mr. Pusch of Pima, to bear me out when I say that only a cattle man can possibly know how unjust and unbearable a condition it is to reach a railroad station, as in this case, with thirteen hundred head of steers, expecting to find cars which have been ordered for twenty days, only to find on [sic, no] cars are ready and will be eight or ten days longer; no feed for cattle, storming all the time, cattle stampeding every night, some dying daily, others being killed in the nightly runs, and the expense of holding them fifty to one hundred dollars a day, all due to the negligence of a railroad company, and no possible redress under the law for the owner of the cattle. Mr. President, is it not fitting, is it not timely that this specific, living example of injustice should be called to the attention of this convention that such abuses may not be perpetuated in the state of Arizona?

In conclusion, Mr. President, I want to say that I believe in the honesty, the sincerity, and the wisdom of the members of this convention, and I believe that the result of our efforts here will be the adoption of a constitution that will as nearly as may be, at least, furnish a legal remedy or every wrong. A constitution that will make our state government, in all its branches, local and general, honest, intelligent, and descent, lifting it up and making it an object lesson to the whole nation.

[e939061] Mr. Cunniff: I would just like to explain, as a member of the railroad committee, that when any matter of this kind comes up we make a note of it and try to keep it before us in order that it will have consideration before the committee. I have made a paragraph note of this matter. I think that it will covered by the committee in its regular order.

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I would like to call the secretary's attention that the telegram from Mr. Olney has not yet been referred to the committee on railroads. We desire to write to the man who sent the telegram with regard to the same and it is still our intention to do so. As chairman of that committee I will say that I think that the gentleman has a right in bringing this matter before the convention and it should be given consideration. I would also state that with regard to what the press has to say upon such questions, we should take into consideration the source, however, I would explain that the editor of this paper is a former railroad commissioner and would naturally feel touch on the matter of railroads, but it is the duty of the railroad committee to give a special attention to such matters, and it is our intention to do so regardless of what the press or any former commissioner may say.

Mr. Short: Mr. President, I have been in the same position as the gentleman from Graham. I have experienced the same inconveniences as he has in shipping cattle and know every condition that he has met, but I did not think that this was the place for such matter to be referred. I knew it was impossible for this convention to give such an order and when I made the motion that the cars be furnished I did so in a spirit of fun and did not know that the convention would take any action on the matter. I did not make any remarks that were intended for criticism or ridicule.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I repeat that I acquit the gentleman from Yuma, from the fact that I think he was laboring under a misapprehension of the facts. The telegram was sent and presented so that something might be done in this convention to provide protection to the businessmen of this territory who are deserving of such a measure to protect their interests from the outrages.

come, They will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us, and suffer us not to be led into temptation but deliver us from evil, for thine is the Kingdom, and the power and the Glory, forever, Amen.

[e939599] Mr. President: [...] Petitions, Memorials and Remonstrances. Reports of standing committees? If we cannot get reports on these propositions we are going to be crowded for time, and I am going to suggest that tomorrow we will expect a report from each of these committees.

[e939601] Mr. Cobb: I move that we take a recess until 2 o'clock to enable these committees to have a morning session. These sessions have run up to 11 o'clock and 11:30 o'clock. In the afternoon sessions when we adjourn everyone feels tired and does not feel like working on a committee.

[e939605] Mr. President: Gentlemen, do you think if you take a recess until 2 o'clock you will be able to report tomorrow morning on these committees?

Mr. Winsor: Would it not be worth while to find out if some committees are prepared to have a meeting?

Mr. President: I will ask the chairman of committee number 8 on state and school lands. The chairman of that committee is not here.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I can speak for the committee on suffrage and elections. We will have the final report this afternoon if we adjourn this morning.

Mr. President: There is committee number 8 on state and school lands. That is an important committee and has never made a report, and there is number 10 on private corporations and banks. When are they going to report?

Mr. Roberts: Committee number 10 will be able to report this afternoon.

Mr. Feeney: I want to hear from the Committee on State and School Lands.

Mr. President: How about committee number 11?

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): We had our railroad proposition ready to present three weeks ago, and it was then decided that provision should be made for public service corporations and railroads combined, and sub-committees were appointed. It was impossible to get them together last week, but we will have our proposition ready to submit this afternoon, and we do not require any adjournment.

Mr. President: I will ask committee number 12.

Mr. Orme: If we can get together for half an hour we can make our report, but it has been impossible for us to get together.

Mr. President: State and school lands. I would like to know when they are going to report.

Mr. Coker: Just as soon as we can get the members away from other committees.

Mr. President: We will have to have it tomorrow morning.

Mr. Coker: Day after tomorrow. If the legislative committee and judiciary committee get through their propositions we can get our members together long enough to make our report.

[e939607] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): At the night session we had the other night almost everyone admitted that more was accomplished in that meeting than we had accomplished at any one session before. I, therefore, move that commencing with tonight we have night sessions until the work is completed.

Mr. Feeney: I second the motion.

[e939611] Mr. President: The chair will put it in this way that you hold a night session by motion each day.

[e939613] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I move that when we adjourn this afternoon we adjourn to meet at 7:30 this evening.

[e939616] Mr. Osborn: I would like to call the attention of the members to the fact that Dr. McCormack has invited the constitutional convention to be present at his lecture tonight, and it would probably be of great benefit to hear him.

Mr. Moeur: I think it would be a great benefit to Arizona if we get through with this convention and let the doctor lecture next year.

[e939618] Mr. President: The question, gentlemen, is that this afternoon when the convention takes a recess it will be until 7:30 p.m. Those in favor will signify by saying "aye;" those opposed "no."

Mr. Cunniff: It seems to me that this is hardly the proper time to vote on that, for we may not have a great deal to do tonight. Every day should take care of itself, and when we adjourn we can decide.

Mr. President: I think the suggestion of the gentleman from Yavapai is well taken.

[e939620] Mr. Ellinwood: I move that we adjourn until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

[e939623] Mr. Baker: Before that motion is put I would like to inquire what committee has charge of the preparation of a bill for the special election of the election under the Enabling Act.

Mr. President: Mr. Ingraham is on that committee.

Mr. Baker: That is going to be one of the most difficult propositions.

[e948446] Mr. President: The chair will declare that the motion to take a recess until tonight will be out of order, and the motion to adjourn until 2 o'clock will be in order.

[Editor's Note: Although the President rules that the motion to recess is out of order, the Minutes record that the Convention stood at recess until 2 p.m. Moreover, the President's comment that the members 'stay here and work' suggests it was indeed recess because business could be conducted in recess but not during an adjournment.]

[e948447] Mr. Standage: I would like to inquire what has become of the militia and public defense committee, and if they have made a report?

Mr. Tuthill: The gentleman from Greenlee wishes to state to the convention that he is still here.

[e939624] Mr. President: Those in favor of taking a recess until 2 o'clock will answer "aye;" those opposed "no." The "ayes" have it. This afternoon I hope all these committees will be able to report so that we can do good and effective work. I want these important committees to have a meeting.

[e939628] Mr. Winsor: I wish that the president would suggest that no member leave the building so that they will be here if they are wanted.

Mr. President: I think that is a good suggestion too. Everybody stay here and work.

Convention stood at recess until 2 p.m.

[e940993] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I can explain that very briefly. The proposition starts off with this statement: “The boundaries of the State of Arizona shall be as follows: ... , and then there is a paragraph that begins “all of the portion of the territory of Arizona included within the following limits, namely: ... .” Of course all of the territory within the following limits are not the boundaries of Arizona. [e939730] Reverend Crutchfield: Our gracious heavenly Father we are commanded to always pray and to pray for all men everywhere, and this day we do lift up our voices in prayer for all men and for all people, but we especially pray for guidance this day among the men of this convention, those who have the making an arranging for a new state government, that they may have the great cause of liberty at heart and that they may be Godly men, men who love all mankind and will take no action save it be for the good of the people. We pray that they may be men who will do something, men who have the interests of the state above all other interests and will seek only to adopt such measures as will be for the greatest among of good for all the people of the state. Oh Lord we have come to place in this work where men are being tried and where they have many questions to decide and we pray Thee to give them wisdom and guidance in this work. We have learned somewhere that when men do love their God and do call upon his name in Faith and with humble hearts, that they are lifted up to a higher and better life and now Oh Lord in this manner we do approach Thee and we do thank Thee for all Thy favors and blessings to us in the past and for the blessing of health and happiness. We thank Thee that Thou hast spared the lives of these men and blessed them in their business affairs at home and in the health of their families, that no great sickness or sorrow has come to them, and we ask of Thee that Thy blessings shall so continue upon the men of this Convention, until their work is finished and throughout all the time and we ask these blessings all in the name of our Jesus, our Redeemer, Amen.

[e939739] The sergeant at arms announced that Mr. Tovrea, Mr. Wells and Mr. Cunniff had taken their seats.

[e942462] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, we will take up the work where we left off, that of the recommendation of the committee of the whole on Proposition Number 141.

Mr. Feeney: As a member of the labor committee, I am willing to admit that the discussions we have heard have brought out a great deal of light upon the labor law that we did not anticipate, and Proposition Number 141 is not what we want exactly, nor is Number 127. It is something like this: You can and you cannot; you will and you won't; you'll be damned if you do and you'll be damned if you don't. We would be glad to have it referred back.

[Editor's Note: The Records' reference to Proposition Number 127 is a mistake and should read Proposition Number 137. Proposition Number 127 regards water rights and is never referred to the Committee on Labor.]

[e942468] [Editor's Note: Though the recommendation on Proposition Number 137 had not formally come up for discussion, the Convention decided to re-refer it alongside Proposition Number 141, for which reason, the editors have proposed the Committee of the Whole recommendation at this point. In re-referring the proposition, the Convention rejects the Committee recommendation.]

(Editorial)

[e942469] [Editor's Note: In considering the Committee of the Whole's recommendation, the Convention considered the suggested amendments to Proposition Number 137.]

(Editorial)

[e942466] Mr. Cunniff: I move that those propositions be referred back to the Committee on Labor.

Mr. Feeney: I second that motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 461)

[e942467] The motion prevailed.

[e942472] Mr. President: Proposition Number 134.

[e942473] Mr. Parsons: I move that Proposition Number 134 be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Baker: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 461)

[e942474] The motion prevailed.

[e942475] Mr. President: Proposition Number 48 should be adopted as amended.

[e942476] [Editor's Note: By considering the Committee of the Whole's recommendation, the Convention considered the suggested amendments to Proposition Number 48.]

(Editorial)

[e942477] Mr. Parsons: I move that it be adopted.

[e942478] Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I want to say one word about this matter. I believe that what appears before the words "state, county or municipal works;" is unconstitutional. I do not believe that you can provide that no one except Americans can be employed to work upon any state, county or municipal labor. An employer, or a corporation or a firm has the right to say who shall not work, but this bill I believe will be voted unconstitutional, and I believe just as my colleague said "That it may be impossible to secure American labor," and I move an amendment by striking out the words "county and municipal works."

[e942479] Mr. President: I would like to ask the gentleman from Maricopa if we have a law providing for labor on public highways? Under this law it would be impossible to do so.

Mr. Baker: The whole bill is bad and I do not think it should go in at all.

Mr. Cunniff: I question the belief that this is unconstitutional. If this is reasonable at all the labor would be directed by the state, and the work could be done only by the power of the state. I do not think it could be called unconstitutional to protect its own laborers or American labor. I do not think there would be any need to fear a shortage of American labor if they would give the right salary. If this were the case they could always secure citizen labor where now they are compelled to take the cheaper labor of Mexicans and other foreigners. I would renew my motion found in the brackets of the proposition, but I will wait to offer an amendment until I hear from the gentleman from Maricopa county.

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): Mr. President, I would like to hear the gentleman from Maricopa explain just what difference he finds in the word "works" and "work."

Mr. Baker: There is no explanation.

Mr. Moeur: We have again come to a question which seems to me to be unconstitutional. If you want to strike out these words and there is no employment excepted this is borrowing from the immigration department and it is unconstitutional.

Mr. Bolan: It seems to me this gentleman's argument that there is no labor or employment that should be withheld from aliens and that there are not enough laborers without aliens is a mistaken contention. I have had a great deal of experience in this territory and I have never found a scarcity of American labor if you will pay then the right price for their labor. I do not think it would work a hardship on anyone if this proposition were adopted as it is, and I for one am perfectly willing that this bill should pass.

[Editor's Note: Though Cunniff speaks to his intention to move an amendment in the brackets of the proposition, that text does not survive.]

[e942494] Mr. Franklin: It seems to me, or I would suggest that it should read, "No persons except those who are taxed."

Mr. Bolan: I accept the amendment.

[e942482] Mr. Baker: I would accept that but I still believe that the first amendment should carry.

Mr. Orme: I second that motion.

[e942483] Mr. President: It has been moved and seconded that in line 3, we strike the words "county and municipalities."

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): Mr. President, this bill simply means nothing.

Mr. Baker: I move to strike out the words "counties and municipalities" and leave in the words "state works and employment."

Mr. President: Gentlemen, do you now understand the amendment?

Mr. Connelly: I do not think that there will ever be any trouble in the securing of American labor, for if there are wages sufficient to the needs there will be workmen. (applause) If there are offers of only \$.00 per day then you will need the cheap laborer, but if you will pay the citizen the right amount of wages you never need fear the scarcity of workmen.

[e942484] Mr. President: Gentlemen, you have heard the amendment offered by Mr. Baker, to strike out the words "counties and municipalities." Those in favor of the motion answer "aye;" those opposed "nay." The secretary will call the roll.

Roll call showed 20 "ayes" and 25 "nays."

Mr. President: The amendment is lost. Did the gentleman wish to make an amendment?

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 462-463)

[e942485] Mr. Cunniff: I am convinced that the gentleman from Cochise is right, and I withdraw the amendment I first mentioned.

[Editor's Note: Though Cunniff speaks to his intention to move an amendment in the brackets of the proposition, that text does not survive.]

[e942486] Mr. President: I suggest that Mr. Bolan make the amendment suggested by Mr. Franklin "excepting Indians not taxed."

Mr. Bolan: I move that in the first line, after the word "persons," the words "Indians not taxed" be inserted.

[e942487] Mr. Cunniff: I beg to say that amendment covers a class of people who are under government protection and are not citizens, and I think it is a useless provision.

Mr. Moeur: Half of the men pay no taxes and you cannot discriminate between working men who do and who do not in this matter.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, these Indians are government wards, and are provided for in every respect, and I am opposed to being placed on an equality with them. They are granted large portions of land or reservations and provided with livestock and I, myself, have driven thousands of head of cattle to them as a gift from the government, and they give no care nor do the cattle profit them anything, where if they were the property of citizens they would increase the population ten fold, and just so with their land, they do not improve it, but make desert land out of that which the American citizen would make a garden, and when it comes to placing them on an equality with the American citizens, I am opposed to the measure.

[e942488] Mr. President: What will you do with Proposition Number 48?

Mr. Bolan: I move the adoption of Proposition Number 48.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

Mr. President: Gentlemen, it has been moved and seconded that Proposition Number 48 be adopted.

[e942489] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I would call the attention of the members to the fact that this will prohibit officers of the penitentiary from making convicts work as they are no longer citizens of the United States. I think that the committee adopted the proviso that I made.

[e942490] Mr. Short: I rise to a point of order, this is entirely out of the question.

[e942491] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): Mr. President, I rise to a point of order. If my memory is correct, the proposition was read and passed yesterday.

[e942492] Mr. President: The secretary will call the roll on the amendment.

[e942493] Mr. President: The secretary will call the roll on the amendment.

[e942495] Mr. Cassidy: Mr. President, I move the amendment that it include, after the word "citizens" the word "ward." That is purely class legislation and I am opposed to class legislation.

[e939804] Reverend Crutchfield: O Lord, our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee that on this bright Monday morning there are so many of us permitted to answer roll call as we enter upon the duties of another week and another day. We thank Thee for the spiritual strength that we got during the day yesterday for rest and refreshment for our souls to be refreshed and our minds to be relieved from, the burden and tension and strain of business, and this morning we come into Thy presence in the beginning of the service and the session of the convention with clear minds and happy hearts and cheerful dispositions to do the work which is before us this day. Now Lord, we pray that these men who have failed to answer roll call this morning may not fail to be ready to answer roll call at the great time when all men shall be called upon to answer for their work done in this world. We pray Thy blessings upon these men that they may have clear perceptions of duty and truth, and clear apprehension of that which they ought to do and may they do it with the hope that it shall be a great blessing to this country. We thank Thee for the hope that we have that some day this world will become like that which was prayed for and prophesied by a great prophet of old when the desert shall blossom as the rose. We pray that these men may have in their hearts and minds a disposition to bring about this great transformation, and to this end help them to formulate such laws as will be conducive to the extension of this very thing that was prayed for and hoped for. Let Thy blessing come upon us all. We need each and every one of us this morning to pray the words that Thou hast taught us to say: Our Father which are in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil; for Thine is the Power, and the Kingdom, and the Glory forever and ever. Amen.

[e940116] D.L. Cunningham, Chairman of the Committee on Judiciary, made the following report:

Phoenix, Arizona, November 21, 1910.

Mr. President:

Your Committee on Judiciary begs leave to report it has examined Proposition No. 50 as amended and respectfully recommends that said amended Proposition No. 50 be further amended by striking out the last sentence to-wit: the words "any contract or argument to waive any right to recover damages for death or injury shall be void," for the reason said words if adopted in this Constitution would limit the rights of contract and deny to persons injured the equal protection of the law and therefore be in conflict with the Constitution of the United States and take away the liberty of the people if valid.

We further recommend that as amended said Proposition do pass.

D.L. CUNNINGHAM,

Chairman.

We concur: A.C. Baker, J. Weinberger, A.F. Parsons, E.E. Ellinwood, Alfred Franklin, S.S. Keegan.

[e940179] Mr Short, Chairman of Committee on Printing and Clerks made the following report:

Phoenix, Arizona, November 21, 1910.

Mr. President: The work of the Convention having reached the point where there is very little necessity for Committee Clerks and various other employees, a needless expense of forty or fifty dollars per day is being incurred for employees who have no duties to perform, and the efficiency of some clerks is being impaired on account of idleness on the part of others, the Committee on Printing and Clerks recommends that the services of not less than five Committee Clerks be dispensed with.

E.L. Short, Chairman. F.A. Jones, Wm. F. Cooper

[e940188] Mr. Short: Mr. President, I move the adoption of the committee report.

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I second the motion.

Mr. Webb: I did not hear the reading of the report. I was busy. I do not care to have it re-read as I can get from the remarks of the gentleman just speaking an idea of its contents. I desire to say that there are [a] number of these clerks and employees who came quite a distance, had their railroad fares to pay and will have to pay their railroad fare when they return home. One or two came from California on wire messages, although I believe they are residents of Arizona, but happened to be in Los Angeles, and for this reason it would be very unjust certainly, and so far as I know an unheard of thing to throw them out of employment at this time.

Mr. Short: The position that these gentlemen have taken in regard to these employees is probably all right from their standpoint, but I do not believe that any pension was promised anybody in connection with this constitutional convention, and if they were looking at it from the point of the printing and clerks committee they would take a different view. If they knew how difficult it is to get anything done by some of these clerks, they would realize how necessary it is to dispense with some of them who have absolutely no duties assigned to them because there is nothing to assign, and those who have duties to perform and who are behind in their work and who are willing to do what is right in order to earn their per diem say they do not see why they should be required to work their full time when there are others doing absolutely nothing. You cannot blame these employees for not wanting to do a full days' work when there are others who have nothing to do and do nothing, and from our point of view we think it is absolutely necessary that a number of these clerks be dispensed with or something furnished for them to do.

Mr. Morgan: Mr. President, when I sent for a clerk who is here from Navajo county I was given to understand that he would be given employment as long as the convention lasted, and I would hate to see him sent home until he got through, and I want to say this: if it is the purpose to discharge some of the clerks it is going to mean a lot of argument here, and some of the papers figure it costs us about seventy-six cents a minute to run this convention and we will use up more wealth than it will take to pay these clerks, so I move the report be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): There is a motion seconded before the house, Mr. Chairman, and I want to say in its support that if it does not carry and this convention wants their work done, when the committee will ask leave to be allowed to suggest to these unnecessary clerks that they refrain from visiting the capitol.

Mr. Osborn: Have we any unnecessary employees?

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): Yes, sir.

Mr. Osborn: I have been around in Congress in Washington and also the legislature here, and here everyone seems willing to work. And I have asked a number of the different clerks to do things for me and they have always done them willingly.

Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, I am sure that I fully appreciate the spirit in which the suggestion is made, but I think it is a mistake. I think the session is not very much longer now, and from now on when you have the compilation and revision and the writing and re-writing of this constitution you will need your clerks, and it is my prediction if you let some of these clerks go now this body will be appointing more clerks before the session is finished.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I would request the committee on printing and clerks to send me one or two of these unnecessary clerks.

Mr. Short: Mr. President, there is certain work on books and certain work that must be done and that can only be done by a limited number. There are two shifts now that are working on these books. Some of the clerks are doing nothing and the others feel that they are doing the work and getting paid for just what the others should be doing.

Mr. Connelly: Mr. President, I believe the clerks have some say-so in this matter. I believe before anybody is discharged they should be given a certain notice, and I believe they should be given fifteen days notice. (applause)

[e940201] Mr. President: Those in favor of adopting the report will signify by saying "aye;" opposed "no." The motion is lost.

"Whereas, the office of the doorkeeper of this Convention has become vacant through the resignation of W.H. Whitesides of Santa Cruz County is so peculiarly well fitted by education and experience to fill this position with credit to himself and honor to this Convention, therefore be it resolved that the said B.J. I have been in sessions of the legislature with him and at other times he has been sergeant-at-arms of the legislature, and the height of his ambition is to be connected in some way with this convention. It was a great disappointment to him to have a Republican elected in Santa Cruz at this time, and I hope that every member of the convention will vote for Mr. Whitesides to fill the vacant place by Mr. Whitesides. We will not ask for any roll call on this question. Any Democratic member of this convention who votes against the proposition we will know it by the blushes on his cheek.

We would not undertake this day's work until we have put ourselves under the control of the spirit. Control every expression of our lips, and every implementation of our minds. We pray Thee to give direction today to all that is said or done or thought by any of this constitutional convention membership so that they shall have the spirit of Almighty God in the work they have in mind. We pray they may have nothing but the glory of God and the love of their fellows in every pen that is driven, and every word spoken,

To pray Thy blessing on the men in the midst of this weekly work, and when we are all done with the turmoil of human life may we have a happy admittance to the Kingdom, we pray Thee in the Great Redeemer's name. [e941769] Mr. Cunniff: "Mr. President: Your Committee of the Whole begs leave to report and recommend as follows:

That it has had under consideration Substitute Proposition Number 15 and recommends that it do pass as amended.

Proposition Numbers 44, 73,100, 41, 95 and recommend that they be indefinitely postponed.

Substitute Propositions Numbers 125, 58, 50 and recommend that they be adopted as amended.

Proposition Number 72 and recommend that it be adopted.

Proposition Number 47 and recommend that it do pass as amended in the minority report.

Propositions Numbers 42, 46, 120,30, 111,51,117 and recommend that consideration be postponed until Substitute Proposition Number 21 is before the Committee of the Whole.

Proposition Number 108 and that it do pass.

Proposition Number 91 and that it do pass as amended.

That consideration of Proposition Number 28 and Memorial Number 1 be deferred until Substitute Proposition Number 78 is before Committee of the Whole.

Substitute Proposition Number 88 and that as amended it do pass."

[Editor's Note: The Committee report as recorded in both the Records and the Minutes lists recommendations on Propositions Numbers 58 and 120. This is likely a mistake, as the Committee considered neither of these propositions in this session. Furthermore, Proposition Number 120 was indefinitely postponed on November 1, 1910, and Substitute Proposition Number 58 was not reported to the Convention by the Committee on Public Service Corporations until November 23, 1910. It seems likely that '120' was a mistake for '128,' which was taken up and postponed during this session, but does not appear in the report, whilst '58' was simply mistakenly inserted.]

Mr. Franklin: I second the motion.

[e943507] Mr. President: I would like to say to the chairman of the committees, with the exception of the committee on revision, that I would like to have them all have their reports in tomorrow.

[e941675] There was considerable more than a quorum at the night session, which was opened by Mr. Osborn rising to a question of personal privilege on behalf of himself and the whole convention.

He said: "Before we go into a committee of the whole, I arise on a question (I do not know whether you would call it a question of personal privilege or not), but I arise to correct an error that has been made, printed and spread broadcast over the land. In Collier's Weekly under date of November 26th, which reached Phoenix today, appears a picture of this convention and accompanying the picture is a short article in which, among other things, appears the following: 'the body consists of fifty-two members, forty-one of whom are republicans and eleven democrats.'

"Now, Mr. President, whether a majority, a large majority, of the members of this convention are democrats or republicans or whether a small number are democrats and a large number republicans, does not mean anything to us because when each and every member here came into this convention I believe he forgot that he was a republican or democrat. (Applause.) He remembered that he was here to make a constitution, not for the democratic party, not for the republican party, not for the socialism prohibition, union labor or any other party, but that he came here to make a constitution for the people of Arizona, irrespective of political affiliations.

"But, Mr. President, the fact remains that the republicans in nearly every county of this territory (in all except two, I believe) fought the principles of direct legislation from every platform, every stump and at every opportunity, and the democrats, who stood for the principles known as the initiative, referendum and recall were elected by an overwhelming majority. They were elected because they stood for the principle that the people should rule.

"Let me say to you, Mr. President, that we have a democratic majority that is not only a democratic majority, but a progressive democratic majority.

"Mr. President, Collier's Weekly was in error when it stated that the republicans had 41 members and the democrats 11. The true facts of the case are, as we all know, that the democrats have 41 members and the stand-pat republicans but 11, and, knowing that Collier's Weekly goes into every city, town, district, and hamlet of this great nation, therefore, in the interest of progression, in the interest of true democracy, I believe the president of this convention should appoint a committee to draw up a resolution to be sent to Collier's Weekly and other papers of this country telling them that the convention that is drawing up the constitution for the new state of Arizona contains not only an overwhelmingly democratic majority, but an overwhelmingly progressive democratic majority, and is a convention that stands for the initiative, referendum and recall; that stands for a rule of the people and for the people." (Applause.)

[e941676] Mr. Ellinwood: I think the Republicans are the ones that have the kick coming.

Mr. Cooper: I just want to say for the Republicans without consultation that they will join in the gentleman's request. We will not only join, but we will assist in every way in our power.

Mr. Osborn: That simply bears out that the Republicans in this convention are fighting the initiative and referendum and do not believe in the recall by the people.

Mr. President: I think if Collier's Weekly had their attention called to this they would make a correction.

[e941677] Mr. Kingan: I will say that they will be notified without any committee.

[e941695] Mr. President: Petitions, Memorials and Remonstrances.

Secretary (reading): "Resolution Number 16. Resolved that the secretary is authorized and hereby instructed to request of the director of the census the enumerated population of the several counties of the Territory of Arizona, exclusive of Indians not taxed." Introduced by Mr. Lamar Cobb.

[e941699] Mr. Cobb: I move the adoption of the resolution.

Mr. Webb: I second the motion.

[e941704] Mr. Cobb: I hardly think it is necessary to explain why that should be adopted. Some members claim the total population as published includes Indians not taxed.

Mr. Winsor: That is for the purpose of keeping the apportionment business open.

Mr. Parsons: As suggested by the gentleman from Yuma, if this is for the purpose of continuing the question of apportionment, while I took no part in the debate on that matter yesterday, I simply want to say that inasmuch as the members of Congress who prepared the Enabling Act evidently had some knowledge of the conditions of Arizona, and instead of basing the representation in this convention upon population, they based it upon the vote cast at the last election, and as our committee fixed this apportionment on the same plan and followed the precedent established by Congress in making this apportionment, I think we ought not to adopt any resolution to continue this disturbance.

Mr. Cobb: I beg to call attention to the fact that Congress did not at that time have the population of the various counties of Arizona, and I see no objection to our ascertaining their population.

Mr. Parsons: As to this fact, I beg to say the gentleman from Graham is correct. They knew we had Indians and a number of people who could count cholera plague victims and very little else, enumerated the census. I give Congress credit for that, and I believe they acted wisely and well, and we would do well and act wisely to follow their example.

[e941712] Mr. President: So much time was taken up with roll calls yesterday when there was no necessity. Call the roll, Mr. Secretary.

[e944317] On motion of Mr. Connelly, seconded by Mr. Webb, Propositions Nos. 34, 142, 25, 81, 109, 36, 38, 49, 77, 42, 46, 128, 30, 111, 51, 84, 32, 87, 85, indefinitely postponed.

[Editor’s Note: Propositions Number 117 and the Communication from the Common Council of Phoenix are not listed in the Minutes as indefinitely postponed at this point, but as they are named in the Records and are not mentioned again, the editors have concluded that these documents were indeed indefinitely postponed.]

[e944332] Mr. President: [...] The question comes up on the indefinite postponement of all these bills. Those in favor of indefinitely postponing propositions that have just been read by Mr. Connelly will answer “aye;” opposed “no.” The “ayes” have it, and it is so ordered.

make mistakes and do not do everything we should." Send Thy blessings on the men as they are gathered here. We need Thee every hour, most gracious Lord, and while our faith looks up to Thee, Thou lamb of Calvary, we pray Thee that we may put our trust in Thee. Send Thy blessing upon the homes of these men, their wives and children and their home interests. May the Good Father take care of them in their business. Guide us along life's perilous journey, and at the end lead us into Thy Kingdom. Amen.

[e942257] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, the minutes, owing to the holiday, have not been written up, and we will have to dispense with them this morning. We will probably have them after the noon hour. I would also state to the members of the convention that we have been changing one of our phones and put [it] in my office, so when any member wants to use it privately he is at liberty to do so. There are some bills on third reading, before going into committee of the whole, it might be better to dispose of them.

Mr. Webb: I move the rules be suspended and we put them on third reading.

[e942260] Mr. Winsor: Would it not be a good idea to do some other work, and wait until the members are all here before we have the third readings? I do not know what is coming up, but it seems to me we ought to have as full attendance as possible on third readings.

[e942261] Mr. Webb: I did not think about that.

Mr. President: As the order of the day in the committee of the whole we will take up what was left of the work of the 24th, being in all 12 propositions.

[e942854] Mr. President: [...] Reading of the minutes.

[e942858] Minutes read and approved.

[e942888] Mr. Cunningham: Mr. President, I move that we suspend the rule requiring a proposition to lay on the desk of members one day, as we have a number of printed copies of propositions on our desk, and the secretary has a calendar made up undated, with which he will be able to supply the members. This will greatly expedite the work of the convention, if the members so desire. I move that the rules be suspended.

[Editor's Note: The Minutes specify that Parsons seconds the motion.]

[e942891] Mr. President: If there is no objection, it will be so ordered.

[e942970] Mr. Cunniff: Under the order of the day I should like to take up a little matter. I want to put before the convention a suggestion for a seal, which has been suggested by Mr. E.E. Motter of Phoenix. I have the report of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation concerning another design of seal submitted to us, with the recommendation that the design be accepted. On this matter it may be of interest if I read some data which has been furnished by the Arizona historian, Miss Hall:

[e942975] Mr. Cunniff: [...] The following extract from "Adventures in Apache Country, a Tour Through Arizona and Sonora," by J. Ross Browne, published by Harper and Brothers in 1869 will also be of interest: (page 27) "Let us take a look at the official seal of the Territory designed by Mr. Secretary McCormick: An honest miner stands with his left hand in his pocket feeling for the profits of his day's labor. The expression of his countenance is indicative of a serious frame of mind; he gazes into the future, and sees gold and silver a long way off. His spade stands ready to dig it and his wheelbarrow to wheel it. As yet he has struck nothing very rich, but it will come by and by. In the background you see the two prominent peaks of Bill Williams' mountain, where he contemplates prospecting next year; or possibly these may be dirt piles which he has already thrown up, and not yet washed for lack of water. The appropriate motto is 'Ditat Deus.'" In reference to this seal there is a pun. "'God reigns' in Arizona—even in dry weather." Now it has been taken for granted that this motto means "God reigns," but I have looked up the meaning of this verb and find the meaning is "enriches." I would move that the matter be referred to some appropriate committee.

[e942979] Mr. Winsor: I move you that the chair appoint a select committee of three to investigate this matter of a seal.

Mr. Cunniff: I second that motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 651)

[e942982] The motion prevailed.

[e942986] The Chair announced the committee would be appointed later.

[Editor's Note: Because the the delegates were in the plenary session at this point, rather than the Committee of the Whole, the Minutes err in referring to the Chair here. It was more likely the Hunt, the president of the Convention, speaking.]

[e942988] Mr. President: We have some propositions to come up for third reading. Do the gentlemen want third readings? Objection was made this morning that not all were here.

Mr. Weinberger: I move we proceed with the third reading.

[e942994] Mr. President: If there is no objection, we will proceed with the third reading.

[e943007] Mr. Winsor: There is nothing on the calendar. We have no calendar for third reading, and we have no way of knowing what is coming up. The rules require a calendar.

Mr. President: The secretary will read the propositions up for third reading.

[e943098] Secretary (reading): Proposition Number 47, introduced by Mr. Parsons, of Cochise County, relative to labor contracts.

[e943107] Mr. President: Third reading of the proposition. Those in favor of the proposition will answer "aye" as their names are called, and those opposed will answer "no." The secretary will call the roll. This is on third reading.

[e943108] Roll call showed 32 "ayes" and 12 "nays."

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

[e943132] Mr. President: The proposition is passed. It will be referred to the committee on compilation.

[e943175] Secretary (reading): Proposition Number 108, introduced by Mr. Bradner of Cochise County, relative to elections.

[e943177] Mr. President: Third reading of the proposition. Those in favor of the proposition will answer “aye” as their names are called; those opposed “no.”

[e943179] Mr. Cunniff: I should like to say a word: I was in the chair in the committee of the whole when this was taken up, and there was very little discussion about the matter. Now, if it is true that under the direct primary law, provision has been made in other state requiring a fee to go in with the petition for placing names of candidates on ballots, this is done for the purpose of checking the sending in of the names of irresponsible people who are not really candidates, and to prevent jocular petitions, but not for the purpose of stopping bona fide nominations. I happened to live in the State of Wisconsin the year the first direct primary law was passed there and the matter of requiring a fee seemed at that time a very wise provision to keep irresponsible persons from loading up the ballot. It seems to me that the whole business might be left to the legislature as to whether or not to demand a fee.

Mr. Bradner: I think it has been already decided a primary election is not an election; therefore that would not apply.

Mr. Parsons: If the gentleman from Yavapai is sincere, as I believe he is, and if he wants this money or property qualification in order to prevent those who are not bona fide candidates, I think the only way is to require a certain number of persons to sign the petition. I think that is true now of the primary election law we have, and I think it is a very wise provision, and does not smack anything of a property qualification for voting, and I would be very much more in favor of a petition of a certain number of voters in the district to be represented by the candidates rather than have a property qualification.

Mr. Cunniff: I think the points made by both the gentlemen are good, and I thank them for the advice.

[e943181] Mr. President: Call the roll. Those in favor will answer “aye;” opposed “no.”

Roll call showed 42 “ayes” and 2 “nays.”

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 652)

[e943191] Referred to Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation.

[e943260] Secretary (reading): Proposition Number 72, introduced by Mr. Ellinwood.

[e943266] Mr. President: Third reading of the proposition. Those in favor of the proposition will answer "aye" as their names are called; those opposed "no." The secretary will call the roll.

[e943268] Mr. Franklin: With reference to Proposition Number 72, in my opinion it is absolutely repugnant to the employer's liability act passed by this convention, and if this is adopted it absolutely does away with it, in my opinion. I therefore vote no.

Mr. Orme: I have the same objection to this bill as has Mr. Franklin, and that it is absolutely uncalled for. I therefore vote no.

[e943270] Roll call showed 26 "ayes" and 17 "nays."

Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, I will have to declare this proposition lost. There are only 26 votes for it.

[e944505] Secretary (reading): Proposition Number 140, introduced by Mr. Keegan, relative to juvenile courts.

[e944514] Roll call showed 46 "ayes" and no "nays."

Mr. President: The proposition has passed.

[e944534] Referred to Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation.

approval by an aye and nay vote of the majority of the members elected to the constitutional convention. Now reading from the beginning of the rule, which traces the progress of propositions from the beginning to the end, you will find that this requirement is not invoked until after the constitution has been compiled by the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation and is to be at that time taken up section by section. It is at this stage of the game that each proposition must receive the approval of a majority of the members elected. Each adoption before that is merely a tentative adoption; but upon the final reading and adoption it shall be necessary for a proposition to have the votes of a majority of the members elected. Now it can be readily seen that if this rule applied as it has been construed by the chair, the absences of a few members might defeat a proposition when the majority favored it; so I think, in the interest of justice, that this proposition should be considered as tentatively adopted, and come up in its proper order after it has been reported by the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation. I can state positively that it was the intention of the committee on rules to make the requirement in question apply only to the final roll call, after the completed constitution has been referred to and compiled by the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation. Then each section must be considered separately, and any section that does not receive the vote of a majority of the members elected is not a part of the constitution.

[e944544] Mr. Franklin: Mr. President, I may be in error about this, but it was my idea concerning these rules when I recommended their adoption that this applied to third reading. In order to be finally adopted this proposition should receive a majority vote of the members elected to this constitutional convention.

Mr. Winsor: I would like to call the attention of the gentleman from Maricopa to the fact that this is not final adoption. This is merely tentative adoption, and the proposition is still subject to amendment. It would be a poor rule that would not work both ways, and it can easily be seen if this proposition were not subject to amendment at this time, by the same rule if it received at this time a majority of votes it could not afterwards be taken out of the constitution. Now it certainly can be removed from the constitution by a majority vote at any time afterward until the constitution is finally adopted, and therefore it should be allowed to go in if it receives a majority vote at this time.

Mr. Franklin: I am not clear from the discussion as to the powers of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation. My understanding when I agreed to these rules was this: That when propositions were finally adopted by this convention, they were to be submitted to the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, if it should be the sense of a majority of the elected members. That after that it was referred to the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, if it should be the sense of a majority of the elected members. That after that it was referred to the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation to correct sentences, verbiage, and those little details we are not especially concerned with, so that it should preserve the sense of this convention. I do not conceive it, sir, that this Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation can take the law we have adopted and change it in its sense or meaning, but it must be as we have adopted it, and I understand it, when they make their report they will report what has been adopted by this convention with such changes. Therefore I think that on final reading and on final passage it should receive the approval of a majority of this convention, and that is my understanding.

Mr. President: I would first like to ask Mr. Goldwater, who I believe was a member of this rules committee, what his understanding was.

Mr. Goldwater: My understanding was that after these propositions had come back from the committee of the whole they would be acted upon by the convention. Then it went to the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation. When they reported it back, it was still subject to amendment, and then it was again sent back to the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation in order that it might have its proper place in the constitution; in other words, then they would to compile the various propositions and make them up into a whole, and when they returned the constitution properly compiled, then the convention would adopt it section by section by a vote of the majority of the members elected, but at any other time a majority of the members present at the session could carry the proposition. I think this was the intent of the rules committee.

Mr. Cunningham: I am opposed to the particular measure now under discussion, but in the spirit of fairness and fair play I am convinced that this measure has passed this convention. I do not think it makes any difference what the members of the Committee on Rules intended to do. I think the rules themselves should be controlling, and I think it a fair construction of these rules shows their meaning to be that a majority of the members elected is required only after the measure has come back from the style, revision and compilation committee in the form of a complete constitution. I do not see how any other meaning can be given to these rules.

[e944546] Mr. President: The chair will so rule.

[e944547] Mr. Cobb: I would suggest it would be a good idea to allow these bills to continue on third reading until they receive a majority vote either for or against. There won't be more than a few with the vote so close.

Mr. President: The chair will declare that he was in error in declaring that 27 votes were necessary for passage on third reading. Proposition Number 72 will be declared carried. I am glad to have this come up at this time, because it will settle this point.

[e944553] Mr. President: [...] Proposition Number 72 will be referred to the committee [on] compilation, and when it comes back you have another chance to vote on it.

[e944558] Mr. Cobb: I rise to a question of information. I understand the chair decided although the last proposition received only 26 votes it was approved.

Now, suppose there were only forty members present, and the majority voted against the approval of the proposition, they would kill it, and not have 27 against it. I think that decision is wrong. I think you should have 27 votes either for or against.

Mr. Franklin: As I understand it, on the report of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, we have a vote upon their report. We do not have a vote upon the adoption of the proposition; we adopt the report of the committee.

Mr. President: And then you have a vote on the proposition by sections.

Mr. Franklin: What will be adopted, the report of the committee, or the proposition?

[e944573] Mr. Goldwater: Before you go into the committee of the whole, I would like to make my motion for reconsideration of Substitute Proposition Number 103.

[e944810] Mr. Goldwater: Before you go into the committee of the whole, I would like to make my motion for reconsideration of Substitute Proposition Number 103.

Mr. Webb: I second the motion.

of that, but I do not think this proposition covers that at all, and I therefore move the reconsideration.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, before that vote is taken, I want to say that the efforts that have been put forth on the part of certain newspapers to appoint me to this office of legislative secretary are entirely misplaced. I appreciate the honor very much, but I do not think there are enough people in Arizona to make me take that office. I can think of a great many who are better qualified for the position than I am, and I want to say that I have absolutely no designs upon the place at all.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I would like to explain that this bill was drawn up by Mr. Cassidy, who spent a long time on it, and did work on it before this convention convened. He corresponded with people in various parts of the country, and it seems to me he has done an excellent job, one of which the delegates of this convention might be proud—without any views of any personal advantage therefrom,—simply a loyal member of this convention and a loyal citizen of Arizona.

[e944815] Mr. President: Call the roll.

Roll call showed 30 "ayes" and 15 "nays," excused 2.

Mr. President: The motion is carried. The question will be reconsidered.

[e944831] Mr. Goldwater: Mr. President, I move that the bill be re-referred to the committee that report it so that they may bring it in again.

Mr. Lynch: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 656-657)

[e944834] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I move to amend and move that the proposition be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Weinberger: I second the motion.

[e944838] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I do not like to see this proposition indefinitely postponed. I think this proposition is one of the most important ones we have acted on, and I am taking my position from the position that has been taken by this convention. I do not expect that the future legislature will be any more competent than is this convention, but I do say that we have done some things here in the appointing of attaches that I am really ashamed of. The other day, just after our Committee on Printing and Clerks reported to us that we have five extra clerks—employees that were doing nothing and were of no use in this convention—we turned around on top of that and created another job and appointed a man to the position.

Mr. Osborn: Mr. President, we did not create any more jobs. This was to fill a vacancy.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I desire to agree with the gentleman from Yavapai that probably future legislatures will not be much different from this aggregation. God grant that they may be as bright, as earnest, as able and as sincere, (applause) in their efforts to carry out the wishes of the people of Arizona. That is my prayer. The gentleman from Yavapai pointed out an inconsistency in this proposition that should appeal to all of you and convince you all that it was an absurdity. I ask you, gentleman of the majority, Democrats, had you had a constitutional secretary, who had been preparing and gathering and accumulating information for your benefit in this convention, and had he happened to be a Republican, how many of you gentlemen of the majority, would have gone to him for your information, your guidance and your inspiration for action on the floor of this convention, and the same to you, gentlemen of the minority, had he been Democratic. I can readily understand how shy you would have fought off his presence in seeking information [sic], and it might be that he would be of the opposite party, and again, while it is possible that this proposition might be worked out as the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Goldwater, seems to think it might be, in a way that would be satisfactory, it appeals to me this way: We are starting out as children, as it were in statehood life. We do not know all our needs. Conditions here are different from those in the older states. We do know that our taxes are burdensome enough at the present time. We do know that statehood will increase that burden, and I say leave it, then, to these future legislators that we hope and trust will be just as able and as sincere as you gentlemen are, leave it to them to fill these wants as rapidly as it is demonstrated they are needed in the new state. Therefore, I am opposed to this for the reason it is inconsistent, and would be entirely unsatisfactory, and I think the proper thing to do is to leave it to the future legislators of the State of Arizona.

Mr. President: Those in favor of the indefinite postponement answer "aye;" opposed "no." The secretary will call the roll.

Mr. Colter: I would like to explain my vote on this proposition. I am going to vote "aye" on this proposition because I think we are not getting at this in the proper way. I think the convention or the legislature should have the power to choose their own clerks. It looks to me as if it would be in favor of bringing it up in a different form so as to have qualifications— every attache to have a standard.

Mr. Connelly: I would like to explain my vote. The gentleman from Apache explained his vote because he was entitled to fully half of Apache county at the next legislature. He got three attaches in this convention with one delegate, and Cochise County with ten delegates only got seven. I am opposed to that kind of a proposition, and I vote "no."

Mr. Orme: Mr. President, I want to explain my vote. I am opposed to creating so many territorial offices. We have offices for forty or fifty men, and the taxpayers have it to pay. I am opposed to establishing any more offices in any way, shape or form. I vote "aye."

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I desire to explain my vote. I deny the right of any member on this floor to give Apache credit for the apportionment of all the attaches that came from Apache County. Graham County claims the credit for one of them, and possible two of them. I vote "aye."

[e944846] Roll call showed 28 “ayes” and 19 “nays.”

Mr. President: The proposition has been indefinitely postponed.

We ask Thee to be with us this day and grant a rich out-pouring of Thy Spirit upon these men that whatsoever they may do may be done righteously with the view of accomplishing good only. Bless them that the[y] may not be persuaded from doing right regardless of these men with measures and cause that their suggestions may not mean anything nor that they will be wielded for evil against the work of this convention. Keep the love of liberty and freedom in our hearts and cause that nothing binding upon the just rights of men and institutions will ever be written into this constitution. May we ever strive to live right so that when we are called by the Great Redeemer we may be prepared to meet the Judgments of a righteous God. Save us from sin, Oh Lord, and bring us back into Thy presence again all of which we ask in the name of Jesus, Amen.

[e943294] Mr. President: Committee of the whole.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, before this convention goes into the committee of the whole, I desire to move that the vote by which Proposition Number 60 was indefinitely postponed be reconsidered.

Mr. Simms: I second that motion.

[Editor's Note: Though Webb is recorded as moving to reconsider Proposition Number 60, it was actually Substitute Proposition Number 60 that was indefinitely postponed. That Substitute Proposition Number 60 was reconsidered is corroborated by the Minutes.]

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 682-683)

[e943297] Mr. President: The secretary will call the roll. Those in favor of the motion will answer "aye"; those opposed "nay."

The motion is carried.

[e943321] Mr. Ingraham: I move that it be taken up Monday morning.

Mr. Webb: I second that motion.

[e943324] Mr. President: If there are no objections it will come up Monday morning.

Mr. Short: I am opposed to the making of this a special order when there have been other matters just as important discriminated against.

Mr. Winsor: This should come up in regular order and not be granted a special order for there are other measures to be considered both this afternoon and Monday evening which are just as important.

Mr. Cunniff: I would like to say that I am sorry that this matter should come up again as I thought we had settled that dangerous bill. I do not see any reason why Arizona should open wide her doors to all sorts of quack doctrines and especially to contain some of it in her constitution.

[e943329] Mr. Lynch: I would renew my motion to strike out the words "other methods of healing." Those are the only words that are obnoxious. Without these words the bill is all right and permits all institutions and recognized methods, but with it the bill is dangerous.

[e943330] Mr. President: The question comes up on the amendment, Those in favor of the amendment will answer "aye;" those opposed "nay." The motion is lost. The question now comes up on the motion for a third reading.

[e943334] Mr. Coker: I would like to ask the chair if my motion for postponement to this afternoon was out of order.

Mr. President: No. Those who wish this proposition postponed until this afternoon will say "aye;" those opposed "nay", when the roll is called.

[Editor's Note: Based on the voting records in this session of the Committee of the Whole, it appears that more than just the delegates listed in this excerpt from the Minutes took their seats during the Committee of the Whole session. The roll call at the beginning of the day lists Cassidy, Colter, Ellinwood, F.A. Jones, Kingan, Osborn, Tuthill, Wells, and Winsor as absent. Then, before the motion to adjourn, the sergeant at arms announced that Cassidy, Colter, Ellinwood, Lynch (who was not listed as absent in the roll call), Osborn, and Tuthill had taken their seats. That leaves Colter, F.A. Jones, Kingan, Wells, and Winsor as absent. However, each of these delegates participated in votes during the session. The only delegate who was consistently absent in the voting record is Wills. For this reason, only Wills is listed as absent in this attendance record.]

[e944894] Mr. Franklin: It seems to me that if this is carried we will have restrictions on two kinds of people, Negroes and Chinese. Why should you not have Indians and Japanese included? The proposition does not go far enough.

Mr. Weinberger: I think that this is a matter that can well be left out of the constitution.

Mr. Baker: I have never explained my vote before in this convention that I can remember, though there have been many who have done so. I believe in the restrictions of marriages to all races that are obnoxious, but I think that this bill is not sufficient to cover all classes. I have a perfect abhorrence of an alliance between the Negro and the Caucasian race and the same with the Chinese, but I think these restrictions should be placed upon all obnoxious marriage relations between undesirable races and never tolerated. Therefore, I vote no against this proposition.

[e944988] The president then put Mr. Winsor's motion to fill the blank on said line with the word "eight" which was lost by the following vote:

Ayes—Bolan, Bradner, Coker, Connelly, Cunniff, Cunningham, Feeney, Ingraham, Jones, A.M., Jones, F. A., Kinney, Morgan, Parsons, Roberts, Sims, R. B., Tovrea, Weinberger, Winsor, Wood, Mr. President. Total 20.

[e944998] Mr. President: All in favor will answer "aye;" contrary "no." The "ayes" have it, and it is so ordered. Are there any other amendments to be offered? We will call the roll on the final passage of the bill as amended.

[e945003] The motion prevailed.

[e945009] Mr. President: Any further amendments? If not, we will call the roll on final passage.

[e945070] Mr. Wells: Mr. President, this is upon the final passage of the measure, I presume? After this, no further amendments can be made?

Mr. Winsor: The gentleman is mistaken. This will be subject to amendment until final passage of the measure.

Mr. Wells: I wish to be heard on the final passage, whether it is now or at some later time. If no further amendments can be made, I had possibly better make it now. If I may have the indulgence of the convention, probably it will relieve my mind of the position I occupy. Before proceeding in this matter an explanation is necessary. When this question came up, the president indicated that it was an important measure, the most important measure at this session, and that you would entertain a full discussion upon the proposition without limitation as to time because of its importance and the fact it is well for us to understand it from all points of view. With a view of not imposing on your indulgence I reduced what remarks I intended to make to writing, but for the purpose probably of seeking the perfect and true light upon this matter someone got into my desk and carried away my speech, and left there a few scattered notes. Now I am not getting angry because of the carrying away of that speech and not returning it, for I believe it will furnish a good deal of light upon the subject to whoever get[s] it if he will read it; but therefore I ask the indulgence of the convention if I should be scattered in my remarks because the line having been taken away, I am left in somewhat a scattered condition.

Now I am not going to discuss this proposition upon its merits from the view point of partisan sentiment or partisanship in any way. In fact, I will not discuss it on the merits at all, and the reason of it is this: That the very large majority of this convention are acting upon the passage of this bill under instructions or pledges, and hence it divests the proposition of all consideration by discussion or by logical conclusion; in other words, action by machinery, and if I may illustrate: Corn is poured in the hopper and the crank is turned, and the grain becomes grist. The question presents itself to us all individually and collectively, do we want statehood? I say, "Yes," I believe it is the intention of the territory at large. In 1864, this month, and I believe this day the first territorial convention was in session at Prescott. I was not a member of that distinguished body, but I was in attendance, and I know that at that time there was a resolution passed asking Congress and the President of the United States (Lincoln was President at that time) for statehood at the very earliest moment it could be granted, and from that to the present time, every territorial legislature has considered and passed the same request, and it has been diligently worked upon by every delegate from the first to the last. Coming to the present time the opportunity is now given for us to have statehood. Where do we get the authority, and shall we pursue that authority? The authority comes from Congress, and I may be permitted here to read the authority for the results of this convention if it should result in statehood: "That the delegates to the convention thus elected shall meet in the hall of the house of representatives in the capital of the Territory of Arizona at 12 o'clock noon on the fourth Monday after their election, and they shall receive compensation for the period they actually are in session, but not for more than sixty days in all; after organization they shall declare on behalf of the people of said proposed State that they adopt the Constitution of the United States, whereupon the said convention shall be and is hereby, authorized to form a constitution and provide for a state government for said proposed State, all in the manner and under the conditions contained in this Act. The constitution shall be republican in form and make no distinction in civil or political rights on account of race or color, and shall not be repugnant to the Constitution of the United States and the principles of the Declaration of Independence."

Now, Mr. President, that brings it home in this way. It does not make any difference to us whether it is in line with what we would like to have for an enacting clause, yet this is the enacting clause. I believe every member of Congress at the time the Enabling Act was passed, whether Democrat or Republican voted for it, and for all the conditions imposed by this Enabling Act, and hence every item and condition required to be performed is required to be performed by this convention. Do you believe it? Yes, I believe every man here believes it from his actions, and from his actions his mind is read, and his intentions are read. Note, if you will, the action taken by this convention when we considered the irrevocable ordinances. We were cautioned that every single line should be included in the ordinance; "every sentiment expressed there, include in your ordinance. Do not depart one step, one iota, one fraction; if you do, you are in opposition to the will of Congress, and it will be fatal." Not only did your action in following the Enabling Act exactly in your ordinance show the intention and understanding of the convention, but today in Proposition Number 145 the same intent is carried out, and you eliminated from that proposition the extended idea that you must not interfere with the color line because of civil rights involved. Were you right in those actions? Yes, I say, and I believe emphatically so. You believed it, gentlemen, or you would not have so acted. Then, if the conditions of the Enabling Act are so strong in these particulars, why not the whole? If there is an infraction in part, why not an infraction in the whole? It is conclusive to me that your minds are made up that you must not depart from the conditions of this Enabling Act. That brings me down to the real question at issue. Have we departed, or do we propose by the initiative and referendum to depart, from the Enabling Act? Let us see. We can get to this conclusion logically by investigating and analyzing the requirements. Some months ago when the question of initiative and referendum was mentioned and it became a political issue, or rather a partisan issue, the proposition appealed to me very strongly, because it was getting down next to the people. But when it appeared the probability was I might attend this convention and that I might assume responsibilities that had not come upon me in my life before, I took the subject up for an analysis and investigation with the view of knowing how it might be applied and what might be the extent of its application. I found, however, that it would affect the form of the national government; I pursued the subject and became satisfied that it was an innovation, and that, if adopted in its final results, would mean a disintegration of our national government, for it would be the inception. When I came to that conclusion, I told my views to my friends, and the result was, (I do not say solely caused by that) that I am here with you today. From that I resolve this conclusion with reference to the initiative and referendum, and the position in which I stand here today. I feel that I am environed by no conditions that curtail in any degree the freedom of my thought and action and hence I believe I am able to discuss this measure and this proposition as it would affect the people of this territory. As I said before, I believe it is a change of the form of government known as the republican form of government. Gentlemen, I ask how many in this convention understand fully the republican form of government from its inception? I did not until I began these investigations. Go with me in mind, if you please, back into the past, to the origin or commencement of our Republic. The original thirteen colonies decided upon forming a confederation for their protection, and in 1776 on the 10th of May a convention convened which consisted of representatives and delegates from these states and provinces. What was the purpose and object of that convention? It was to adopt such a government as should conduce to the peace and safety of their constituents in particular and of America in general.

That is the first movement, the first step made by the colonies. That convention besides the Declaration of Independence prepared and signed as a result of their deliberations the Articles of Confederation. What was the purpose of these Articles? The third article answers that: "The said States hereby severally enter into a firm security of their liberties, and their mutual and general welfare, binding themselves to assist each other against all force offered to, or attacks made upon them or any of them, on account of religion, sovereignty, trade or any pretense whatever." That was the compact that was made at the first session of the United States Congress, in 1777 [sic]. Now they lived under that contract for nine years and from their experience decided it was not strong enough. Why? Because the more populous states dominated the less. The State of New York had the only custom house, and if they made a closer corporation, New York would have to surrender that. The State of Virginia had vast public lands, which composed her wealth. It was determined if they joined a closer confederation she would have to surrender those lands, and thus each state had something to surrender to the whole, which constituted the consideration passing to all and from all. It then became a contract and compact, so much so that neither party had the right to withdraw from that compact or change that contract unless it was consented to by the other contracting parties. That was the logical conclusion. That constitution for a closer compact was written in 1787. By whom? Why, of delegates, or representatives sent there by the people who could not come themselves. As the result, I read the United States constitution: "We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessing of Liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

Now, at that convention by those delegates a form of government was inaugurated and established. In the first article we find these words: "All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several states. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each State, chosen by the legislature thereof." We know that the legislatures of the state are chosen by the people, and hence it is the result of the action of the people. This is the first section. Does it stop there? The form is not complete, because it says there must be an executive. That executive shall [be] the President of the United States, whose term shall be four years, thus preventing the possibility of monarchy. Section 7 provides "Every bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate shall before it becomes a law be presented to the President of the United States." The other part of this form of government is the judicial. We have a legislative, executive and judicial, and that constitutes the republican form of government. The Constitution provides further: With this vast territory we have here, of course, there will be new states admitted. We will vest Congress with the power of creating new states, and that power reads in this manner (Section 3, Article 4) "New states may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new state shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other state; nor any state formed by the junction of two or more states." Section 4 of the same article reads "The United States shall guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion." Under our territorial organic act the government consists of the executive, judicial and legislative departments, and when the state is admitted into the union the very same form is preserved. This system continued in existence, and the war of 1812 which came later resulted favorably to the maintenance of the present form of government. Also in 1860 some of the states decided they would withdraw from the confederation, but the remaining parties to the contract said "No, you cannot withdraw because there is a contract made between you and us, and we want you to perform your part of the contract and remain in the Union. You are a wealthy country, your states are wealthy. You are vigorous. You are brave. You are patriotic. In the future there will be a sinking of the Maine, and our western seas will be patrolled by a strong, armed state, which will attempt to land their hordes on our western shores, and we need your strength, your valor, your patriotism." They returned these states to the Union, and the various constitutions adopted have had the same provision, dividing the powers of the government into the executive, judicial and legislative departments. And if you will go from New York or Maine on the east to Washington on the west, you will find the same republican form of government. You go on the south to the Carolinas clear through to California, and you will find the same republican form. After the adoption of the Constitution there arose a school of law writers, and upon the question of constitution these law writers are regarded as an authority in all our larger schools, in Yale, in Harvard, and in all of the law universities. Now let us for a moment notice what these writers, who have spent their years in the study of this subject, have to say about this republican form of government, because it is important in the analysis of this republican form of government to be guided by those who have been before us and who have investigated the subject.

Bouvier, for instance, who is regarded as a great law authority, says: "A republican form of government is one where the powers of the sovereignty are delegated to a body of men elected from time to time to exercise them for benefit of the whole nation."

Now we have Mr. Black, an equal authority. He says: "The United States is a federal republic. So also each of the states is a republic, and the Constitution guarantees to each the continuance of republican government. The will of the people is made manifest through representatives chosen by them to administer their affairs and make their laws."

Daniel Webster says: "The republican form of government guaranteed by Congress is a government in which the Supreme power resides in the whole body of the people, and is exercised by representatives elected by them."

Madison says: "A government which derives all its power directly or indirectly from the great body of the people and is administered by persons holding their offices during pleasure, for a limited period or during good behavior, is a republican form of government."

Now, the Supreme Court of the United States in passing upon this subject, adopted Webster's definition, in 139 United States Reports, page 278, there it lays down this doctrine: The guaranty necessarily implies a duty upon the part of the states; this is to provide a republican form of government." The question is, did it? Now let us see; let us take this initiative and referendum, and compare it with the Enabling Act. Now comparison sometimes brings conviction when no other method will do it, and when I say conviction I mean this: While gentlemen are acting under pledges and feel they cannot, because of political reasons divest themselves of their pledges, I say I am not going to discuss it upon its merits, but I present it to them in this shape, as a question of expediency, and the people of the territory are interested in that matter of expediency and I believe when we consider it from that point I do not believe there will be much difficulty in arriving at a conclusion. Let us take this initiative and referendum and measure it by the Constitution of the United States, with the idea as to republican form of government, (and I say we have followed that from its inception to this hour.) Measure it by these requirements and see if it does not take away the republican form of government. The first section of the initiative and referendum reads as follows: "The legislative power of the state shall be vested in a legislature, consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives." Now gentlemen, consider the Organic Act, and the Constitution of the United States, and consider the constitution of all the other states in the Union except Oklahoma, and measure this section by those and see what the result is: "The legislative power of the state shall be vested in the legislature, consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives, but the people reserve to themselves the power to propose and enact or reject such laws and amendments at the polls, independent of the legislature, and also reserve power at their own option, to approve or reject at the polls any act, item, section, or part of any act of the legislature." Now further on we find "The veto power of the Governor shall not extend to measures initiated by or referred to the people." Now, there is a deviation there. First, it takes away from this republican form of government this method provided by the Constitution of the United States and the Enabling Act. It returns it to the people. I am not going to say the people are not able to take care of themselves or to represent themselves, and are not the best judges as to what applies to their particular section, but I will say that at the time the constitution was prepared, and ever since there was a state organized, the people conferred upon the legislatures the right to make the laws without reservation, and Oklahoma is the first state that passed a constitution wherein she reserved the right to legislate in place of the legislature. Did she do it? Yes. But is that a guide for us? I say "no." There were restrictions in our Enabling Act which were not restrictions in that Enabling Act for Oklahoma. There the votes had to be certified to the Governor, and the Governor issued his proclamation of the result of the votes, and by operation of law the state was admitted into the Union. With us it is different, Congress having had in view the experience in Oklahoma, and we know with what difficulty the constitution of Oklahoma was passed by President Roosevelt. I might say in parentheses it was opposed by President Taft. I know what is entering into the minds of my friends, "For God's sake, do not threaten us with Congress or the President." Now I am not going to threaten you with Congress or the President, but I will say this Enabling Act was passed by every member of Congress and signed by the President, and it is probable they will go back on themselves and reverse themselves because 200,000 people out in the West want the will of the balance of 100,000,000 reversed. I merely offer that as an argument, and as I say, as my speech was taken from me I can only present this in the form of an argument. The State of Oregon has a constitutional amendment with this initiative and referendum, and it has brought upon the state a great deal of trouble. This very measure, the initiative and referendum, and the business interests of the State of Oregon that have grown up under it, is now in a lawsuit before the Supreme Court of the United States. And judging from a brief in that case prepared by the ablest lawyers on the Pacific coast, I have no more idea that the Supreme Court of the United States will affirm the judgement of the Supreme Court of Oregon than I have—I believe they will reverse it, on the ground that the republican form of government is abridged. The only way, or the proper way, to have it properly an amendment to the state constitution is to amend the United States Constitution, changing this form of government. Now that brings us down to the question of expediency. If we wait until the Supreme Court of the United States passes upon that Oregon case, we may wait for a considerable length of time, and if it should be adverse to the proposition here, then the opportunity may have gone. Now, my remedy is this (of course I do not suppose every gentleman present is going to agree with me)—To defer action until that time, or write our constitution in a way in which it will not meet the opposition of Congress or President but will conform to the Enabling Act, the same as the other clauses.

Mr. Winsor: Will the gentleman yield to a question? In the event the Supreme Court of the United States should declare the initiative and referendum to be unconstitutional, and the initiative and referendum were in the constitution of Arizona, would that affect any other portion of the constitution of Arizona?

Mr. Wells: That is not for us to say. It is entirely for the President and Congress to say. Let me read what they say in the words of the Enabling Act, and I think it will be a perfect answer to the gentleman's question: "and thereupon said convention is hereby authorized to form a constitution and provide for a state government for said proposed state all in the manner and under the conditions contained in this act." Now, gentlemen, you have said you must be careful with the irrevocable ordinances to conform with the spirit of Congress as shown in the conditions of this act, and furthermore in reference to the color line you must conform to the conditions of this Enabling Act, nor must you not conform to any part of it that requires a republican form of government?

Mr. Cunniff: Will the gentleman from Yavapai yield to a question? Do you think the referendum is also not republican, as well as the initiative?

Mr. Wells: Yes, the initiative and referendum is not a republican form of government. It is in line with the decisions of the supreme court of Oregon, and that is the conclusion that is reached by the gentlemen who are in favor of the initiative and referendum, in my judgement, and that is that it does not take away but it adds to. I do not care whether it adds to or not. For the people of the state who have said: "we delegate to a representative form of government the power to legislate," the referendum changes that power and takes it away.

Mr. Cunniff: Will the gentleman yield to another question? If Congress accepts the New Mexico constitution, and the President accepts it, then the President and Congress will be accepting a constitution that is not in republican form?

Mr. Wells: I say this, that if the initiative and referendum is adopted by the State of New Mexico, the referendum takes away the right of the people to make laws. It takes away the right of the governor to veto a law, and in that it is a change from the republican form of government.

Mr. Cunniff: Does the gentleman say that if Congress and the President accept the New Mexico constitution as it now appears with the referendum in it, on petition of the people of New Mexico, then Congress and the President will be accepting a constitution that is not republican in form?

Mr. Wells: I do not know whether the State of New Mexico has adopted such a referendum law or not.

Mr. Cunniff: Yes, they have, I have a copy of it here.

Mr. Wells: I do not know the wording, but it is a good proposition of taking away the legislative power of the legislature and the veto power of the governor. It is such a variation from the republican form of government that it will not be accepted.

Mr. Baker: I would like to ask, what does he do with the clause in the initiative and referendum law that declares that it shall never be construed as forbidding the legislature from passing any enactment?

Mr. Wells: That has no effect whatever on the measure. It does not say that the legislature shall pass all laws. If it contained a measure that the legislature should pass all laws I should say that measure had no weight, but as it is here, the legislature shall pass some laws. I believe like this, that if this constitution is not accepted, or if there is a delay made in this constitution, all of this grand donation may pass from us, and if the constitution is not accepted it will be because the constitution of the territory will contain the initiative as well as the referendum, and hence they are not parallel cases at all. If the gentlemen would strike out the initiative part of that and leave the referendum alone, possibly they will not make as much objection to it. If we delay in getting this constitution adopted and getting statehood, the probability is that there will be nothing left when the time comes for us to make this selection of land. There are 73 million acres of land in the territory; 25 million have been selected and taken away. There are approximately 40 million left, and how much of that 40 million are made available? If we get statehood we make the selection. If it is rejected, we lose it altogether. As I say, it is the desire of the people of Arizona to have statehood at once that we may avail ourselves of this donation, and I must say that this is an unpopular side of the question, and the Chairman, because of its being the minority side of the question, has given us an opportunity to present our views, and those are our views insofar as I understand it. I am going to say this: I do not know if any of these gentlemen have changed their minds upon this question, but I say the Republicans are in line.

Mr. Franklin: Will the gentleman yield? I have listened with a great deal of interest to your argument, and also that of the other gentlemen, on that side of the question, but it appears to me from the authorities and the political writers and the decisions that there is quite a distinction between a republican form of government and a representative government. I wish you would enlighten me on that distinction, as to representative government. If there is one, what is it?

Mr. Wells: The representative government is contained in the republican form of government. It is defined as the government of the people through its representatives. As was in the first Congress of the United States,—as was in the constitution of the Congress that adopted the Constitution of the United States,—the people were represented by a delegate of those people to go there and make those laws, and that, as I understand it, would be a representative form of government. Today, our legislature has power to make all laws. Our executive has the power to veto all laws, to govern the people, whether they be of the minority or of the majority. Now, as I was going to say, the Republicans are in line to accept statehood, and the responsibility is upon the Democratic members here. What, gentlemen, agreeable retrospective will be afforded, which as years and years go by, having us standing on the apex? The young men will appreciate it more than the older of us. In time the mantle of power and wisdom is thrown over our shoulders, and they will gather around us,—those who have grown weary and tired of the commonplace stories of our former life, and we can say to them: “Cheer up! Hear the real story of Arizona!” In the background of my memory there is a tablet clear as crystal and as spotless as the purest Egyptian gem. My noblest days are recorded upon it. Across its face are letters sculptured so indelibly that neither the ages nor eternity can rub them out, and they are written as follows: “In the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and ten, at the constitutional convention which gave the constitution and statehood to Arizona, I voted to maintain and perpetuate the sovereignty intact of the greatest nation on earth, the government of the United States of America.” (applause)

Mr. Cobb: A few days ago a distinguished member of the minority across in his place and in seeming seriousness stated that he had some time since been informed that it was the purpose of the majority to exclude him and his able associates from participation in the preparation of the constitution we are here assembled to construct.

This came as quite a surprise for I have noted that they have not only taken an active part in the debates, as the record will show, but they have decided the fate of a number of Propositions and important questions. The very first that came before this convention, that of keeping a verbatim report of our proceedings, was decided by the minority in its favor. After having hovered between life and death for three more days, when the minority was as badly divided as the majority, the distinguished gentleman from Pima came to its rescue in a brief but earnest appeal, as a result of which, or prompted by an inspiration from above, the unanimous vote of this small but active minority was cast solidly for the keeping of a verbatim report.

A few days later we listened with a great deal of interest to the arguments of the gentlemen from Pima and Coconino regarding the constitutionality of the initiative and referendum, and if I understood the gentlemen right, they said that they had no hope of changing the opinion of a single delegate; they knew the initiative and referendum would be incorporated in the constitution framed by the convention. Then why these voluminous arguments? Was it necessary for set and lengthy speeches, with most numerous citations of authorities to explain their votes on this question, when it could have been done in these three words, “it is unconstitutional?” I believe the gentlemen are perfectly honest in their opinion, (they have unquestionably convinced themselves) but if they are so desirous of statehood why are they so anxious to get in the record, afforded by the verbatim report, lengthy arguments against the very thing they claim to be most desirous of securing? Is it purely for home consumption or are they [sic.] briefs to be filed with the President of the United States against the admission of the State of Arizona into the Union?

The long list of opinions cited of courts and learned men was most impressive, and the definition of a republican form of government by Noah Webster seemed to have been quoted with especial emphasis. This was taking advantage of the old man; he died, poor old soul, long before the necessity arose to revise his definition. Delegated government had not then reached the refined state of commercialization which it has today.

As I understand it, definition of words or phrases are based upon good usage; certainly then the initiative and referendum in operation in twenty odd states, one half of the Union, has some right to [a] place in a republican form of government. Would the successors to Mr. Webster be in contempt of court, should they now recognize this fact by so recording it? I suppose it is alright to be wedded to precedent, but if our forefathers had not become divorced we would be here, in convention assembled, clad in garments so brief that modesty forbids their enumeration. Woman would still be man's chattel, and we would quickly settle the suffrage question with an axe handle, then get maudlin drunk with no favor of segregation, county option or state-wide prohibition, nor being buttonholed by the secretary of the anti-saloon league. Witches would still be burned at the stake and that lost and almost forgotten art might still be included in the curriculum of Harvard University. Human slavery would still be a benevolent institution and I would be back in Georgia, counting my negroes by the hundreds, instead of working here for the dear people of Arizona for four dollars a day.

Mr. Chairman, for forty odd years the Republican party continued their lease of government control, largely through the use of that magic name, "Lincoln." Every successful GOP officeholder rode into office juggling with his name. The great emancipator was quoted as the best, the highest and the undisputed authority on all political subjects.

This was before the Republican party had constructed, to the present towering height, its Babel tower of trusts, on that great foundation, protective tariff. Now his name is known in only one Republican tongue. The doctrines which he taught are characterized by all other members of that great tribe as socialistic. What was Lincoln's definition of a republican form of government?—"A government of, for and by the people."

The Enabling Act of Oklahoma says if the President finds the constitution republican in form, he shall approve it. There were no other strings tied to it, that question and that question alone was he to decide. "If it was republican in form he should approve it. It contained the Initiative and Referendum, yet President Roosevelt approved it. Of course all the Republicans in Oklahoma said he would not, just as they are here predicting that our constitution will not be approved. He did approve it, and along with his approval he told how reluctant he was to do so, how he would like to smite it with the big stick, but not one word about its being unconstitutional, and Mr. Taft was at the same time a member of his cabinet and reputed to be his most confidential advisor. They were both so opposed to this constitution that the President sent Mr. Taft out to Oklahoma where he spoke all over the state against its adoption. But not one word did he say, not the slightest intimation or suggestion that it might be unconstitutional. However, this was possibly before Mr. Webster's definition had been resurrected. Here are the opinions of the two greatest Republican presidents, Lincoln and Roosevelt, and they are cast aside by these good Republicans as of no weight. In light of the history of the Oklahoma constitution, I think it fair to assume that Mr. Taft's opinion coincided with that of his illustrious predecessor.

The gentlemen from Pima and Coconino tell us that the question of the constitutionality of the initiative and referendum in the Oregon Constitution is now before the supreme court, that it probably will not be decided for some time; and further that the President will not take action on the Arizona Constitution which could possibly be construed as deciding a question which was pending in the Supreme Court. I agree with them, every one can see the impropriety of the chief executive expressing an opinion either by word or deed on a subject which is before the Supreme Court, therefore I hold there is only one thing he can do, approve the Constitution of Arizona, as his predecessor did the Constitution of Oklahoma. Owing to his intimate association with Mr. Roosevelt at that time, the prominent part he took in fighting the adoption of that instrument without mentioning this question of constitutionality of the initiative and referendum, the presumption must be that he did not at that time believe them repugnant to a republican form of government. Just the moment he holds up our constitution, giving as his reasons therefore that he will await the decision of the Oregon case, it would be heralded all over the country that the President did not think the Oregon law constitutional. There would not be a man in the United States who would construe his action otherwise.

Furthermore, the President has repeatedly said that he favored statehood for Arizona. Suppose he should withhold his approval of the constitution until after this Oregon case was decided and the Supreme Court should decide it adversely to the people of Oregon, he would then be compelled to withhold statehood from us. On the other hand, should he follow precedent, which is so sacred to those of judicial temperament, and approve the work of this convention, we will have statehood, and our initiative and referendum law will stand or fall, just as it will in all other states, by the decision of the Supreme Court. I have no fear of losing or delaying statehood by incorporating these provisions in our constitution. Have we not always been told that President Taft was a broadminded man, and do we not know that he is getting broader every day? A few months ago he recognized only those Republicans who spoke the "stand pat" tongue, then he heard from a Congressional district in New York and another in Massachusetts some more; then the news of elections in Vermont and Maine, and he broadened some more, then came the primaries in Michigan, Iowa, Kansas, Washington, California and other states, almost without number, and he broadened to such an extent that he opened his arms, resumed that almost forgotten smile that "wouldn't wear off" and welcomed them all back, saying that all Republicans looked alike to him; then on November 8th, came the deluge. Nothing has since been heard from the White House, but we are daily expecting the announcement that Mr. Taft would gladly accept a nomination on the Democratic ticket, provided the platform endorsed the initiative and referendum.

Mr. Webb: Mr. Chairman, I desire to say that I happen to be in a position to know that that speech was written three weeks ago.

Mr. Cobb: I will have to withdraw the confidence that I imposed in my friend.

Mr. Parsons: Mr. Chairman, I am sitting in a neighborhood where nothing has been stolen from my desk. The remarks that I have committed to paper are not in reply to the gentleman this afternoon but to three eminent gentlemen who preceded him some days ago, but I put them in writing simply that "I might not forget a few things I did want to say," and I will say, Mr. President, it is with no little timidity that I dare to enter this tournament of intellectual activity in competition with veterans of so large experience and well earned renown, nor should I have dared to raise my voice in an attempt to reply to the eminent gentlemen of the minority in this convention, who have so earnestly, sincerely and eloquently assailed and condemned the principles of government expressed in this initiative and referendum proposition, were it not for the fact that I have great faith in the truth of that statement of our much-admired author, Shakespeare, when he said: Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just." Relying upon this truth, and having absolute confidence in the rectitude of my position on this issue, I have the temerity (perhaps I should say the audacity) to suggest that they may be in error in their opinions upon this subject. One thing is certain, Mr. President, whatever the result of my attempt may be upon the minds of my hearers, I shall at least have had the pleasure of experiencing "that stern joy which warriors feel, in foremen worthy of their steel."

I desire further to say, that in the discussion of any question, there is one absolutely necessary prerequisite or condition precedent, viz. that our premise be clearly established and the issue well defined. In the matter under consideration there can be no doubt or misunderstanding as to these essential requirements.

Thanks to the most commendable frankness of our opponents, the issue is clear-cut and well defined. They have declared their position so clearly that "he who runs may read" and "a wayfaring man though a fool need not err therein." This being true, if we of the majority are deceived thereby, then do we furnish proof of the falsity of that proverb of Solomon wherein he said: "Surely in vain the net is spread in the sight of any bird."

We are told by each of the gentlemen who has spoken against this proposition, that they are opposed to the initiative and referendum on two grounds, and for two reasons, so far as it applies to state government. First, because it is unconstitutional in that it is in conflict with section 4 of Article 4 of the Federal Constitution, which provides that the United States shall guarantee to each state a republican form of government, and second, because if such provision shall be incorporated in our constitution it will result in deferring or defeating statehood.

Now, Mr. President, as I view it, these two contentions of our opponents might be very appropriately catalogued under the heading which Josh Billings suggested for certain remarks made by some of his neighbors about him, viz. "Important if true." Two of these gentlemen, if not all three of them, asserted that this guaranty of a republican form of government did not apply to any subdivision of, but to the state as a whole alone. This I think is a fair statement of the position taken by the opponents of this proposition, as expressed by their spokesmen.

It is not my purpose to enter into an elaborate or detailed argument upon the legal construction or definition to be given this term "republican form of government," upon which our opponents hinge their whole case, practically; suffice it to say that in my judgement, where there are conflicting definitions, that one is safest and best to be adopted which in its application is most in accord with the general purpose of those who inserted that term or expression in our Federal constitution, and which does the least violence to other well-established principles of law.

I believe it will be conceded by all that the one great desire of the people, at the time that constitution was adopted, was to abolish the old form of government, that of force, commonly called a monarchy, and institute in its stead a government by consent, or by the people. They dared deny that ancient infamy, that the right to rule was a God-given right, restricted to the royal race, and that the mere accident of birth should give one person precedence or place him in power above his fellows, and announced in lieu thereof, as the basis of their new form of government, that governments are instituted to secure the people their rights, and derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, and I do not believe it will be seriously contended that the manner of the expression of that consent, whether in person or by representatives, was deemed material further than as it might serve the convenience and will of the people who ordained that constitution, for remember it begins: "We the people of the United States do ordain and establish this constitution." This being true, my contention is that the best definition of the term under discussion is one that recognizes republican and democratic as synonymous terms, and a republican form of government is one where the people at large retain the supreme power and act either collectively or by representation.

The construction contended for by the gentlemen of the minority is repugnant to reason in this: they admit that the supreme power is vested in the people, but insist that they can only assert this power through representatives or agents. Thus are we presented with the unique legal proposition, viz. that an agent has more power than a principal who has supreme power. The statement of this proposition is its own refutation. If their argument be tenable then the creature may be greater than his creator, all of which we deny.

Replying further to this claim of unconstitutionality of the initiative and referendum, I desire to call attention to the fact that in 1896 and 1898, when South Dakota was attempting to incorporate these provisions in her constitution, this same argument was urged with all the ability of the ablest advocates the money of the special interests could command, and the same may be said of every other state that has since that ate either adopted or advocated the adoption of this form of government whereby the people might be enabled to have their will enacted into law and that law fully and fairly enforced. If there had been any such defect in this proposition as our friends contend for, it certainly seems that it would not have been allowed to have gained the foothold it has without an adverse decision from the court of last resort.

But this is not all. This is not a question for judicial determination. It is well understood and well settled by the courts that this is purely a political matter, and that the jurisdiction over and the enforcement of this guarantee belongs to Congress, as will appear by the following: "When the senators and representatives of a state are admitted into the councils of the Union, the authority of the government under which they are appointed, as well as its republican character is recognized by the proper constitutional authority, and its decision is bonding upon every other department of government, and could not be questioned in a judicial tribunal." Luther vs. Borden, 7 Howard (48 United States), decided in 1848, reaffirmed in Texas vs. White, 7 Wallace (74 United States) 700, 1869, and again in Taylor vs. Beckham, 178 United States 548, in 1900.

Thus it appears the law on this point has been well settled for more than sixty years last past.

Congress has recognized the right of the senators and representatives from the several states which have adopted the initiative and referendum, including the Republican states of Maine, South Dakota, Montana, Oregon, Utah, Nevada and the two Democratic states of Oklahoma and Arkansas, and we do not see why we should not receive the same recognition.

I desire to call attention to the further fact that the federal constitution of Switzerland had the same provision as that referred to in our own, when the initiative and referendum was adopted in the several states or cantons over there, and they have not yet found that is conflicts with such provision. But, on the contrary, one of our most eminent students of political economy in his visits to that country has to say that the people of every rank and condition in life are so well pleased with the initiative and referendum that they would resist any effort to deprive them of it with as much vigor and enthusiasm as they would the invasion of a foreign foe.

As to the stock argument against this proposition to the effect that it may defer or defeat statehood, I have only to say, that if eight Republican states have been allowed to adopt it without suffering for their progressive spirit, and with the great number of other states which are agitating its adoption, I am perfectly willing to leave it to President Taft and Congress to reject it if they deem it wise, but I have no hesitation in saying, especially in the light of the late elections, that they could take no shorter course to political suicide. We are not approaching them in the role of mendicants asking alms, nor do we "crook the pregnant hinges of the knee that thrift may follow fawning," but we are simply demanding our rights, of which we have been so long deprived by a system of petty politics, wherein partisanship has been held paramount to patriotism. Having said this much in reply to the objections raised by our friends of the minority, I desire to call attention to one other peculiar phase of their remarks. They tell us in apparent candor and seriousness to write our constituents and inform them that we have been instructed on this subject by the representatives of the minority, and that we have seen a great light as it were, and that we beg to be released from our pledges to carry out their instructions given us before we were sent here. We thank the gentlemen for the implied compliment that we are acting as instructed, but we are still compelled to refuse to accept the advice given by them so freely and doubtless with the best intentions. They doubtless felt that they were commissioned to deliver such a message, and will probably consider us the basest of ingrates in not accepting it, but speaking for myself I can only say that it will require much more evidence than they have produced to convince or convict me, and I believe in this, I voice the sentiments of the entire majority of this body.

In looking for anything like a parallel to this incident I have been somewhat troubled and the nearest thing that I can call to mind is that of the case of one Saul of Tarsus versus disciples of Christ, reported in the Book of the Acts of the Apostles. This man Saul was a politician at Jerusalem, evidently of the "standpat" or "reactionary" brand who went on a political mission to Damascus to get out an injunction against the so-called Christians and compel them to refrain from following a certain carpenter of Nazareth named Jesus, with full authority to cast into prison any who should dare to disobey the injunction. This carpenter had had the audacity to denounce the standpat office holders of that day as oppressors and robbers of the widows and orphans, as vipers and whited sepulchers, and had with a whip driven from the temple those who sold doves and money changers and told them they had converted a house of prayer into a den of thieves, and rebuked and confounded the grafters who tempted him by telling them to render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's. And sought to instill in their minds the great truth of the universal fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man. I say, this man Saul, on politics bent while on his way to Damascus had a wonderful vision and saw a great light, much I imagine as our greathearted friends of the minority think they have shown us, but with this difference in the result. Saul was converted and became the great apostle of liberty and in his defense of his course at a later date, before King Agrippa, he described his experience and added that he had not been disobedient to the heavenly vision.

This is where we differ from Saul. We do not recognize this as a Heavenly vision. I presume our friends who have made so commendable an effort to shed some light upon the benighted minds of the majority, will consider us incapable of seeing or receiving a vision, but here again they are in error. We do have visions, but our definition of a vision, is having ideals, and looking forward with the eye of faith and seeing these ideals realized. And let me say that every member of this majority as he contemplates the completed product of the labors of this convention, with an efficient and practicable provision for the exercise of the right of the initiative and referendum incorporate therein, does look forward to the time, when under its benign influences he sees his beloved State of Arizona occupying her proud position among the sisterhood of states, the admired of all admirers, and known to the world at large as a Commonwealth in which the only sovereign recognized shall be the freely expressed and honestly declared will of the people, and the only scepter honored shall be the freeman's ballot or the patriot's strong arm. And then shall we have realized the utopian dreams of More, the poet, who sang of a land of wholesome laws and happy men.

Mr. Cooper: Mr. President, I do not want to occupy more than about a minute or two. I do not care to enter into any discussion of this matter. I do not care to explain any further the position of the minority, nor do I care to answer any of the insinuations that have been cast upon our sincerity. I simply want to say this, that a good many years ago and many times in my life I have read recipes for manufacturing rabbit pie. Some have been good, some have been bad, and some have been indifferent, but the main fundamental principle of every rabbit pie was to have a rabbit before you began construction of the pie. Now when there is a possibility of our getting our rabbit, and a possibility after we have got our rabbit of constructing our pie, with all the frills and all the condiments that make it palatable, I cannot see why we take any chances. The rabbit we are after is statehood, and a plain, simple method is described in the Enabling Act. When we get our rabbit we can put in our dumplings, onions, potatoes, and spices, and why on earth we cannot take that straightforward road, when we have the opportunity, after we have caught our rabbit, of putting in initiative and referendum and anything else we please,— why we should take the chance of losing the rabbit and losing the pie, is more than I can understand.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, neither I nor my associates from Yavapai feel like taking up any time in discussion. We covered months ago this matter that the other side of the chamber has been giving us this afternoon, and it is rather too late to be using any time in talk, when the convention has so much to do this week. The only reply that we of the majority, in accordance with our instructions, have to make, lies there on the secretary's table.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, with the gentleman from Pima, Mr. Cooper, I believe in catching our rabbit before we cook it, but I remember that in my youthful hunting experience, I have frequently caught such tough old jackrabbits that I discarded them without cooking or eating them. I therefore vote "aye."

Mr. President: Third reading of Proposition Number 60. Those in favor of adopting Proposition Number 60 will answer "aye;" those opposed "nay," when the roll is called.

[e947538] Mr. Tuthill: I dislike to say anything upon this question and was very much in hopes that I would not need to do so, but I feel that it is my duty to speak further upon the measure that is about to be adopted, and I would like to read first from a Medical Report of the Carnegie Foundation of the United States and Canada. [Portion of the report read not found.] In this volume also there us a statement made with regard to the Still School of Osteopathy, organized in 1898. [Portion of the report read not found.] Now gentlemen, I believe that Arizona has living within her boundaries men who are strictly high class physicians and that you cannot go anywhere and find any better or more willing to give honest good service to people with whom they are dealing than are the physicians in Arizona. Men of science and education fitted and prepared to do that which the people demand of them and not one of them should have the privilege of practicing without thorough examination by a board which should grant them the same privileges to all, if they merit it, by their examination. Any osteopath should be able to qualify in an examination that is given here.

Mr. Morgan: One hundred years ago doctors forbade a fever patient taking a drink of water, but one day a patient broke loose and drank a whole gallon of water and ever since that time doctors have given fever patients all the water they could drink.

Mr. Webb: I am astonished by the position taken by my colleague here, Dr. Tuthill. I have known him a long time and always found him to be a good, kind and courteous man and I have supposed him to be desirous of placing all people on an equal footing, and I believe that he is now laboring under misapprehension of facts, but if he is not willing to allow the same liberality and freedom to others of a learned profession as himself and the medical profession, or there would have been no discussion upon this bill and no vote against it. This bill does not ask for special privileges for anyone. All we ask [is] that there be placed no restriction upon the practice of medicine or healing and that there be no discrimination, for, gentlemen, I believe that in Arizona there is a doctor's trust and if you vote against the adoption of this measure you will vote for that trust but if you vote for it you will be granting a right, a liberty and a privilege to all learned and professionals which should not be abridged.

Mr. Morgan: That is right.

Mr. Webb: There is entirely a misapprehension of facts, for we are asking only equal rights and not special favors.

752-753)

[e947541] Mr. Wood: I amend by adding the following words: "Provided that no person shall be permitted to advertise his or her method of healing or ability to heal."

[e947544] Mr. Colter: I would like to offer an amendment as follows: "Provided, however, that every practitioner have a good and thorough knowledge of physiology and anatomy."

Mr. Morgan: I second that motion.

[e947552] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I would like an explanation on the constitutionality of the bill.

Mr. Tuthill: In answer to the gentleman from Graham I will say that there is not a doctor's trust in Arizona and the examinations for practicing physicians are open to all, but this bill will open wide the doors to all and every kind of quackery and fake that might wish to come into this state and palm off their sparse wisdom upon the people at the risk and sacrifice of many lives. The medical doctors here have the interest of the people at heart and we only desire to protect the rights of the class that are worthy to practice. I have passed an examination here and could do it again if it were necessary, and I also passed an examination in California some time ago and I am only asking that all doctors be admitted to practice in just the same way. I ask that this matter be left out of the constitution for I consider it a dangerous measure.

Mr. Webb: I may have been somewhat hasty in stating that there is a doctor's trust in Arizona and if I was wrong I am willing to beg the pardon of the gentleman, but this I do know, that there is discrimination among the medical doctors in Arizona. On the board of examiners there are three members from the same college as Dr. Tuthill, and the other two men are of the same profession. These men have discriminated against other learned people who do not practice the same method of healing, and to protect these people who are worthy of recognition we ask that the measure here be adopted.

Mr. Morgan: All I want is to see that such men as Bernarr McFadden be permitted to practice here for I think that if there is any man worthy of recognition it is he.

Mr. Tuthill: I have no objection to other learned people practicing in this territory and I would say that as far as Mr. McFadden is concerned I think that he would find no barriers in the way at all were he to come here.

Mr. Moeur: I think that the words of the gentleman from Graham county are far-fetched. We do not discriminate against any authorized doctors or methods of healing. Our interests are those of humanity and we are endeavoring to live up to our profession and what the people expect of us.

Mr. Webb: Since we are here in this convention saying "Thou shalt not, thou shalt not," then it is time for the members of this convention to make clear and plain on some of the most important matters that of making provision, whereby some of the best institutions and the people who represent them may not be discriminated against in the state as they have been heretofore in this territory. I still think this measure should be adopted since it does not place any restrictions on the legislature as to prescribing any examination or method of practice except that it provide that all methods shall be recognized. If an examination is to be given to all alike then there should be provision made by law where each profession can be recognized on the board as near as possible or at any rate that laws are such that those representatives who are members of the board cannot discriminate against those who are not members or against institutions or colleges, represented in this state.

Mr. Cunniff: The talk upon this measure does not appeal to me so much from the point of view of who shall or shall not practice, or the doctor's trust, but I would say that Oklahoma never did so wild a thing as to place such a measure in her constitution. I insist that the bill is dangerous, for it is too broad. It would permit all kinds of quackery to come into the state and secure the confidence of the people, and then perhaps in a year or so fizzle out leaving their patrons in a condition nothing short of deplorable. Children, and the healing and prevention of disease among them, should not be left to the experimentation of all sorts of doctors and to all sorts of methods of healing. The door is opened too wide by this provision. Any enlightened people should fear such a law and, therefore, I do hope that the measure will not prevail.

I have no objections to the gentleman referred to by Mr. Morgan, Dr. McFadden, for I should be glad to see such men as he practicing in this state, and I believe that Mr. Morgan is sincere as is also the gentleman from Apache in desiring to make some provision of this nature in the constitution. I believe also that the other members who are defending this measure are laboring under a misapprehension. And I want to say that I believe that the legislature will take care of this subject in the interests of all who are worthy to practice their methods or their profession here.

One of the greatest discoveries of the age was the discovery of the germs that exist and that cause and spread disease. The methods of preventing and destroying these germs was the most wonderful discovery of the 19th century.

Yet one of the schools defended here denied the very existence of germs. I believe that every doctor should be able to understand thoroughly how to diagnose a case and determine the cause. And if a man be not an experienced doctor or have insufficient knowledge of the human body (the physiology and anatomy as well as other scientific principles governing the human body) then he is not worthy to practice in any state. I do not believe in opening the doors too wide and admitting all classes and kinds of practitioners.

Mr. Wells: I did not intend to speak again upon this measure if it was brought to debate but I cannot let it pass without adding that I believe that if a bill is not passed it will leave the way open for the medical profession to control matters as they do now. They have full control and if they have not a trust they certainly do discriminate and disrespect [sic] the rights and wishes of both a high class of people and learned people, too, who should be allowed to practice in this State. I claim the right to choose whom I desire to administer to me or my family in sickness and I do not think any man or any doctor has any right to disclaim that right just because I choose someone who has not taken the examination prescribed by the medical profession or because they force men who are learned to have a license after their own make and issue before they can come into my home or any other to administer according to my wishes. With regard to the great discoveries made in the nineteenth century I will say that I do not think that any method can do the work that the old methods adopted and used so many years by mothers in regard to the care and cure of children. I think that the measure should be passed and I do not believe that it is necessary to be alarmed over the quackery or fakes that might come into the state, for I think that the people are amply able to judge as to who is worthy of patronage and who is not [;] at least they can soon determine that fact and I dare say that they will not be tabooed any more by this law than they are by the medical profession today.

Mr. Lynch: I have maintained before a number of times and I do maintain now that if this bill were amended by striking out the latter part which says, "Any other method of healing," that the bill would be a good measure but as it is now it is dangerous. With that part in it you are locking the doors of the legislature against protection upon these very important matters, and without the lines I move you to strike out you have protection to all institutions and learned people who should be allowed to practice in the state and omitting the opportunity for any quacks or fakes.

Mr. Parsons: I desire to ask the gentleman from Yavapai, Judge Wells, a question, if he will yield. I want to ask you Judge, under your knowledge of the law, if you think if we pass this Proposition Number 60, that our state legislature would be authorized to pass any law requiring any practitioner of medicine or healing to undergo an examination and receive a certificate from any authorized board in this state?

Mr. Wells: My idea is this: That the legislature could not pass an act that would restrict the practice of medicine or any method of healing.

Mr. Parsons: That is it your idea that if we adopt this proposition in the constitution there will be no provisions enacted by our legislature regulating the practice of medicine, but each person will be perfectly free to practice, and each individual perfectly free to employ whom he will?

Mr. Wells: I do not think it goes that far. I think they would have the right to enact a medical bill, but as far as these other methods were concerned they would not discriminate against them.

Mr. Parsons: By not discriminating against them, I understand the legislature might pass certain requisites that all must comply with, and not discriminate in favor of, any.

Mr. Wells: That involves this problem—to determine what a medical school is. What I understand by it, is a school of learning which teaches healing and sends out representatives. Now, the board of medical directors has no knowledge of the learning of the Christian Scientists or mental science healers, because they are not educated in that school, and hence they would give an examination with their own school of treatment, and not what the other school had taught.

Mr. Parsons: Then I understand the state should appoint a board composed of representatives from all the schools, who should examine the Christian Scientists and other healers upon the qualifications as taught in schools of that class.

Mr. Wells: I think there should be represented on that board every school of healers in order to examine such school according to the knowledge of that particular school.

Mr. Parsons: I simply desire to know, and asked these questions for information that we might understand, what the intent and significance of the remarks of the gentleman was, and I heartily and sincerely thank the gentleman from Yavapai in making this statement, and I simply call attention to this fact. If we are to have our legislature establish any standard by which admission to the bar shall be determined, and admission to practice medicine should be determined, and if we are to have, according to the explanation given by the gentleman from Yavapai, Judge Wells, as many members as we are to have various schools of healing, it seems to me, as has been said by the gentleman from Greenlee, Dr. Tuthill, that at present our system is satisfactory. Each representative of the various schools would say, we have passed an osteopath, an allopath, etc., and you now must pass this candidate from our school, who is qualified under our regulations. It seems to me that this would be a dangerous proposition.

Mr. Morgan: I would like to ask the gentleman from Graham, Mr. Lynch, and the gentleman from Greenlee, Dr. Tuthill, if this proposition be not passed, whether in case Jesus Christ was to come to Arizona if it would not prevent him from healing?

Mr. Tuthill: Will the gentleman yield to a question? If the territory of Arizona did not license Jesus Christ to practice, it would not bother you at all, would it Mr. Morgan?

Mr. Morgan: In answer to the gentleman from Greenlee, I would say that if I was troubled with any disease, and Jesus Christ could cure me, it would interest me to a considerable extent.

Mr. Tuthill: I do not think Mr. Morgan presented that question seriously, but I want to make this point once more: We now have a medical board which offers an examination that any competent practitioner of medicine no matter [to] what school he belongs, can take. When I took the examination there were eight or nine applicants, belonging to three schools. We all took the same questions and there was not one question asked as to treatment, and if you put this proposition in, you will reverse that.

Mr. Ellinwood: I have in my hand a copy of the constitution of the United States, annotated, and I think it will be of some interest to read one or two references to the decisions which apply to this matter. As I see it, any provision you may put in the constitution could not in any manner discriminate against any school of healing or method of practicing medicine. Section 1 of the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution provides: Nor shall any state deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the law." Under this provision this matter has arisen in the courts on several instances, and a statute making it indictable to practice medicine without an examination by the state board of medical examiners and a license therefrom which was prospective and applying to all persons in the future, is held to be valid, as it applies equally to all persons in the same class. Citing North Carolina, Michigan, Washington, Wisconsin and Maine. "A statute regulating the practice of medicine in the state which exacts reasonable qualifications and excludes no one who possesses them is not void as discriminating against Christian Scientists in that it prescribed that no one possessing certain qualifications may practice osteopathy and does not make special provision for those who wish to practice Christian Science." 72 Ohio

"A statute regulating the practice of medicine does not deny a magnetic healer the equal protection of the law in examining physicians and surgeons alike in qualifying to practice in the state." [portion may be missing] All holding that these general examinations being open to all people there is no discrimination under the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. Colter: I would like to ask Mr. Ellinwood if he thinks the legislature could not make a high standard even if this were put in the constitution to prevent anyone practicing in the future.

Mr. Ellinwood: I do not think so.

(Editorial, Page 753-757)

[e947553] Mr. Colter: I offered an amendment thinking that possibly it might do away with quacks and people of that kind, but after hearing the discussion and giving it some more thought, I withdraw the motion I made, with the consent of my second, as I think the legislature can still make sufficiently high standards.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 757-758)

[e944528] Mr. Morgan: I move that this Proposition Number 60 be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Lovin: I second the motion.

[e944531] Mr. President: Are you ready for the question?

Mr. Webb: I simply desire to say, if I understood rightly the reading of the Constitution and decisions by Mr. Ellinwood, it simply bears out my position, that this law will not be discriminatory. I would not have spoken had not the gentleman from Greenlee spoken again. The very organization of the board of examiners certainly suggests discrimination. Out of five members, three belong to one school. Two other schools are represented, and the others are not.

Mr. Wells: Just one word in reply to Dr. Tuthill. Anyone presenting himself to this medical board expecting to get recognition, must come in the manner of the practitioner of medicine. The board is constituted of three schools, and they will gauge everything by their own standards. The present medical bill was drawn with especial care to prevent anybody from practicing in Arizona who does not come from one of these three schools, and anyone who does not pass the examination of this board and get a medical certificate, and practices, without that certificate, is guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to arrest, trial, and punishment and fine, and if you will look at the Statute of 1903 you will find it expressly so stated. And I know persons who have been prosecuted because of that statute, and this is what we want to relieve from and what we believe this proposition will give relief from.

[e947556] Mr. Morgan: For good and sufficient reasons, I withdraw my motion.

[e944536] Mr. Coker: I make the same motion: That Proposition Number 60 be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

[e944539] Mr. President: The secretary will call the roll. All in favor will answer "aye;" opposed "no."

Roll call showed 38 "ayes" and 12 "nays."

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I desire to change my vote from "no" to "aye." From past experience I believe that tomorrow I may be able to carry this proposition unanimously. I wish the record to show I make the change for the purpose of reconsideration solely.

Mr. President: The motion is carried.

[e947559] [Editor's Note: When the Convention adopted the proposal to indefinitely postpone Substitute Proposition Number 660, the motion to adopt it was dropped in tandem.]

[e944754] Mr. President: The motion is carried. Third reading of Proposition Number 94.

Secretary (reading): "Mr. President, your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Number 94, and respectfully recommends that the appended amendments be adopted, and that the said proposition in the appended engrossed copy be adopted and revised therein.

[e944755] Mr. Webb: I make in good faith this motion, believing there is no single thing in this entire proposition that in any way affects our constitution or the State of Arizona. I have been informed by those who have carefully studied it, and have personally examined it, and can find no single word that is necessary. I therefore move that further consideration of the entire proposition be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Osborn: I second the motion.

[e944757] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I want to read very briefly from the "Equity Series: published in Philadelphia, in the interests of improvement in government and especially those methods that will result in a more perfect democracy. Here is what they have for a Bill of Rights: "Having confidence in the people of the State for self-government, they are hereby granted the power to enact such laws on any and all subjects as in their wisdom they may deem right and proper." In all state constitutions except Michigan there is a clause entitled "Bill of Rights" which are usually restrictions upon legislation. The number of these declarations vary greatly. Michigan has no bill of rights; Georgia 5, while Wyoming and North Carolina have 37. They usually run from 20 to 30, while liberty has been just as well preserved in Michigan or Georgia as in Wyoming or North Carolina. It is therefore reasonable to presume no bill of rights is necessary. I therefore move an amendment that the proposition under consideration be stricken out, and that this bill of rights be substituted. I offer the substitute I have just read as an amendment.

Mr. Lynch: As has been stated by the gentleman from Yuma, contrary to the little document published by the "Equity Series" there is a bill of rights in the United States Constitution, and all writers refer to it as the "Bill of Rights." They are the first ten amendments adopted immediately after the adoption of the Constitution, and were adopted because the State of Virginia and one or two other states would not come into the Union until the State of New York adopted this Bill of Rights. The absolute importance and necessity has been shown by the gentleman from Yuma. Take the writ of habeas corpus. This says it cannot be suspended or denied by the powers of the state. Now you strike that out and in a federal procedure the writ could not be denied under the federal constitution, but under a state proceeding I take it if there was an application for habeas corpus you could not get it without some reference thereto in the state constitution. The same would apply to excessive bail. Without this provision, prohibitory bail could be required in the state proceedings. For these reasons it seems absolutely necessary that we have some bill of rights, and I think the one drawn up is about right.

[e944760] Mr. President: The question will first be on the indefinite postponement of this proposition. All in favor will answer "aye;" opposed "no." The motion is lost.

[e944759] Mr. President: [...] The question will now come up on the amendment of the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Jones. Those in favor of adopting the amendment as offered by the gentleman from Maricopa will answer "aye;" opposed "no." The motion is lost.

[e944761] Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. Chairman, I move an amendment to section 13, after the end of the sentence, making the section read, "the privileges of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended by the authorities of the state unless when, in case of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it.”

Mr. Baker: I second the motion.

[e944762] Mr. Connelly: Mr. President, in case of rebellion or war would this have anything to do with the military law being enforced in the state?

Mr. Lynch: In reply, I would state to the gentleman that during the Civil War the privileges of the writ of habeas corpus was suspended in many states at many times.

Mr. Ingraham: Mr. President, I am opposed to the amendment for the reason that the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus is opposed to the spirit of republican government. It smacks of Prussia or military Germany. It is true that the writ of habeas corpus was suspended for a brief time by the United States government during the Civil War, and there was not any act of the Lincoln administration that brought down upon its head more severe criticism than the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus, although the stress of the time was as great as could ever come upon any country or state. It was only through the consummate tact of Abraham Lincoln that that criticism did not result in great injury to the cause of the North. At the time the severest criticism was aroused there was a man from Indiana, I believe, Vallandigham by name, who was confined. The writ of habeas corpus had been suspended, and when that criticism was most severe, Lincoln had him taken to the Confederate lines, given a kick, as it were, and sent into the country to which he belonged. The action was so apropos and placed the matter in such a ridiculous light that the criticism thereafter was considerably lessened. I cannot think of any case in which the State of Arizona would be compelled to shut up a man in a dungeon and not give him the benefit of the constitution and the laws of the State of Arizona. I cannot dream of our being under such circumstances here. The suspension of the writ of habeas corpus means practically [words missing].

[e944763] Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President, now there are places in this constitution where we declare—and nobody is ready to deny it—that every man shall have the right to a speedy and open trial, and then upon top of that, and in the face of that clear recognition of the rights of men, wish to circumscribe the privilege and rights of men by making a loophole, a way whereby by calling a certain situation a rebellion, or treason, or something of that kind, violate this right. The committee studied over this matter probably more than any other one section, and why the gentlemen propose to widen the scope of the privilege of the writ I cannot say. If they are going to try to increase it. I will move to amend section 13 by striking out at the end of the line “by the authorities of the state.” I so move.

Mr. Roberts: I second the motion.

[e944764] Mr. President: I would suggest to the gentlemen to vote on the first amendment first.

Mr. Crutchfield: I have no objection.

Mr. President: The question is up on the amendment of the gentleman from Cochise.

Mr. Ellinwood: I ask for roll call.

Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I would like to read to the convention the history of other constitutions on this matter. I find on examination that the provision made by the gentleman from Cochise is that it shall never be suspended except in case of invasion or rebellion in the following states: Arkansas, Colorado, California, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Montana, Louisiana, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, New Jersey, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming. It is left out in the following states: Alabama, Georgia, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Texas, West Virginia.

Mr. Feeney: It is left out in the old Democratic states. In the past history of our country that will take a long time before we outlive it, and I absolutely object because the suspension may be allowed by the federal statutes and by the President, but in the state I object to this being there because it never has been suspended except for a time that it might be the weapon of privileged interests.

[e944765] Mr. President: Call the roll on the adoption of the amendment proposed by Mr. Ellinwood. Those in favor will answer "aye" as their names are called; opposed "no." The secretary will call the roll.

Roll call showed 16 "ayes" and 32 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 762)

[e944766] Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my amendment.

[e944767] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move you that section 16 as it appears in the report of the committee of the whole be inserted instead of section 16.

Mr. Short: I second the motion.

[Editor's Note: It is unclear what text Cunniff refers to here, as the Convention adopted the Committee of the Whole amendments to Substitute Proposition Number 94. For this amendment, the editors have instead proposed the text of the section as it appears in the final Constitution.]

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 762)

[e944768] The motion prevailed.

[e944769] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): Mr. Chairman, I would like to have some of the committee explain the purpose of injecting the language in section 27 into the bill of rights. What is it designed to accomplish?

Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President, I do not know that the question was put to me, but the purpose of this, as I take it, is to emphasize the value of the fundamental principles and call attention to the fact that they are the real basis for all laws. It only gives emphasis to the fundamental and gives it preference.

Mr. Ingraham: Mr. Chairman, I think the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation will make that the opening sentence of the bill of rights. I think the very fact that certain gentlemen on the floor of this convention have moved that this entire bill of rights be stricken out is the best illustration of the necessity of impressing upon our minds the truth of section 27. It seems to me that will make an excellent opening sentence to this declaration of rights.

[e944770] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move you that section 27 as it appears in the bill of rights, be made section 1 of the bill of rights.

Mr. Crutchfield: I second the motion.

[e944771] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): Mr. President, I move to strike that out. It looks as if we were trying to teach a primary class, and we would draw a picture of a mule and then say "this is a mule." I think it is absurd.

[e944772] Mr. Cunniff: The constitution is a declaration of policy and there is no declaration of policy we can make that is more valuable than this.

[e944773] Mr. President: The question will come up on the amendment offered by Mr. Jones of Maricopa that we strike out section 27. Those in favor will answer "aye;" opposed "no." The nays have it.

[e944774] The question will come up on the amendment of the gentleman from Yavapai that section 27 will be made section 1 of the bill of rights. Those in favor signify by saying "aye;" those opposed "no." The "ayes" have it and it is so ordered.

[e944775] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. Chairman, I move that the proposition be adopted as amended.

Mr. Moore: I second the motion.

[e944776] Mr. President: Those in favor will signify by saying "aye;" those opposed "no." The "ayes" have it.

[e944777] Mr. President: [...] The question comes up on the third reading of the proposition. Call the roll on the third reading—final passage.

[e944778] Mr. President: [...] Those in favor of the passage of Proposition Number 94 as amended will answer “aye” as their names are called; those opposed will answer “no.” The secretary will call the roll.

Roll call showed 41 “ayes” and 7 “nays.”

Mr. President: Proposition Number 94, bill of rights, is passed.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 763)

[e944780] Secretary (reading): Proposition Number 43.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move that the proposition as amended be adopted.

Mr. Parsons: I second the motion.

[e944781] Mr. President: It has been moved and seconded that Proposition Number 43 be adopted as revised. Those in favor signify by saying “aye;” opposed “no.” The “ayes” have it and it is so ordered.

[e944782] Mr. President: [...] Third reading of the proposition.

[e944783] Mr. President: [...] Those in favor of the proposition will answer “aye” as their names are called; opposed “no.” The secretary will call the roll on final passage.

Roll call showed 44 “ayes” and 3 “nays.”

[e944788] Mr. Cunniff: The next is Ordinance, which is the only one left on the table. I think the only amendment we have made was where we cut out the words “by Congress.”

Mr. Ingraham: I move that we change the word “the foregoing” to “this” at the beginning of section 13.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 763)

[e944789] The motion prevailed.

[e944792] Mr. Ingraham: Mr. President, in Oklahoma, you will remember they had only one election at which the constitution was ratified and state officers elected. Under the provisions of our Enabling Act we must first have a ratification election and later another election for state officers, so it will work out best to have election Ordinance Number 1 relate to the first election, which will be the ratification, and election Ordinance Number 2 relate to the election of officers.

[e944791] Mr. Cunniff: I move that Substitute Proposition Number 119 be adopted as amended.

[e944793] Mr. President: If there is no objection, the motion will be considered carried.

[e944794] Mr. President: [...] The question will come up on the final passage. Call the roll, Mr. Secretary.

[e944795] Roll call showed 46 “ayes” and no “nays.”
Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

Mr. Orme: Mr. President, I move that that number be changed to 149.

Mr. Franklin: I second that motion.

[e944816] Mr. Cobb: Mr. President, was not that committee instructed to bring in a report?

Mr. President: They are going to bring in a typewritten copy.

Mr. Feeney: Mr. President, I move we take a recess subject to the call of the gavel.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 764)

Mr. Moeur: I second the motion.

[e945004] Mr. President: Those in favor will answer "aye;" and those opposed "no." The secretary will call the roll.

Mr. President: The report of the committee of the whole has been adopted and Proposition Number 149 indefinitely postponed.

[e945007] Mr. Winsor: I move that the president appoint a select committee of three to which shall be referred the matter of water and water rights, with instructions to bring in a proposition declaring the common law doctrine of riparian water to be of no force or effect, and validating the existing rights to the use of water.

[e945010] Mr. Cunniff: I move to amend that the words “and nothing more” shall be added.

[e945011] [Editor’s Note: The amendment was not mentioned again.]

(Editorial)

[e945012] Mr. Baker: I move an amendment that the matter be referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Water Rights, with instructions as announced.

[e945013] Mr. Winsor: I accept the amendment.

[e945014] Mr. Baker: I think we ought to do that out of respect to the honorable committee of the convention. I do not think we would be justified, with several honorable gentlemen on this committee, to slap them in the face in this manner.

Mr. Parsons: I agree with the gentleman from Maricopa that the convention ought to respect its committees, but I believe it is a poor rule that will not work both ways, and when a committee fails to respect the convention, it forfeits its right to respect. We have just done what Judge Baker asked us to do, and the committee ignored the request of the convention, and I say, let the matter rest where it is. I say if we are men, and have any respect for our own dignity, we should not do this. I do not believe in it, and I shall oppose it.

Mr. Winsor: I think if we are men we ought to be able to determine these questions on their merits and not like children, and if this provision should be in the constitution (and it has several times been declared the sense of the convention that it ought to be) we should put it there without consideration for any little difference that may be caused by the action of any committee.

Mr. Ingraham: I want to say just a word, that the Committee on Agriculture and Water Rights has the right to bring in as many propositions new or old as they care to.

Mr. Moeur: Has the Committee on Water Rights the right to bring in something under a different name when they have not got the right name?

Mr. Ingraham: They brought this in as Proposition Number 149, a new proposition. That is the right of any committee in this convention.

Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, we have consumed two hours, and the question now is shall the convention refer the matter back to the committee?

Mr. Orme: Mr. President, I would rather it be referred to some other committee. After you put the question, I wish to arise to a question of personal privilege.

[e945015] Mr. Winsor: I renew my motion that it be referred to a committee to be appointed by the president.

[e945016] Mr. Webb: I want to suggest that possibly the articles of the Utah constitution will meet with unanimous consent. They are just two lines. "All existing rights to the use of any of the waters in this state for any useful or beneficial purposes are hereby recognized and confirmed."

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 770-771)

[e945017] Mr. Winsor: My motion went a little further than that. In any event the gentleman's suggestion would have to be introduced as a new proposition under the rules.

Mr. Webb: Not if you give unanimous consent.

[e945018] Mr. Cunniff: I move that the proposition read by the gentleman from Graham be copied verbatim from the Utah constitution.

[e945019] Mr. Ingraham: I object. That is an infraction of the rules.

[e945020] Mr. Webb: I move the rules be suspended and this be adopted.

[e945021] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, are we going to do things without any system?

[e945022] Mr. President: The question will come up on the motion of the gentleman from Yuma, to refer this matter to a committee of three to be appointed by the chair.

[e945024] Mr. Webb: I move as a substitute that the rules be suspended and the article in the Utah constitution on "water rights" be adopted.

[e945025] Mr. Winsor: Before this is done, I will wager that no such proceeding as that has ever been heard of in a constitutional convention or in any legislative body. There is no proposition before us, and nothing on the secretary's desk. There is absolutely nothing in an official way to act upon. I would like to know by what process the gentleman proposes to take his proposition up.

[e945026] Mr. President: Those in favor of the motion of the gentleman from Yuma will answer "aye;" opposed "nay." The "ayes" have it and it is so ordered

way, shape or form. I say when I was elected to this convention I had the right to cast my vote as I saw fit, and I have redeemed every promise and every plank in the platform on which I ran. I claim the right to vote on every proposition as my conscience dictates. I claim I was elected to draw up a plain constitution with no radical elements in it, and I propose to carry that out as my conscience dictates. I am a laboring man, and have as much respect for the laboring man as any man in the country. I look after the tramps and men in my charge, and they all come to me and say I am their friend. I am never above speaking to these poor unfortunates. I have always helped men again and again to labor in this territory. I have labored myself, and I always expect to labor, and I deny the right of any man to say I oppose labor in any way, shape or form. I deny the right of any man to say I cannot vote on any proposition that comes up here according to the dictates of my conscience and according to the rules, and I defy any man to say I am not a Democrat now and forever. I have lived here for years, and raised a family; I expect to bury my bones in the territory. I came here with a hearty wish to draw a constitution for the people of Arizona as best we could, and second to none, and I propose to use my best endeavors to do so, and no man has a right to attack me in the way I vote. (applause)

[e945036] Mr. Lynch: Mr. President, just one word from me personally with reference to a remark I made, which I think was misunderstood. When I made a statement with reference to the Maricopa County delegation about a certain proposition, I referred to them in a representative capacity. I have the highest regard for the ability and intelligence of the gentleman from Maricopa County, especially with reference to irrigation. Now when the irrigation measure was first published we had a storm of disapproval from water people in the district we represent and some of them came to us individually and asked us to fight this for certain grounds we have endeavored to make plain. We have done so. We want the fairest irrigation measure, and we want it for the interest not of any particular party or section, but for the people at large.

[e945037] Mr. Orme: I did not refer to the gentleman from Graham in any way, shape or form. They have a perfect right to vote as they see fit.

[e945052] Mr. Cunniff: If there is no objection, I would like to revert to the head of "Reports of standing committees," as the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation wishes to report now on Substitute Proposition Number 140, and Substitute Proposition Number 82.

[e945053] Mr. Cunniff: If there is no objection, I would like to revert to the head of "Reports of standing committees," as the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation wishes to report now on Substitute Proposition Number 140, and Substitute Proposition Number 82.

[e945051] Secretary (reading): Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 140, and respectfully recommends that as revised and incorporated in Substitute Number 82 it be adopted. Your committee further begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 82, being the judiciary proposition, and respectfully recommends that the appended amendments be made thereto, and that the said proposition as amended and revised in the appended engrossed copy be adopted.

772-773)

[e945054] Secretary (reading): Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 140, and respectfully recommends that as revised and incorporated in Substitute Number 82 it be adopted. Your committee further begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 82, being the judiciary proposition, and respectfully recommends that the appended amendments be made thereto, and that the said proposition as amended and revised in the appended engrossed copy be adopted.

772-773)

[e945055] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I move that the report of the committee be adopted.

Mr. Ingraham: I second the motion.

[e945056] Mr. Cunningham: Mr. President, in our printed copy in line 22, page 3, appears the word "cause." That has in the committee's report been changed to "case," and the same thing in line 24, the last word of that section. It is very doubtful whether that is intended to work the effect that the gentleman making the change expected.

Mr. Winsor: I would suggest that the report of the committee be adopted, after which any amendments desired may be introduced.

[e945057] Mr. President: Those in favor of adopting the report on the committee will answer "aye;" those opposed "no." The "ayes" have it.

[e945058] Mr. Cunningham: I move the word "case" in section 3, lines 22 and 24 be changed to the word "cause."

[e945060] Mr. President: Those in favor of that motion will answer "aye;" opposed "no." The "ayes" have it.

[e945059] Mr. Goldwater: Mr. President, I would like to ask a question for information. On page 8, line 5, it says that justices of the peace may be made police judges of incorporated cities. The title we have in Prescott is police recorder. How would this affect the proposition?

Mr. Cunningham: The City of Prescott works under a special charter and created the office for that city of police recorder.

[e945062] Mr. Lynch: There are also police judges in incorporated cities, and this provision is that a justice of the peace may be a police judge. I want to move an amendment that the word "term" on page 3 in line 8 be changed to "time" for the reason that all the judges have the same term, and also in line 12.

Mr. Short: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 773)

[e945064] The motion prevailed.

[e945065] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I propose an amendment to section 10, line 15, page 8, as follows: Before the word "each" insert the words "until otherwise provided by law," and on line 16 strike out the word "six" and insert the word "five."

Mr. Roberts: I second the motion.

[e945066] Mr. Connelly: I move that that be amended by striking out the word “five” and inserting the words “forty-one hundred.”

[Editor’s Note: As both the Minutes and the Arizona Republican agree on forty-two as the amendment, the editors have followed their account.]

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 773)

[e944955] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, as a matter of fact, this rule would not apply at all. The date has not been fixed for final adjournment. The fact that our pay stops on a certain date does not affect the date of final adjournment at all.

[e946341] Mr. Kingan [...] Mr. President, I move the adoption of the report.
Mr. Parsons: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 789)

[e946425] The motion prevailed.

[e946433] Mr. President: Shall it be engrossed and have a third reading? Those in favor of engrossing and giving the proposition a third reading say "aye;" those opposed "nay."

[e946439] Mr. Chairman: [...] The "ayes" have it and it is so ordered.

[e945089] Secretary (reading): Substitute Proposition Number 82.

Mr. President: This is the third reading of Substitute Proposition Number 82.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I move an amendment to section 10, line 15, page 9, as follows: insert the words "until otherwise provided by law;" and in line 16, strike out the word "six" and insert the word "five."

Mr. Jones (Yavapai) [Minutes, page 334, indicate Colter]: I second the motion of the gentleman from Yuma.

[e945096] Mr. Parsons: I ask for a division of the question.

Mr. Winsor: This is not a question that can be divided.

Mr. Jones: (Yavapai): I second the motion of the gentleman from Yuma.

Mr. President: All those in favor of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Yuma will answer "aye" as their names are called, and those opposed will answer "nay."

Mr. Colter: I would like to ask the gentleman from Yuma a question.

Mr. Winsor: You have the privilege so far as I am concerned.

Mr. Colter: I would like to know if in cutting down the salary of the judges that you intend to make a uniform cut on all salaries. If so, I am in favor of it.

Mr. Winsor: That is a secret.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 789-790)

[e945110] Mr. President: Call the roll.

Roll call showed 27 "ayes" and 21 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is carried.

[e945118] Mr. Winsor: In line 15, I move to strike out the word "five," as it applies to the judges of the superior courts in Yavapai, Maricopa, Cochise and Gila counties and insert the word "four" in line 22.

Mr. Colter [Minutes, page 334, indicate Jones of Yavapai]: I second the motion.

[Editor's Note: Goff's editorial note that the Minutes say this motion was seconded by Jones is incorrect. This motion that the Minutes describes as seconded by Jones is, in fact, a different motion by Winsor, made after a discussion on dividing the question.]

[e945121] Mr. Ellinwood: I ask for a division of the question.

Mr. President: The gentleman asks for a division of the question.

[e945127] Mr. Winsor: In reply to the request for a division of the question, I desire to withdraw my motion for the purpose of submitting it in such form that it cannot be divided and there can be no confusing of the real question at issue. In the different classes of counties it is necessary or proper to have graduated scale of salaries for judges, whether that be higher or lower I shall propose what I consider a reasonable and equitable scale.

[e945128] Mr. Lynch: This question does not need any debating whatever. If the people want judges who are not qualified, for no qualified judge will accept an office at such a salary, then there should be a way of allowing them to say what kind of judges they want. You have put pinhead commissioners upon a high salary and now want to lower the salary of judges—the most important office in the state.

Mr. President: Those in favor of dividing the question say “aye;” those opposed “nay,” as their names are called.

Mr. Parsons: Now, Mr. President, if there are any counties in this territory or state that do want to have low salaried judges and secure poor judges, then I say they should have the opportunity to vote for such a salary, but I also state that there are counties which do not want to place the salary so low that no judge but a poor, inexperienced and unqualified man will have it, but we want the salary so fixed that it will give to that high class of judges ample remuneration for their good service. I know not what all the counties want, but as for Cochise we do not want any such salaries attached to our judges, and we ask for a division of the question.

Mr. Connelly: I think that the salary of judges in Arizona is too high and I can see no use in trying to get something that you have not got the money to pay for. Nothing in the constitution compels the judges to take these jobs, and they do not have to take them if they do not want them. Oklahoma only pays \$4,000 for her supreme judges; \$3,000 for her superior judges and in South Dakota the supreme judge only receives \$2,500 a year. You are doubling the salary here in some cases and making the salaries to exceed those of states with much greater population. We have 200,000 people where other states have millions, yet you would pay the judges double the salary they pay. I do not believe in paying big salaries when we have nothing to pay with.

[e945132] Mr. Ellinwood: I understand the question is whether the motion shall be divided or not, and as I read rule 28, I infer that the motion will take a two-thirds vote.

Mr. Winsor: I insist there is nothing to divide. I have withdrawn my original motion and my amended motion provides for a scale of salaries, which, while it might be amended, cannot be divided. Those who want higher salaries [should vote] against my motion; and if they do not they can so express themselves.

Mr. President: The secretary will call the roll and those who are in favor of a division of the question will answer “aye;” those opposed “nay.”

Mr. Goldwater: I think I understood there was no need of taking a vote on the question of division.

Mr. President: Call the roll.

Mr. Ellinwood: There is no question on the division.

Mr. President: Call the roll.

Mr. Webb: I submit to the decision of the chair.

[e945134] Mr. Ellinwood: I rise to a point of order, I do not see how it can be amended by saying “scale shall be as follows.” What is to be put into that?

[e945137] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, if the gentleman desires to be so extremely particular on that point I will so arrange my previous amendment to fit his fastidious taste.

[e945142] Mr. Parsons: I rise to a point of order. He has no right to make a revision of the question, for he has exhausted his rights.

[e945143] [Editor's Note: Instead of revising the motion, Winsor offered an amendment in lieu of his previous motion.]

(Editorial)

[e945148] [Editor's Note: In response to the motion for division, Winsor moved an amendment in lieu of his original amendment that while "might be amended, cannot be divided" (p. 791).]

(Editorial)

[e945228] Mr. Winsor: In lieu of my previous motion I move that the scale of salaries of superior court judges of the counties of Arizona be as follows: Maricopa, Yavapai, Cochise, Gila and Pima per year each \ $4,000; Coconino, Apache, Navajo, Santa Cruz, Yuma, Pinal, Graham, Greenlee and Mohave counties per year each \ $3,000.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second that motion.

[e945237] Mr. Weinberger: I do not know just how to amend that motion.

Mr. Kingan: I will just state that the amendment offered by the gentleman does not even refer to section 10. He says he is to amend section 10 and I cannot see where he has added to or taken anything from it.

Mr. President: He will have to revise his motion.

Mr. Winsor: I shall be glad to do so, but I am sure that every gentleman knows just what I am trying to do.

Mr. President: There is nothing before the convention.

[e945241] Mr. Cunningham: I move the section be approved as it stands.

Mr. Lynch: I second that motion.

[e945174] Mr. Lynch moved, seconded by Mr. Ellinwood that the Convention take a recess until 7:30 p.m., November 30th, 1910.

[Editor's Note: Given the discrepancy in the order of events between the Journal and the Minutes and the fact that only the Minutes records this motion to take a recess, it is unclear where exactly in the timeline this motion took place.]

[e945176] Lost.

[e945337] Mr. Cassidy: I have an amendment to offer to section 10. I move that the following words be stricken: "that in no case shall salaries of the superior court judges be fixed at a smaller amount than herein named."

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I second that motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 791-792)

[e945343] Mr. President: Gentlemen, you have heard the motion of the gentleman from Maricopa county, Mr. Cassidy. All in favor say "aye;" those opposed "nay" when the roll is called.

Roll call showed 34 "ayes" and 16 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion prevails.

[e945345] Mr. Winsor: My motion lies on the secretary's desk.

Secretary (reading): "Amendment to section 10. I move that the scale of salaries of superior court judges of Arizona at line 22 be: Maricopa, Yavapai, Pima, Gila and Cochise counties \ $4,000; Graham, Coconino, Apache, Navajo, Santa Cruz, Pinal, Greenlee and Mohave counties \ $3,000."

Mr. President: Are you ready for the question?

[e945346] Mr. Ellinwood: I rise to a point of order. This is not striking out or adding to.

[e945347] Mr. President: That point of order is not well taken, and I would say, gentlemen, that this is a matter that affects the whole territory. Call the roll on the amendment.

[e945720] Mr. Cobb: So you refuse to divide the question. If so I shall decline to vote on it.

Mr. Feeney: If there are any members who want a judge for less than \ $5,000 I am willing they should have him, but as for me I want no such scab judges and I shall vote no.

Mr. Lynch: Like my fellow member, Mr. Feeney, I want no scabby, low salaried judges, and I vote no.

Mr. Moeur: Believing that the salary of judge is still too high, I vote "aye," anyhow.

Mr. Parsons: Because I am not in favor of this measure and cannot vote on it intelligently, I refuse to vote, or I ask to be excused from voting.

Mr. President: The gentleman is excused from voting.

Mr. Webb: I would like to be excused from voting since I cannot cast an intelligent vote.

Mr. President: The gentleman is excused.

[e945722] Roll call showed 31 “ayes” and 16 “nays.”

Mr. Cunningham: I would like to have the amendment read.

Mr. Winsor: The amendment reads as follows: “Maricopa, Yavapai, Pima, Gila and Cochise counties \ $4,000; Coconino, Apache, Navajo, Mohave, Santa Cruz, Pinal, Graham, and Greenlee counties \ $3,000.”

[e945728] Mr. Cunniff: I move you that it is the sense of the convention that section 10 as read by Mr. Winsor be adopted.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 792)

[e945738] The motion prevailed.

[e947444] [Editor’s Note: By adopting Cunniff’s proposal to adopt Winsor’s amendment, Cunniff’s motion is implicitly dropped.]

(Editorial)

[e945739] Mr. Cunningham: I move to amend section 10, where the words “four thousand” appears to read “five thousand in Cochise, Maricopa, Yavapai and Gila counties.”

Mr. Parsons: I second that motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 792-793)

[e945743] The motion failed to pass.

[e945746] Mr. Cunningham: I move you that section 10 be referred to the committee, because we are paying Mohave and Santa Cruz counties the same salary as judges of Graham and Greenlee and more than Cochise, according to the work they do.

[e945748] Mr. Cunniff: I would like to know what committee you would refer it to unless it be to the judiciary committee.

Mr. Cunningham: No, sir. The judiciary, as far as I am concerned, refuses to have anything to do with it.

Mr. Connelly: I do not see why Mohave and Santa Cruz should not have as much as Graham and Greenlee if they do the same work.

Mr. Lynch: I would like to ask the gentleman from Cochise if this same argument would apply to county officers.

Mr. Connelly: I have no doubt of it, if they were put back where they belong—Graham and Greenlee together, and Pima and Santa Cruz.

Mr. Lynch: I wonder if you would be willing to have Cochise put back into Sonora.

Mr. Connelly: Not just now.

Mr. President: What is your pleasure, gentlemen?

Mr. Kingan: It seems to me that the question of salaries of judges is one of the most important and serious questions that comes before this convention, and it seems to me that these members who so strongly opposed the paying of adequate salaries and securing the best-qualified judges do not realize the importance of the matter that they have passed upon here. If any one of these men had their lives or property, or the lives of their mothers, fathers, sisters or brothers, in danger, and should he come before a judge, then would they realize the importance of having a qualified man as judge, and a man competent to sit in judgement upon such cases and not a mere blacksmith. If it is blacksmiths you are wanting, then you can get them for the magnificent sum of \ $3,000 or \ $4,000 a year.

Mr. Colter: I would like to ask the gentleman a question, if he will yield.

Mr. Kingan: I yield.

Mr. Colter: I would like to know what has become of all the blacksmith judges we have had in Arizona in the past. (loud applause)

Mr. Cunniff: It seems to me that this question is being uselessly discussed, when you take into consideration that the salary of the territorial judges is now \ $5,000 per year, and they have the work of four counties, while under this constitution they will have but one.

[e945751] Mr. Lynch: I move that Substitute Proposition Number 82 as amended do pass.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second that motion.

[e945752] Mr. President: Those in favor of the motion will answer "aye;" those opposed "nay," as the secretary calls the roll on the final passage of Substitute Proposition Number 82.

Roll call showed 37 "ayes" and 13 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is carried and Substitute Proposition Number 82 is passed.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 793-794)

[e946476] Mr. Cunniff moved, seconded by Mr. Winsor, that in view of the fact that Proposition No. 140 was incorporated in Substitute Proposition No. 82, that Proposition No. 140 be considered adopted.

[e946480] Mr. Cunniff moved, seconded by Mr. Winsor, that in view of the fact that Proposition No. 140 was incorporated in Substitute Proposition No. 82, that Proposition No. 140 be considered adopted. Carried.

Substitute Proposition referred to Committee referred on Style, Revision and Compilation.

[e946520] Substitute Proposition referred to Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation.

[e946546] Mr. Cunniff, Chairman of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, made the following report:

Phoenix, Arizona, November 30, 1910

Mr. President:

Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition No. 33 and respectfully recommends that the amendment appended be adopted, that in the appended engrossed copy the said Proposition be adopted as amended and revised.

M. G. CUNNIFF, Chairman.

[e946547] [Editor's Note: Substitute Proposition Number 33 was referred back to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e946603] [Editor's Note: The Committee considered the report's recommendation to adopt the revised version of section 7 into Substitute Proposition Number 33.]

(Editorial)

[e946609] Mr. Cunniff: The report of the Committee on Executive includes Proposition Number 33, as reported by the legislative committee in the printed copy. I move you that Substitute Proposition Number 33, with section 7, as amended, and adopted by the committee of the whole, be adopted and revised.

Mr. Feeney: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 794)

[e946620] The motion prevailed.

[e946638] Mr. Winsor: I would like to offer the following amendment to section 7, at the end of the second paragraph add the following: "After final action by the governor or following the adoption of a bill notwithstanding his objections, it shall be filed with the secretary of state." I find that on looking at the course bills will take in the legislature that there is no provision for their final disposition after action has been taken by the governor. The legislative proposition provides that bills shall be filed with the governor or sent to the governor after passage by the legislature, but no provision is made for their final filing with any officer, and it is to supply this deficiency that I propose this amendment.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the amendment.

[e946644] The motion prevailed.

[e946647] Mr. Weinberger: To ascertain how consistent the members are, I am going to propose this amendment: On page 5, line 10, substitute for the word "five" the word "four," and on page 5, line 11, substitute for the words "four thousand" the words "thirty-five hundred."

Mr. Keegan: I second the amendment.

[e946654] Mr. Coker: I move an amendment that the word "four," as amended by Mr. Weinberger, be replaced by the word "two."

Mr. Colter: I second the motion.

[e946656] Mr. President: All those in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Pinal will answer "aye;" opposed "no." The motion is lost.

[e946659] Mr. Lynch: I move to amend the motion of the gentleman from Gila by substituting the word "six" in line 10, in place of the word "four," and on line 11, the words "four thousand" in place of "thirty-five hundred."

Mr. Cobb: I second that motion.

[e946662] Mr. President: All those in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Graham will answer "aye;" opposed "nay." The motion is lost.

[e946670] Mr. President: [...] Now the question comes up on the motion of the gentleman from Gila. All in favor will answer "aye;" opposed "nay." The "ayes" have it, and it is so ordered.

[e946671] Mr. Connelly: If I am not mistaken, the last two lines are still "twenty-five hundred." Is that correct?

Mr. President: Yes.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 794-795)

[e946672] Mr. Connelly: I move you in lines 14 and 15, the words "twenty-five hundred" be stricken out, and "three thousand" be substituted.

Mr. Feeney: I second the motion.

[e946674] Mr. Connelly: I move you in lines 14 and 15, the words “twenty-five hundred” be stricken out, and “three thousand” be substituted.

Mr. Feeney: I second the motion.

[e946679] Mr. Short: I have an amendment to offer in section 6. On page 3, line 17, after the word “term” insert the following: “and in case of like inability of the secretary of state to discharge the duties of the office, the powers and duties of the office shall in like manner devolve upon the state auditor.” We have no provision in case of the death or inability of the secretary to act in this capacity. I think that it is necessary.

[e946682] Mr. Lynch: In case of death of the auditor, what will we do?

Mr. Weinberger: That is a matter that can be left to the legislature, and I suggest it be left to the legislature. We hope the governor and secretary of state will not both die before the legislature meets.

Mr. Ingraham: I second the motion of the gentleman from Yuma.

[e946683] Mr. President: All in favor of the motion answer “aye;” opposed “no.” The motion is lost.

[e946684] Mr. Lynch: I move you that committee Substitute Proposition Number 33 as amended do pass.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

[e946685] Mr. President: This is the third reading. All in favor will answer “aye,” as their names are called; opposed “no.” The secretary will call the roll. Roll call showed 42 “ayes” and 8 “nays.”

Mr. President: The proposition has passed. Is there any other proposition up for third reading?

[e947221] Mr. Cunniff: The Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report on substitute paragraph 7 of Substitute Proposition 33. In the interest of order I should like to make a motion following the report. The report is as follows:

”Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined substitute paragraph 7 of Substitute Proposition 33, and respectfully recommends that it be adopted a revised and amended in the accompanying draft of Substitute Proposition Number 33.”

(Editorial, Page 795)

[e947223] [Editor's Note: Substitute Section 7 of Substitute Proposition Number 33 was referred back to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e947229] [Mr. Cunniff:] I move that the substitute paragraph 7 of Substitute Proposition Number 33 be adopted.

Mr. Feeney: I second the motion.

[e947239] Mr. Winsor: What has become of section 19?

Mr. Cunniff: That was taken out to be put in another place.

Mr. Crutchfield: I think it should be in this bill. It belongs in this bill.

Mr. Cunniff: It was the sense of the committee that it should be incorporated elsewhere.

Mr. Winsor: May I ask where it is proposed to incorporate it?

Mr. Cunniff: I believe that it was the sense of the committee to incorporate that along with the fellow-servant or employe's liability proposition or some other document of that kind.

Mr. Weinberger: I believe this and other sections were to be put under the head of "miscellaneous."

Mr. Winsor: I think this is not [a] final compilation . It should be left in until we have a third reading.

Mr. Cunniff: I will suggest that after it is read the gentleman from Yuma can amend.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 795-796)

[e947232] The motion prevailed.

[e946253] Mr. Cunniff, Chairman of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, made the following report:

Phoenix, Arizona, November 30, 1910.

Mr. President:

Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition No. 6 and respectfully recommend that the appended amendment thereto be adopted and that said Proposition as amended and revised in the appended engrossed draft be adopted.

M.G. CUNNIFF,

Chairman.

[e946254] [Editor's Note: Substitute Proposition Number 6 was referred to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e946255] Mr. Cunniff moved, seconded by Mr. Jones of Yavapai, that the report of the Chairman of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation be adopted.

(The Minutes of the Arizona Constitutional Convention, Page 338)

[e946260] Carried.

[e946257] Mr. Cobb: Mr. President, I move as an amendment to section 1 that it be referred back to the legislative committee, and that the legislative committee be increased by a member from Pima County, Greenlee County, Coconino County and Mohave County.

Mr. Coker: I second the motion.

[e946258] Mr. President: You have heard the motion of the gentleman from Greenlee, Mr. Cobb, that section 1 be referred to the committee on legislative, and that the committee be increased by a member from Pima County, Greenlee County, Coconino County, and Mohave County.

Mr. Lynch: Mr. President, I would suggest that if he would frame his motion that it be referred to a select committee composed of the present committee together with the other members, it would avoid an infraction of the rules.

Mr. Cobb: Well, a select committee of the present legislative committee and the other four members which I named. The second day of the session of this convention, a resolution was introduced which provided for a certain number of committees and a certain number of members on these committees, and some of the committees were to be composed of thirteen members. Mr. Winsor introduced a resolution, I believe, and it was his understanding that there was to be one member from each county on these committees which had thirteen members, and I think this was the sense of this convention, but here we find the legislative committee with three counties that were not represented. I do not say anything about Greenlee County, because Greenlee was not considered at that time, and it does not seem to have been considered very much since, but Pima and Mohave had no representation on that committee, and I think it is manifestly unfair that this apportionment should be arranged by that committee without their having representation.

Mr. President: I would like to ask the gentleman from Yuma if the committees which have thirteen members were to have representation from each county.

Mr. Winsor: I shall have to deny the authorship of that motion. If it had been my idea, and I had been the author of this plan for the organization of committees, I should have proposed that there be fourteen members instead of thirteen, in order that the gentleman from Greenlee be on each committee.

Mr. Cobb: This apportionment is based upon the vote taken in 1908. We have had one election since 1908. The committee did not take that vote nor did it take the census. It seems that it took what was satisfactory to certain members of the committee. I telegraphed to the Director of the Census a few days ago, asking for the population of the several counties of Arizona. I have not as yet heard, and I do not think that this apportionment should be made until we know the population of the several counties.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I just want to say in opposition to the motion that this is simply prolonging the agony. I believe the gentlemen representing counties which did not have representation on the legislative committee, with the single exception of the gentleman from Greenlee, will admit that the committee endeavored in all earnestness to do entire justice to every county in the territory, and the members of that committee played no favorites whatever with any county. The committee acted in good faith, and I do not believe there is any need to reopen the subject.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I would like to call attention to the fact that the principal reason for asking for this is that three counties had no representation on that committee, and I personally have not heard the slightest complaint from a single one of them. I do not know whether the gentleman is appearing now as their champion or paid attorney, but I have heard no complaint from the representatives of these counties. I desire to add that this representation, as reported out by the committee, was not entirely satisfactory to me, but we worked hard over it, and we did finally those things that seemed right to every county in the territory.

Mr. Parsons: Mr. President, there is a phase of this matter suggested by the gentleman from Greenlee, Mr. Cobb, that I think we should consider in connection with the remarks made by my colleague from Cochise today, that we are nearing the limit of the time when we ought to get through the work of this convention. This is one of the most important propositions, on which has been spent a great deal of labor and if it is handed to another committee I think it will require just as much work to remodel it as it did before. They can not well be ready to report it back before our sixty days have elapsed, and I certainly think the motion should not prevail.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 796-797)

[e946259] Mr. President: Call the roll. Those in favor of the motion of the gentleman from Greenlee, Mr. Cobb, will answer "aye" as their names are called; those opposed will answer "no."

Roll call showed 6 "ayes" and 43 "nays."

[e946261] Mr. Osborn: Mr. President, I would like to offer an amendment to section 1 of this proposition, and that is that in line 2, where the figure "19" occurs before the word "members" it be changed to "14," and where the figure "2" occurs before the word "senators" it be changed to read "1."

Mr. Cobb: I second the motion.

[e946262] Lost.

[e946263] Mr. Coker: Mr. Chairman, in line 12, where the figure "1" occurs I move that the figure "2" be substituted therefor, and in the second line "35" be made to read "36."

[e946266] Mr. Osborn: Mr. Chairman, just one more motion and I am through. In line 9 before the word "representative," where the figure "6" occurs, I move it be stricken out and the figure "7" inserted in lieu thereof, so that it will read "Maricopa county, 2 Senators, and 7 Representatives." I want to appeal directly to my friends from Cochise County to support this motion. Maricopa has, lacking 103 people, as many as Cochise by the last census, and everyone I think will admit that the population of Maricopa County is stable. They are here year in and year out. We admit it has a big population, and it is a great county, and I believe the members from Cochise County sent up here to represent their county are our friends. I have a very friendly feeling toward "dear old Cochise," but I do believe that Maricopa is entitled to have the same representation in the lower house as the county of Cochise.

Mr. Cobb: I second the motion.

[e946267] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I have no argument to make against Maricopa County or any other county. I should like to have seconded the motion made by my friend from Pinal, but this representation was based upon a certain vote cast, and if that be made the basis, and we did make it the basis, it has been made fairly. If it is not right to make it the basis, it has been made fairly. If it is not right to make it the basis, then the entire representation should be changed. The difference between Maricopa and Cochise was 5,400 votes for Cochise and 4,600 for Maricopa. Pinal—the gentleman from there honestly thinks he is entitled to more representation, but on the vote on which we based this he had only 807 votes, so he is hardly entitled to one. Do not change this representation unless you change the basis upon which it was made, because if the basis be right then the apportionment and the division is right.

Mr. Cobb: I would like to ask a question. On what vote was this representation based?

Mr. Webb: The last general election of the territory.

Mr. Osborn: No.

Mr. Cobb: Why was it not based on the last election?

Mr. Webb: For the reason that it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that nothing like the entire vote of the territory was cast in this last election, and there was a very spirited contest at the election two years ago. In some counties I noticed that within ten votes of the registration was polled two years ago.

Mr. Osborn: Mr. Chairman, I do not believe it is fair to base this on the vote cast. I do not believe they can cite a single state in the Union that bases its representation on the votes cast, and I want to call attention that two years ago Cochise County did cast some 800 more votes than Maricopa, but I do not believe we should take that as a basis to figure on. In this last election Maricopa polled 4,300 and Cochise some 3,700 votes, so we beat them in the last election some 600 votes. So is it any more fair to take two years ago than it is to take two months ago?

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, it seemed to the members of the legislative committee that they had to bring in a report before this convention that was based on some definite basis. The committee did bring in such a report as that, and if there are changes to be made in one place there should be changes made in another place. And if this motion at present before the convention prevails, and "dear old Cochise" votes to give one more representative to Maricopa, I should say that I am very fond of "dear old Maricopa," and I shall make a motion that "dear old Yavapai" get one more, too.

Mr. President: Call the roll.

Mr. Kingan: Mr. President, I would like to say just a word in explanation of my vote. "Dear old Pima" is not satisfied with this proposition, either, but we had better endure the evils we have than risk those we know not when they will be. (laughter) I therefore vote no.

Mr. Short: This seems to be a case of misplaced confidence.

Mr. Cobb: I wish to call attention to the fact that this convention has robbed the cradle and the grave. Pima the oldest county, and Greenlee, the youngest.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I take exception to the terms "the cradle and the grave," especially the latter, for I take it the gentleman classes the members from Maricopa as "dead cases," whereas it is obvious that no such affliction can truthfully be applied to them.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 798-799)

[e946269] [Editor's Note: Coker's motion was not mentioned again.]

(Editorial)

[e946271] Roll call showed 10 "ayes" and 39 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 799)

[e946272] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I move as an amendment that the words "sent to the Governor" be stricken out and the words "presented to the Governor for his approval or rejection" be inserted.

[e946273] Mr. Cunningham: The bill provides, as I remember, in another place for that. This was intended when the bill was finally filed, it ought to be filed with the secretary of state.

Mr. Winsor: This particular provision is for the disposition of the bill after it is passed, and there is no other provision covering this point anywhere in any proposition.

[e946274] Mr. President: Those in favor of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Yuma, Mr. Winsor, will answer "aye;" opposed will answer "no." The "ayes" have it, and it is so ordered.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 799)

[e946275] Mr. Cunniff: I move that in section 12, as it appears in the engrossed copy, everything be stricken out beginning with the phrase “and no bill shall be passed or become law” in the second line of the typewritten copy—the remainder reading “unless it shall have been printed and upon the desks of the members at least three calendar legislative days prior to its final passage, providing that in case of urgency this provision may be dispensed with in each house by a vote on roll call of two-thirds of all the members elected thereto.” In the careful scrutiny that was given to that amendment when it was introduced by Mr. Ellinwood, we were in considerable doubt about the meaning, and this as the meaning we finally extracted after hours of study and discussion. The more our examination went on the more the idea grew in my mind that I was quite right in opposing this amendment when it was brought up in the first place, because, if through any inadvertence a bill did not happen to be printed and on the desks of all the members, the bill would then pass to the governor, according to the terms of this section. It would then be null and void, because the phrase reads not only that “it shall not be passed in either house” but that “it shall not become a law.” If this is in here it will nullify any law if the bill lacked an hour of being printed the required number of days. I consider it dangerous, and I therefore would move that it be stricken out.

Mr. Crutchfield: I second the motion.

[e946276] Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, I do not wish to enter into any discussion of this matter. That paragraph was taken from New York, Oklahoma and Michigan. It simply gives a chance for the public as well as the members to know what is going on in the legislature by requiring that bills be printed and on the members’ desks for three days before final action is taken on the measure. I read you the other day from the Michigan constitution of 1908 where they print the bills so that the members will know what is being done, and any bill before it is finally passed must be printed and on the members’ desks. I cannot see how it could be construed otherwise than a wise provision. I think it is eminently a proper matter.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I also had my grave doubts about the propriety of this provision when it was presented, and the more I think of it the more dangerous it appears to me. It appears to me that it might be absolutely impossible to pass a bill at all, inasmuch as the slightest sort of an amendment or correction of a word or of a punctuation mark would alter the bill. Therefore if it should pass after being altered it would not have been upon the desks of the members in its final form for the required three days and it might be declared unconstitutional on that account. I hope that the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Yavapai will be adopted.

[e946277] Mr. President: You have heard the motion. Those in favor of striking out that part of the motion will answer “aye;” those opposed “no.” The “ayes” have it. Any other amendments? If not, we will call the roll on the final passage of the bill.

[e946278] Mr. President: You have heard the motion. Those in favor of striking out that part of the motion will answer “aye;” those opposed “no.” The “ayes” have it. Any other amendments? If not, we will call the roll on the final passage of the bill.

[e946279] Roll call showed 36 “ayes” and 11 “nays.”

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

[e947241] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, we have now passed and adopted the Preamble, Bill of Rights, Boundaries, Distribution of Powers, Initiative and Referendum, Legislative Department, Executive Department, and Judiciary, which comes pretty close to making half of the constitution. I have recited the propositions in about the order in which they will appear in the constitution, but any subsequent insertion of matter in those articles can be made or any matter removed and placed elsewhere as appears proper. Therefore, I move that these propositions that I have mentioned, Preamble, Boundaries, Declaration of Rights, Distribution of Powers, Initiative and Referendum, Legislative Department, Executive Department, Impeachment, and Judiciary, be referred to the Committee on Printing and sent to the printer, and the usual number of copies printed.

[Editor’s Note: As the passed propositions had been referred to the Committee on Style for enrollment, they are unable to be represented as referred to the Committee on Printing here.]

(The Minutes of the Arizona Constitutional Convention, Pages 800-801)

[e947242] Mr. President: If there are no objections, the usual number of copies will be ordered printed. Those in favor will answer “aye;” those opposed will answer “no.” The “ayes” have it.

[e947244] Mr. Cunniff: I wish to mention one other matter that perhaps it would be advisable for the convention to act upon. It is merely a matter of form. The Committee on Revision, after putting in a number of propositions where the word “section” was written out in full, had a meeting of the committee last Sunday and decided that it was advisable to abbreviate that word, writing it “Sec.,” and in propositions that have been introduced subsequently have it so abbreviated. I, therefore, move that in the engrossing the word “Sections” be abbreviated.

Mr. Ingraham: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 801)

[e947246] The motion prevailed.

[e947247] Mr. Tuthill: I move we adjourn until 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.
Mr. Lynch: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 801)

[e947248] The motion prevailed.
Convention stood adjourned to 9:30, December 1, 1910.

[e945079] Roll call showed quorum present.

[e945080] Mr. President: The convention will rise for prayer.

and that it may be acceptable to the people and to the parties who may have the approval of the Constitution for this State and as one in heart and mind and voice [we pray] the Prayer of Thy only Begotten son: Our Father who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread and forgive us our debts as we forgive those who trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil for Thine is the Kingdom and the Power and the Glory forever, Amen.

[e945082] Mr. President: We will have the reading of the minutes.

[e945083] Minutes read and approved.

[e945084] Mr. President: Here is a letter addressed to the convention.

Secretary (reading): Letter from Eugene S. Ives, of Tucson, Arizona, regarding section 9, Substitute Proposition Number 113.

[e945085] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): Has Mr. Ives any authority to send in a proposition?

Mr. President: It is only a suggestion by communication.

[e945086] Mr. Winsor: I move you that the communication be laid on the table until Substitute Proposition 113 is before the convention.

[e945087] Mr. Cunniff: I move you that the communication be referred to the Committee on Railroads and Public Service Corporations.

[e945088] Mr. President: If there are no objections, the letter will be so referred. Reports of standing committees.

[e945097] Mr. President: If there are no objections the engrossed copies will be referred to the printing committee.

[e945111] Mr. Cunniff: "Mr. President: Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 18 and respectfully recommends that the appended amendments be adopted and that the said proposition as amended and revised in the appended engrossed draft be adopted."

[e945113] [Editor's Note: Substitute Proposition Number 18 was referred to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e945136] [Editor's Note: The list of appended amendments is not included in the records. For this reason, the editors have compared the current version of the text with the amendments proposed to it in the 1 December session and made the changes necessary for the amendments to be applied.]

(Editorial)

[e945115] Mr. Winsor: I move that the report of the committee be adopted.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 802-803)

[e945119] The motion prevailed.

[e945138] [Editor's Note: The list of appended amendments is not included in the records. For this reason, the editors have compared the final version of the text with the current version and subtracted the amendments named in the records in order to arrive on the text represented in this amendment event.]

(Editorial)

[e945140] Mr. Winsor: Now, Mr. President, I move that in section 2, line 14, the letter "s" as it now stands be stricken out.

[e945145] Mr. Cunniff: It was the sense of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation to make this plural.

Mr. Winsor: I believe that it is wrong.

Mr. Wood: I would like to ask the gentleman from Yuma a question. Would it not be possible to have more than one nomination for the same office, which would require the plural form of this word?

Mr. Cunniff: The committee examined that phrase and it was the sense of the committee to employ the plural form.

Mr. Winsor: You could just as well use the words "justices of the peace."

[e945150] Mr. Winsor moved, seconded by Mr. Short to amend line 14, page 2 by striking out the letter "s" from the word "nominations"; lost.

[e945154] Mr. Ingraham: In line 5, page 2, I move the following words be added: "The electoral district may include the entire state."

Mr. Goldwater: I second that motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 803)

[e945155] The motion prevailed.

[e945160] Mr. Webb: There was quite a debate on the question of whether the name of the other candidates [should] be printed on the other ballots. I offered then an amendment and I think that I now have a better plan which I am now offering. I move that section 5 be referred back to the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation for the amendment on the line I suggest. I think that all agree with me that it is best to be fair in all things and no doubt you will all agree with me when I say that it is true that party lines are not so defined now as they were years ago, but there are many old electors of this territory who will not vote for a member of the opposing political power. Many Democrats have said and do say with no little feeling of pride that they never voted anything but the Democratic ticket in their lives and would never change their policy, and the same with Republicans. Now I do not believe in forcing them to do so by such a measure, for if they must exercise their suffrage in this vote they would surely have to vote for the opposing party and I do not think it is right to adopt such a measure in this proposition.

[e945162] Mr. Cunniff: Will the gentleman yield for a question? The point the gentleman wishes to cover is contained in the minority report, is it not?

Mr. Webb: I beg the gentleman's pardon. That was voted down; the majority of you gentlemen were against me, and that is ancient history with me. I have given one reason why I say it is unfair. The incumbent becomes a candidate. If he is a Democrat, and if he thinks that he ought not to be recalled he will not vote for a Democrat. The only fair way is to say "Recall, yes; Recall no." If more votes are "no" than "yes" then all right, but it does not compel a Democrat to vote for a Republican, or vice versa. You can vote for some candidate, but keep the name of the incumbent off the ticket, and thus not bring political prejudices against him as well as judgement of his official record. My purpose in having it referred was that they might so change it that the ballot will be "Recall, yes; Recall, no."

Mr. Weinberger: I rise to a point of order. I do not care in what form he puts his motion. It was included in the minority report, and has already been voted down.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I rise to point out this question has never been presented on the floor of this convention.

Mr. Parsons: There is one thing we all must admire in the gentleman from Graham, and that is, what my old grandfather used to call "stick-to-it-ive-ness." There is no wonder he has served as the representative of such an intelligent county in the legislature and that he represents them here, because I believe those gentlemen knew what I have learned since I came here. If he has anything to do he keeps on fighting until he carries it out, if it takes all summer. His resourcefulness and his masterly knowledge of parliamentary law allow him to present it in some form that it will be accepted. Now I admire that spirit, and it is that which has put Arizona where she is, but there must be a limit, a time to say that that is enough. I made an objection yesterday (and I fortunately had the assistance of the gentleman from Graham) and prevented our apportionment bill being sent back to committee on account of the fact that our time was limited, and I now renew that objection as to this bill, because I do not believe it would make any difference in the result of the action of this convention, and I hope the motion will not carry.

Mr. Ellinwood: I want to say that the gentleman from Graham, as I read parliamentary law, is thoroughly right. I refer to page 186, Roberts' Rules of Order.

Mr. Lynch: In reply to the gentleman from Gila County, let me say that this convention has frequently taken up propositions and passed them, and upon redeliberation determined they were in error, and honestly, conscientiously and fearlessly undone what had been done on even the day before. If the motion of the gentleman from Graham comprehends this right, let us have a change of position. I believe we may have been wrong, and the motion ought to prevail in the interests of fairness and right.

Mr. Cunniff: It seems to me we ought to act now, and not waste time by re-referring it to a committee.

Mr. Webb: It is impossible for me to prepare an amendment at this moment that would be satisfactory even to myself.

Mr. Cunniff: We ought to make progress; our time is very short, and if we have no substitute, although I heartily advocate this idea, it seems we ought to vote on this at once, and save delay if we have nothing better before us.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 803-804)

[e945164] Mr. President: Those in favor of the motion of the gentleman from Graham will answer "aye;" opposed "no." The secretary will call the roll.

Roll call showed 16 "ayes" and 30 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

[e945168] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I wish to move an amendment on page 3, lines 12 and 13, strike out the words "in not more than two hundred words" and in line 14 after the word "statement" insert the words "in not more than two hundred words," the idea being that the statement be made on the petition in not more than two hundred words, and that the same statement be copied on the ballot, without having to boil it down.

[e945171] Mr. Weinberger: I will say that the Committee on Style and Revision thought that would be wise and delegated Mr. Cunniff to make that amendment, as we did not think we had the right to make that amendment in the committee.

[e945175] Mr. President: All in favor will say "aye;" opposed "no."

The ayes have it, and it is so ordered. Any other amendments, gentlemen? If not, we will call the roll on the third reading of the proposition.

[e945179] Mr. Cassidy: I have a motion here, which I will ask the secretary to read.

Secretary (reading): "That Substitute Proposition Number 18 as amended be referred to the committee on separate submission, and that said committee be instructed to make such changes only as may be necessary to submit said proposition to the separate vote at the time of election for ratification of this constitution, and that when said changes have been made, said committee report said proposition to the convention."

Mr. Orme: I second the motion.

[e945182] Mr. President: You have hear the motion offered by the gentleman from Maricopa; are you ready for the question?

Mr. Winsor: I just want to say a word. There was a time during the discussion of this matter when I rather favored the idea of separate submission of the matter of the recall, but since carefully looking over the character of of the people who are behind the movement (and I do not refer to the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Cassidy, in any sense) I have altered my view, and I am unalterably opposed to separate submission.

Mr. Orme: It is a well known fact that we were sent here to draw a constitution on which to become a state, and from all information that I can receive in any way, shape or form, this recall proposition if put in the constitution will absolutely prevent us from getting statehood. Now, we came here for a certain purpose, statehood, first. It is true the delegation from Maricopa advocated the recall, but it is not in our platform, and we are not bound, and if that will interfere with our best interests in becoming a state as soon as possible, I am opposed to the recall, and I am in favor of putting it up to the people, but I am most assuredly opposed to putting it in under these conditions.

Mr. Webb: I desire to say I have looked carefully over the field to see what class or character of people may be advocating separate submission, but if I did so it would not affect me a particle in the way I vote. I vote as seems to me right, affected by nothing except the wishes of the people who sent me here, if those wishes have been voiced so I know unquestionably what they wish. First,

I want to say frankly that I would not consent to leave the recall out. I would not consent to eliminating the judiciary from the recall. Though not specifically pledged, I believe I was by inference pledged. I want my position understood on that, but I think nearly all the gentlemen here will acknowledge it is a fact that if the judiciary is included in the recall, it will be one of the strongest arguments with the President of the United States against the approval of our constitution. Now I believe you will agree that, believing that the only safe thing to do, I assert, the right thing to do is to place and leave that responsibility where of right it belongs—with the people. Submitting it separately is certainly taking no power from the people, it is adding to the power of the people. If you include this as now in the constitution proper, they have but one way of indicating their wishes—to vote for the adoption of the entire constitution, or reject it all. Submit this separately, and they can accept the constitution and reject this proposition if they so desire. Now I should prefer not to be responsible for the defeat of statehood. I should hate to think my vote on this proposition should defeat statehood. The will of the people should control in all things, and the responsibility should rest where it belongs. If it goes as the separate distinct act of the people themselves, and not the act of the majority of fifty two members of this convention, it will appeal more strongly to the President of the United States.

Mr. Parsons: I want to say I differ somewhat in my opinion from the gentleman from Graham as to it making any difference from what source the information comes or the class of people opposing this proposition. It is personal to me. Word has been coming through the press and in other ways that there has been a vast change of sentiment in Cochise County, and one article said seventy-five percent of the labor vote that was responsible for the election of the ten Democrats who have had the privilege of sitting in this convention, are now opposed to the recall if the judges are included. My son has written me that they even went so far in their efforts as to circulate a petition, and among the arguments they used to get signers in that county was, "Your father in that convention is opposed to the proposition." I believe there is as much truth in that as any other statement they make, because from the most reliable sources I have there is nobody knocking except the men who tried to keep us out of this convention. The gentleman from Maricopa said "from the best information he could get." I hold in my hand a publication issued in this city, and I take it there is here some information he did not get. There seems to be a society or club organized in the City of Phoenix and known as the "Maricopa Club" as I am reliably informed, and their membership is sufficiently large so they have a directorate of twenty members. At a meeting held a few nights ago at which there were sixteen directors present they adopted a resolution to strengthen the backbone of the Maricopa County delegation, so there would be no backsliding from the principles on which they were elected. I will read from the article: "That was a significant vote taken the other evening in the Maricopa Club when the question of recall was submitted for an expression of opinion.

"Of the twenty directors of the organization sixteen were in attendance. These were highly representative of the business life of the city. They included many of the solid men of Phoenix.

There was an open discussion of matters which are of the greatest importance to the city and to the territory at large. Chief among the topics touched upon was the recall—not as to whether or not the recall is a good thing, for that question has long since been answered in the affirmative by the progressive members of the club as well as by the people in great majority throughout the Territory. The question, therefore, was not whether the members of the board favored recall, but whether they favored the extension of the recall to the judiciary.

When the vote was counted it was found that fifteen out of the sixteen members present and three-fourths of the total board had declared themselves unqualifiedly in favor of inclusion.

This vote is highly instructive. It shows to a marked degree that the sentiment of the public has not changed one iota since the election of last September. At that time the people placed themselves upon record as favoring the initiative, the referendum and the recall. They did not say that they favored the recall in a restricted sense. They wanted the recall, and that is what the delegates from Maricopa County were elected to provide. The vote of the board was instructed to be conveyed to the constitutional convention, as an evidence of the faith which the business men of Phoenix and of the entire Territory have that their delegates will vote as their constituents have instructed them to vote.

To this expression, significant though it is, on the part of the Maricopa Club, the Arizona Gazette can add the assurance of the great mass of voters for whom it made the fight last summer, that their faith in the great principle of direct legislation as enunciated in the recall has been strengthened from day to day since that time, and that they will desire and will stand for no half-way measures. If the Constitutional Convention, the Maricopa delegation, or any member thereof sees fit to alter in any degree the plain and well defined wishes of the people upon this subject, we venture the prediction which is certain to be fulfilled in fact, that such a member or delegation will make the mistake of his or its political life."

Now, Mr. President, I want to say we get this from a source we know to be correct, that is, from the laboring men who were responsible for the election of the ticket that represents Cochise County here. They say "stand by your colors." We would rather you would not give us anything in the way of a recall if it is not in the constitution. That is what we stand for, and we were sent here and sent here for that purpose.

Mr. Wood: It has been my custom for a number of years to devote a little spare time each day to the reading of periodicals, but since my election to this convention I have devoted that time to the reading of my platform. A short time ago there was some talk as to the possibility of altering the recall, and I decided to look at the press of the territory. First I clipped this: "The press of Arizona is doing its level best to give the constitutional convention the best advice it has. The advice comes from the great body of the people, and can be relied upon, and we suggest to this convention that it give some heed to this call from the people of Arizona."

Only two days ago I clipped this from the Arizona Democrat: "Editor Blighton will get a square deal from Chief Justice Kent and the people of Maricopa county. The Democrat is more than surprised at the attitude of Judge Campbell in this Blighton matter, and we want to impress upon that gentleman that the people of Arizona have rights that even the judiciary had better give attention, and one of them is a fair trial for all men charged with an offense.

The demand for the insertion of the recall in the constitution of Arizona and its application to the judiciary is brought about by the overt acts of the Arizona judiciary, and the record of the Tucson court in this Blighton affair goes a long way to convince the public that the courts ought to be subject to the recall.

The Democrat has had some experience with the Tucson courts, and we confess it left a strong taste of recall, or something worse, with us.”

I then clipped this from a paper in the northern part of the territory: “It is noticed that there is a great outcry over the proposition to make judges subject to the recall. It is not the intention of this article to discuss the merits or demerits of the laws in a free country. If we have the recall it should reach, in its provisions and scope, every official elected by the people. If the constable is subject to the recall, so should be the justice of the peace, and if the justice of the peace is subject to the recall so should be the district attorney, and if the district attorney is subject to the recall so should be the judge. In heaven’s name, why not? Since when did a man being made a judge render him infallible? Does the history of the world show that judges as a class have been better than other men chosen to sit in the high places? Are we, in a republic, to have an official infallibility dogma, a class law which gives one set of men kingly prerogatives while others are barred from such special favors and exemptions before the law? Some have complained of the evils of judge made-law, but no law has been made or will be made which is more evil than a proposed class law which says that one official is amenable to a law for the common good and that another official belongs to such an infallible class that he can not be made amenable to that law. We say that those who insist that the recall be made a general and not a class act did their whole duty as they saw it, and this paper goes on record as saying that they saw it right. The recall and its workings is not the question we are handling. The question is whether or not our laws shall be for all the officials and all the people, or whether a political infallibility dogma shall arise which shall cause the creation of an officialdom greater than the law and the people behind the creators of the law. The very existence of a republican form of government hinges on the principle involved in this question.”

And this comes from a Southern paper: “We iterate, the delegate who comes home from that convention unable to point to an uncompromising fight against any impairment of the recall will come home discredited.” [There may be additional words missing.]

doubt in the Territory of Arizona whether the people want this or not, then let us submit it to the people separately and give them the chance to say whether they do or whether they do not want it. I am in favor of submitting it separately for the very reason that there has been a great deal of discussion throughout the territory recently as to the position the people take on this question, and I want to find out whether the people really want this proposition or whether they do not. I want to give them an opportunity to vote on the proposition unimpaired and unconnected with anything else in this constitution, so when they do vote there can be no possibility of anybody mistaking what the people want. Now, it is said that if this proposition goes through it may have some effect as to whether we shall get statehood or not. I think that is one reason why we should submit this proposition separately. If there is any question of expediency, let that question also be considered by the people. Give them the chance by separate submission. I have not heard any argument why this proposition should not be separately submitted.

Mr. Webb: I desire to say I have not looked carefully over the field to see what class or character of people may be advocating separate submission, but if I did so it would not affect me a particle in the way I vote. I vote as seems to me right, affected by nothing except the wishes of the people who sent me here, if those wishes have been voiced so I know unquestionably what they wish. First, I want to say frankly that I would not consent to leave the recall out. I would not consent to eliminating the judiciary from the recall. Though not specifically pledged, I believe I was by inference pledged. I want my position understood on that, but I think nearly all the gentlemen here will acknowledge it is a fact that if the judiciary is included in the recall, it will be one of the strongest arguments with the President of the United States against the approval of our constitution. Now I believe you will agree that, believing that the only safe thing to do, I assert the right thing to do is to place and leave that responsibility where of right it belongs—with the people. Submitting it separately is certainly taking no power from the people; it is adding to the power of the people. If you include this as now in the constitution proper, they have but one way of indicating their wishes—to vote for the adoption of the entire constitution, or reject it all. Submit this separately, and they can accept the constitution and reject this proposition if they so desire. Now I should prefer not to be responsible for the defeat of statehood. I should hate to think my vote on this proposition should defeat statehood. The will of the people should control in all things, and the responsibility should rest where it belongs. If it goes as the separate, distinct act of the people themselves, and not the act of the majority of fifty-two members of this convention, it will appeal more strongly to the President of the United States.

Mr. Parsons: Will the gentleman yield for a question? Who would that not apply with equal force to the initiative and referendum and all other progressive propositions? (applause)

Mr. Webb: I do not expect as much applause on my speech, but I intend to answer him. I am pledged to the initiative and referendum. My people have spoken; I know their wishes. On the recall, as it applies to the judiciary, they have not spoken, and I am not specifically pledged, although by inference I may possibly be. I am not certain even of that, if you favor in your hearts the initiative, referendum and recall you cannot deny that the people should have the right to settle this mooted question as all others. Are you afraid to trust them? If they vote it down, it should not go in the constitution. If they vote for it, it will go in the constitution. Now, gentlemen, I am always going to raise my voice for those things that appear right, with an utter disregard, with all due respects, to whether that is the will of the majority. I agree with the articles read by the gentleman from Yavapai, except the last, which was a threat. There is nothing that makes me fight harder for a proposition than a threat. If the gentleman from Maricopa had not made the motion, I should have done so, for the simple purpose of going on the record, to show I am not afraid to leave it to the people.

Mr. Feeney: Do you recall a conversation you had with me in Bisbee in the presence of Mr. Bolan?

Mr. Webb: I recall it, but not the exact words.

Mr. Feeney: I remember specifically. I asked you as to your position on the initiative, referendum and recall.

Mr. Webb: And I told you I was in favor of them. I stated in my opening remarks that I would not consent to leave the matter out. There is not a stronger advocate for them than myself on the floor of the convention.

Mr. Moeur: I had not intended to take any part in this discussion this morning, but my colleague says we did not have the initiative, referendum and recall in our platform. We advocated the recall from the housetops, and on every opportunity. I was of half a mind to reconsider my vote on this and vote against it, but as long as the Arizona Democrat is on the other side, I know I am right. (laughter) We pledged ourselves to the people of Maricopa county in our platform to give them the initiative, referendum and recall, and I shall stand here and vote for the recall until I drop dead, if necessary.

Mr. Wood: The platform on which I ran specifically state the recall must be embodied in the constitution, and that is why I am going to stay with it in the constitution.

Mr. Ingraham: This matter as far as Yuma county is concerned, has been settled. Like the gentleman from Maricopa who last spoke, as he states the case was in Maricopa County, s it was in Yuma county, and the question of the recall was thrashed out thoroughly on the stump, so the people understood the situation. In a county where the Republicans usually carried one-third of the candidates, and where the Democratic majority scarcely ever exceeded fifty and was only ten or fifteen, we were elected by three hundred majority and that is the answer of Yuma County. (applause)

Mr. Cunniff: I attended a caucus of the delegates to the Yavapai County Democratic Convention on the night before the convention, and I made the same argument in almost the same words that the gentleman from Graham has employed here today in favor of separate submission, and out of ninety odd in the caucus, I got just one vote, and that my own. Also, although a minority report was offered in that convention to exclude the recall, the majority report which included it was overwhelmingly passed. There is absolutely no question about where the Democrats of Yavapai County are instructed to stand on this question.

Mr. Weinberger: I will say, as far as Gila County is concerned, the people did not send us down here to refer this matter back to them. They sent us down here to put it in the constitution.

Mr. Keegan: I want to reiterate the statement of Mr. Weinberger. That is exactly our position.

Mr. Crutchfield: As I understand the platform on which I ran as delegate from Maricopa County, our instructions were explicit and plain. It read something like this: "That we should make it mandatory on the legislature to pass a suitable recall measure." I think that in their expression there was not a shadow of doubt, of their purpose. They desired that we put this in the constitution, and upon that platform they elected us by large majorities. I do not believe our pledges would be carried out by separate submission of this question. I think the only question possible is one of policy, and, as a politician, a man might desire to throw the responsibility on the people, but, as a man who should use his own judgement, I believe that as delegates to this convention we should take that responsibility on ourselves. It may be I am influenced in this by an entire indifference to personal political fortunes, but, as to policy, I believe we should use our own judgement and that of our people [who] have sent us up here. Our instructions are explicit and plain.

[e945188] Mr. President: Call the roll. All those in favor of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Cassidy, will answer "aye;" opposed "nay."

[e945193] Mr. President. The motion is lost. It comes up on third reading. Those in favor of the passage of the proposition will answer "aye," as their names are called; those opposed "no." The secretary will call the roll.

[e945194] Mr. Standage: Mr. President, I would like to explain my vote on this matter. I voted "aye" on the vote we just had on this. I also vote "aye" on this. I want the people to have the recall in some way. I was in favor of submitting it to the people.

Mr. Wells: Mr. President, I am not opposed to the recall generally, but, as applied to the judiciary, I am utterly opposed. I vote no.

[e945198] Roll call showed 35 "ayes" and 11 "nays."

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, the committee on revision has nothing further to offer at this moment.

[e945202] Mr. President: If there is no objection, the convention will resolve itself into a committee of the whole. We have Proposition Number 8 and Substitute Proposition Number 150. The chair will call on the gentleman from Pima, Mr. Cooper, to take the chair.

[Editor's Note: The Records state that the Report included Proposition Number 68 but the Minutes do not. However, a separate Committee report was made, and Proposition Number 68, placed on final passage on 7 November 1910, the Editor's have inferred that the Minutes are correct.]

(Editorial)

[e945203] Mr. Parsons moved, seconded by Mr. Ellinwood, that the following be added to said Substitute Proposition to be known as Section No. 4:

Section 4. A county seat may be removed by a majority of the qualified electors of the county, voting on the proposition in favor of such removal, and a majority of the votes cast on the proposition may relocate a county seat. Provided that if at an election where a majority of the votes as above set forth vote for a removal of the county seat, but no place has a majority of the votes for relocation of the county seat, a second election submitting the relocation of the county seat may be held, at which second election only the names of the places having received in the previous election the highest and second highest votes for relocation of the county seat shall be placed on the ballot and voted for. A proposition for removal shall not be submitted in the same county more than once in four years."

(Editorial)

[e945206] Mr. Parsons: Mr. President, when this matter was before the committee of the whole, the question of the adoption of paragraph 5 as it appears in the printed copy was considered, and I think hastily. I now desire to offer an amendment to the report, beginning in line 13 on page 1 of this report and extending to and including line 4 of the following page, be inserted as a part of the proposition.

Mr. Ellinwood: I second the motion.

Mr. Parsons: It reads: [read motion]. I desire to say in support of my motion that as our law now stands it requires a petition signed by one-fourth of the electors who own one-third of the taxable property. It seems we have been eliminating questions of property qualification and we have been endeavoring to substitute men, rather than dollar signs, as units in our form of government, and as this provision provides for a majority of the electors settling this question, I think we will be acting wisely if we add this to it. As the law now stands, I think we will be justified in putting into our constitution a modification of the law as it is on our statute books, and I therefore make this amendment.

Mr. Roberts: Mr. Chairman, this committee of the whole decided the other day that this matter was purely legislative and it seems to me that it is no time to reconsider it here. It seems to me the action of this committee has been proper and fair.

[Remarks by Sims of Cochise not located.]

Mr. Roberts: I appeal to you as Democrats not to impose upon us a big fight at this time.

Mr. Cobb: I am heartily in sympathy with this amendment and I think it would pass. We have had this same fight over in Graham, and the result was the county was divided.

[Remarks by Parsons of Cochise not located.]

Mr. Cunningham: [words missing] ... take up the time of the other members, when Cochise county alone is in the squabble? I have always stood for what I considered fair. I am not saying this is fair or unfair. The law has always insisted that a vote of the majority of the citizens of a county can change a county seat. What do you want to write those things in the constitution for?

Mr. Parsons: Let me ask Mr. Cunningham a question. I would like to ask him what the population of Tombstone was in 1879.

Mr. Cunningham: I was not a citizen of that county at that time.

Mr. Sims: My understanding is that it was about 25,000. There are about 1,000 there now.

Mr. Chairman: Those in favor of the amendment as offered by the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Parsons, will answer "aye" as their names are called; those opposed will answer "no."

Mr. Doe: Mr. President, I desire to explain my vote. I shall vote no, but solely on the grounds that I deem it purely a matter for legislative enactment and not a proper matter to be brought into the constitution.

[Editor's Note: The Records note this debate as pertaining to Proposition Number 47, when, given the context and the fact that the Minutes attributes the debate to Substitute Proposition Number 40, was clearly in reference to Substitute Proposition Number 40. Furthermore, as this debate occurred in the Convention, the speech attributed to the Chairman was a mistake and was presumably given by the President.]

[e945213] Roll call showed 22 "ayes" and 24 "nays".

Mr. President: The motion is lost. Ay other amendments to be offered?

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 817)

[e945216] Mr. Short: I have an amendment here I would like to offer. After the word "thereof" in line 8 in section 3, insert the words "for a term of two years."

[e945219] Carried.

[e945221] Mr. Cassidy: Mr. President, I have an amendment here to offer, adding this at the end of the last section: "The board of supervisors of each county is hereby empowered to fix salaries for all county and precinct officers within such county for whom no compensation is provided by law, and salaries so fixed shall remain in full force and effect until changed by general law."

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

[e945222] Mr. Cassidy: The purpose of this motion is that when we are admitted into the Union, the sheriff, unless we put in a provision of this kind, will have no salary until after the legislature meets, nor justices of the peace or constables.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 817)

[e945226] Mr. Colter: I would like to amend that by including the school superintendent of Apache County.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 817)

[e945227] [Editor's Note: The amendment does not seem to have received a second, as the Convention immediately proceeded to vote on Cassidy's amendment.]

(Editorial)

[e945229] Mr. President: You have heard the amendment as offered by Mr. Cassidy. All those in favor will answer "aye;" those opposed with answer "no." The "ayes" have it and it is so ordered.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 817)

[e945232] Mr. Cobb: Mr. President, I move that where the words "county surveyor" appear, they be stricken out. I do this for the reason that I doubt if there is more than two counties in the territory that have enough work for a county surveyor to insure the election of a competent man. I think it is much better to leave it to the board of supervisors to appoint a good competent man to do the work when they have work to do.

[e945234] Mr. President: It is on the motion of Mr. Cobb.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 817)

[e945235] Mr. Cunningham: I rise to a point of order. The result of the vote has been announced and a motion to reconsider would have to be made.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 817-818)

[e945236] Mr. President: Gentlemen, you have heard the motion of the gentleman from Greenlee, to strike out the words "county surveyor."

[Editor's Note: The President's comment implies that no action was taken upon the point of order.]

[e945239] Mr. Weinberger: I think that we have to have a county surveyor.

Mr. Cobb: We do not have a county surveyor, as the board of supervisors can have any work done that is needed.

[e945240] Mr. President: Are you ready for the question? Those in favor of the motion of the gentleman from Greenlee say "aye;" those opposed "nay." The motion is lost.

[e945251] Mr. Cunningham: I move that the report of the committee be adopted as read.

[e945253] Mr. Cunniff: I move you that the matter be re-referred to the committee on style, revision and compilation.

Mr. Ellinwood: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 818)

[e945254] The motion prevailed.

[e945255] The Convention then took up Proposition No. 47.

[e945276] Mr. Cunniff: I ask unanimous consent to have Proposition Number 47 re-referred to the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation.

[e945280] Mr. President: If there are no objections, the proposition will be referred to the committee.

[e945284] Mr. Cunniff (reading): Report of Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation on Substitute Proposition Number 141, relative to child labor.

[e945287] Mr. Cunniff [...] Mr. President, I move the report of the committee be adopted.

Mr. Feeney: I second that motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 818)

[e945289] The motion prevailed.

[e945292] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move that Substitute Proposition Number 141 as amended be adopted by the convention.

Mr. Parsons: I second the motion.

[Editor's Note: As the committee records do not survive, the editors do not know the content of the Committee on Style's proposed amendments to the proposition.]

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 818)

[e945300] The motion prevailed.

[e945303] Mr. President: Call the roll on the final passage.

[e945304] Roll call showed 47 "ayes" and no "nays."

[e945724] Mr. Cunniff (reading): Report of Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation relative to Proposition 93, section 1, line 3, strike out after the word "house" the words "to an." Section 2, line 1, strike out the word "passed" and insert the word "enact."

[e945726] Mr. Cunniff: [...] Mr. President, I move you that the report of the committee be accepted.

Mr. Roberts: I second that motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 818)

[e945727] The motion prevailed.

[e945905] Mr. Ellinwood: I move to strike out section 1. I think it is going too far for this constitutional convention to say the legislature shall not allow anyone on the convention floor. Suppose the President of the United States or the governor, or perhaps a governor from some other state, should visit the legislature, would it not be the duty and an act of courage to admit them? I think that it should be left to the legislature to adopt such measures for themselves.

Mr. Feeney: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 818-819)

[e945908] Mr. Parsons moved, seconded by Mr. Roberts, to amend the motion that after the word "legislature" in the first line of section 1, the following words be inserted: "without the consent of a majority of the members thereof."

[e945915] Mr. Webb: I desire to speak against that measure. I think that such a measure as this can safely be left to the legislature. There have been times when I would be glad to have had some of my friends take seats beside me in the legislative room and I think that it ought always to be the case, that when friends of the members are here for a brief visit, they should be allowed to take a seat beside the member whose guest they are. It was once customary for chairs to be provided for the wives of the members beside the desks of members, and I think that is a very good custom and should be permitted now, and I am in favor of leaving it to the legislature to make such rules governing who shall or who shall not be allowed in the legislative chambers.

Mr. Feeney: I desire to add my opinion in this matter for I think that it is very probable that the members of the state legislature will come to these halls with exactly the same feeling of loyalty and patriotism that the members of this convention came and that they will be such men as we could safely trust to make their own laws and rules governing those who should be given privileges in the halls of the legislature. This right should not be denied them to make their own rules and for this reason I seconded the Ellinwood amendment.

Mr. Parsons: I desire to say that if the gentlemen feel this way, then they will forever bar the legislature from making any laws against lobbying or, that is, they will give them the right to permit such work as lobbying and there will be no means of preventing it whatsoever, but if the amendment I proposed prevails, then it will give the members who might be opposed to the third house from having any such work in the legislature, but not preventing them from having their wives or their friends visiting them in the halls of the legislature.

Mr. Webb: I think that the whole section should be stricken out as the amendment would permit them to do just as they please just the same as though there were no restrictions at all, and I can see no reason of placing a measure in the constitution which will allow the legislature to do just as they please with the law as without it.

[e945916] Mr. President: Gentlemen, the question now comes on the amendment offered by Mr. Parsons. Those in favor of the motion will say "aye;" those opposed "nay." The "nays" have it. The motion is lost.

[e945919] Mr. President: [...] The question now comes upon the motion of Mr. Ellinwood to strike out section 1. Those in favor of the motion will say "aye;" opposed "nay" on the roll call.

Mr. Moeur: I do not think that it is within the province of this convention to make such a law. God knows if they have not better sense than the members of the convention have, then they won't pass any law that would prevent them from doing just as they please and I am in favor of striking out the whole section.

Mr. President: Call the roll, secretary.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 819-820)

[e945923] Roll call showed 33 "ayes" and 13 "nays." Motion carried.

[e945749] Mr. Webb: I move that further consideration of Proposition Number 93 be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Coker: I second the motion.

[e945750] Mr. President: The secretary will call the roll, and those who are in favor of postponement will say "aye;" those opposed "no."

Roll call showed 24 "ayes" and 25 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

[e945925] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I move that the word "regulate" be stricken out and the word "prohibit" inserted.

Mr. Bolan: I second the motion.

[e945928] Mr. Cunniff: The Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation had a long discussion on that question and it was decided that it was quite impossible to prohibit lobbying but that it could regulate lobbying and for this reason the word "regulate" was employed.

Mr. Wood: One of the state constitutions of the Union says: "Lobbying is hereby declared to be a crime."

Mr. Ingraham: I agree with the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Cunniff, in the meaning of the word lobbying. If a friend of mine makes an argument concerning a proposition before the convention or has anyone read a letter in the house, he is lobbying. But there is a difference in lobbying. We should welcome some kinds of lobbying, for we are anxious to know what the people want and we are anxious for light on questions that concern the people and the public, and for this reason we should welcome lobbying in the sense of learning what the people want and what is the most good for the general public, but lobbying should be regulated by law in order to prevent lobbying from becoming a crime.

Mr. Osborn: I believe it was incorrect.

[e945944] Mr. Short: Is section 1 stricken out of the proposition entirely? I would like to offer an amendment to lines 1 and 2, section 1, and make it read as follows: “floor of either house of the legislature.” We do not mind lobbying on the streets but in the houses we do.

[Editor’s Note: The Records and the Minutes provide a conflicting and confusing account of Short’s amendment. The Records say that Short’s amendment was intended to apply to Section 1 of the proposition. However, an amendment to strike out the section had already been agreed. Furthermore, the Minutes claim that Ellinwood, who proposed the amendment to strike out the section, seconded Short’s amendment to the stricken section, which seems unlikely. It seems most plausible that the Minutes recorded this amendment correctly and that the amendment was intended to be applied at the end of Section 2. This hypothesis is further supported by the fact that the amendment is adopted, and an amendment to a stricken section could not be adopted without a motion to reconsider the stricken section. Indeed, as this proposition is incorporated into the Constitution as Article XXII, Section 19, we are able to determine that the amendment was applied to Section 2.]

[e945937] Mr. President: The gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Jones, has an amendment.

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I would like to have that word “regulate” changed to read “prohibit.”

Mr. President: Those in favor of the motion of the gentleman from Maricopa may say “aye;” those opposed “nay.” The motion is lost.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 820-821)

[e945945] Mr. President: [...] The question comes up on the motion of Mr. Short. Those in favor of this motion will say “aye;” those opposed “nay.” The “ayes” have it.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 820-821)

[e945947] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): If we are going to regulate this I now renew my motion to strike out the word “regulate” and insert the word “prohibit.”

Mr. President: Those in favor of the motion of the gentleman from Maricopa say “aye;” those opposed “nay.” The motion is carried.

[e945950] Mr. Cunniff moved, seconded by Mr. Ellinwood to further amend Section 2, by adding at the end of said Section the following words: "and further regulate the practice of lobbying."

[Editor's Note: The Records describe this motion as intending to strike out "and further regulate the practice of lobbying." However, as those words do not exist in the document at this point but do exist in Article XXII, Section 19 of the Constitution, it is clear that the Minutes' account of the amendment is correct.]

[e945953] Mr. President: Those in favor of the motion of Mr. Cunniff will say "aye;" those opposed "nay." The "ayes" have it and it is so ordered.

[e945955] Mr. Short: There has been something left out—"on the floor of either house." I will send that phrase up.

[e945771] Mr. Osborn: They do not have to do it, and I do not see any use of making such a provision and then leaving it to their choice. I move that the proposition be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Standage: I second that motion.

[e945773] Mr. President: Are you ready for the question? Those in favor of indefinite postponement will say "aye;" and those opposed "nay." Roll call, secretary.

Roll call showed 22 "ayes" and 27 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

Mr. Osborn: I second that motion.

[e945841] The motion prevailed.

[e945842] Mr. Ingraham: I move you that after the word "election" the word "primary" be added.

Mr. Feeney: I second that motion.

[e945845] Mr. Ingraham: In defense of my amendment, I should like to say that charging fees for primary elections is contrary to the plan of American government. There is an old adage the truth of which, I have no doubt, you will all admit, that "the office should seek the man, not the man the office." However, in the stress and competition of modern political life it becomes necessary for nearly every candidate to get out in the campaign, and in stumping make speeches for the election of himself and his colleagues. Even this we must admit is an unfortunate lapse from the practice of the early days. But what can we say of a law which compels a candidate to pay money for the privilege of running for office—in other words, buy the right to run for office? The fee fixed by law for precinct officers is only $5; in the county, city or territorial elections it is $25. Now, this is a very small sum of money, but if you take the number of justices of the peace, constables, county officers and state officers throughout the state, you will see that it is a tremendous tax upon each political party. This, I think, is contrary to the American plan—wholly un-American. If the state can exact $5, it can exact ten times as much. It is robbery, and I am opposed to the whole system.

[e945846] Mr. Parsons: I desire to offer an amendment to the amendment of the gentleman from Yuma if he will accept it. After the word "primary," add the words "within the state of Arizona or any political subdivision thereof."

[e945847] Mr. Ingraham: I accept that amendment.

[e945850] Mr. Cunniff: I would like to vote for half of the motion but the other half I do not want to vote for. In this matter I can see no bearing on the subject in the State of Arizona.

[e945851] Mr. Ingraham: I withdraw my acceptance of the amendment of Mr. Parsons.

[e945852] Mr. Parsons: I withdraw my amendment.

[e945854] Mr. President: All those in favor of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Yuma, say “aye;” those opposed “nay.” The “ayes” have it.

[e945861] Mr. President: [...] If there are no further amendments, we will call the roll on final passage.

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

[e945957] Mr. Moeur: I think the “aye” vote will probably give the number of gentlemen who will be running for office in the near future.

[e945974] Mr. President: Call the roll on final passage.

[e945992] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I desire to say I am inclined to believe that will apply to school teachers. I vote for no safety, anyway. Quite a number of gentlemen have told me it applied to school teachers. I desire to change my vote from “nay” to “aye.” I am afraid too many will change to allow reconsideration.

[e946022] Mr. Cunniff: The next is Substitute Proposition Number 62. It has not been printed, but has been revised by the committee, and has nearly the same form as the original, with much of the original left out. Mr. President, I move the report of the committee be accepted.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 823)

[e946023] The motion prevailed.

[e946030] Mr. Ellinwood: I move to strike out the word “a” before “city” and insert in lieu thereof “an incorporated city or town.”

Mr. Webb: I second the motion.

[e946032] Mr. Crutchfield: The question occurs to me is this not doing away with what we were intending to prevent in this clause? It occurs just as much outside of incorporated cities.

Mr. Ellinwood: I am moved by the same spirit as the gentleman from Maricopa, but it seems to me if you leave the word “town” it may be a cross-road with very few inhabitants, and to put the constable or justice in that place on a salary would be more burdensome than the fee system.

Mr. Crutchfield: I withdraw my objection.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I agree with the gentleman from Maricopa that the abuse of this fee system is just as large outside of the incorporated cities and towns, and I do not know but it is more. It is most assuredly true that the burden of taxation caused from taking people to jail and paying railroad expenses and keeping them in jail amounts to more in these outlying districts than it does in the cities and towns where the county jail is right in the town and the district attorney is a resident of the county seat. I, therefore, hope the amendment of the gentleman from Cochise will not prevail.

[e946035] Mr. Ellinwood: [...] It would probably be better to strike out that entire sentence: "all justices of the peace and constables whose precinct includes a town or city or part thereof," and therefore, with the consent of my second I will withdraw my former motion, and move to strike out those words.

[e946038] Lost.

Mr. Colter: I second the motion. That was what I was going to say.

[e946042] Mr. Winsor: It has occurred to me, that inasmuch as we have placed the sheriff's office on a salary, we have done away with the deputy sheriffs. Every sheriff places a deputy in almost every precinct where there is a constable, and a great deal of business that now goes to this deputy sheriff would devolve on constables.

Mr. Webb: That is not true of the precincts in my county.

Mr. Winsor: Possibly not there, but I think that would be so in a great many cases, and there will be more business for the constables hereafter than there has been heretofore, inasmuch as considerable business has been by the deputy sheriffs, and it seems to me very much in the interest of saving to have all the justices of the peace and constables on salary, which in a small precinct could be a minimum salary.

Mr. Weinberger: I want to say if the proposed amendment prevails, the justice will still be paid fees, because a justice is not a county officer; he is a precinct officer.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 824-825)

[e946048] Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. Chairman, my own idea of the proper system is the same system the United States government employs as to the United States commissioners. They allow him fees up to a certain amount, and after that the fees must be turned into the public treasury. The territory should provide that the justice of the peace should receive fees up to \ $100 a month if his business warranted it, and after that the fees go into the public treasury. I think the committee on revision has a clear idea of our views, and I move we re-refer it to them to draw up another provision.

[e946051] Mr. Winsor: The gentleman from Cochise states the committee has a pretty clear idea of the views of this convention. I have not, and would like to know what they are.

Mr. Ellinwood: I say they can probably bring in a proposition that would suit.

Mr. Cunniff: I would like to say that as one of the committee, that I have not.

[e946052] Mr. President: All in favor of the motion will answer "aye;" opposed "no." The motion is lost.

[e946090] [Editor's Note: Webb's amendment is not recorded as being voted upon.]

(Editorial)

[e946058] Mr. Cunniff: I would submit that that proposition as it stands represents the opinion of the convention to the best knowledge and information of the committee on the day it was passed.

[e946057] Mr. Winsor: I move the bill be placed on final passage.

[e946062] Mr. Weinberger: As a member of the committee on revision I could not improve on it, and I do not believe the other members could.

Mr. Colter: I know it would work a hardship on the justices of the peace in any county, and I would say seven-eighths of them do not get ten dollars a year.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I think anybody whose salary did not amount to more than ten dollars ought to have his office abolished.

[e946068] Mr. President: Call the roll on final passage.

Roll call showed 44 "ayes" and 2 "nays."

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

[e946088] Mr. Cunniff (reading): Report on Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation on Proposition Number 91. There are one or two slight amendments.

[e946094] Mr. Cunniff: [...] I move the report of the committee be accepted.

Mr. Parsons: I second the motion.

[e946095] The motion prevailed.

[e946097] Mr. Lynch: I move the proposition be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Ellinwood: I second the motion.

[e946103] Mr. Cobb: Mr. President, I am opposed to this proposition. The county which I represent produces about eighty million pounds of copper. It is the second largest producer in Arizona, and one-half of the men employed underground cannot speak the English language intelligibly. If this provision is adopted, I fear it will close down practically all, if not all, of the mining companies in that district. Now some of them may recover, but one I know that produces at least one-fourth of the total, or twenty million, I doubt if it would ever get on its feet again. The present cost of production is about twelve cents, which leaves them a very narrow margin. I hope we will leave this to the legislature. I am in sympathy with this, and I hope to see the day when it can be safely passed, but I hope it will not be put in the constitution.

Mr. Parsons: May I ask the gentleman a question? What mine is it you have reference to that produces twenty million pounds that would have to shut down if it had to comply with this requirement?

Mr. Cobb: I do not care to mention the name.

Mr. Tuthill: Mr. President, I am not particularly interested in whether or not it shuts down a company or not, but there is one phase of the question proposed that some members of the convention do not take into consideration at all. Now, in my own town there are at least one thousand Mexicans employed in the mines, who do not speak English. Some of these men have been in that town for twenty-five years; they have their families there; they have their little homes which they are constantly improving. Should this pass, it will absolutely say to them, "You cannot work." All they know is mining; and I would ask a careful consideration of this problem from that standpoint.

Mr. Connelly: Mr. President, I think one idea that the former speakers have overlooked is the safety it gives to the rest of the miners compelled to work out the financial part of it. In the mud mill in a smelter in Douglas an accident was caused by some man who did not speak English in starting the mill, and not being able to stop it, or to understand what orders were given him. This is more of a safety appliance than an act the United States could pass for the safety of the fellow employees.

Mr. Moeur: I think this is a very good proposition, but I think it should apply where there are, say 91 percent white men working. What difference does it make whether you speak English if you talk good Mexican, and all the men working in that mine speak Mexican? They might be American citizens and entitled to employment. We have, sometimes, to dig a well around Tempe, and we have to have Mexicans; white men would not do it. I do not think the bill is fair.

Mr. Tuthill: I want to say in answer to the gentleman from Cochise, about a year ago we checked up the percentage of accidents for the last five years, and found that our percentage, as near as we could determine from those of which we could obtain figures, was the lowest in the territory.

Mr. Lynch: I would say in the town of Morenci the conditions are that probably 90 percent of the men who work underground are Mexicans and Italians. They are under the control of shift bosses who also speak Mexican as well as English. Their whole work is conducted by American people, but the work is done by the Mexicans. There is a great deal of work that no white man will do. I seriously believe this is too drastic, as it means absolutely shutting down the mines of Metcalf and Morenci, and the ruin of the county of Greenlee. I am absolutely opposed to it.

[e946112] Roll call showed 26 "ayes" and 19 "nays."

Mr. President: The proposition has been indefinitely postponed.

[e945325] Reverend Crutchfield: O Lord our heavenly father we thank Thee this morning that we are alive and that while we slumbered and slept that no harm came to us to mar our peace and our sweet slumbers, and that no sickness or death crept into our homes to take away our loved ones. We thank Thee that when we awoke this morning that we looked on the light of a new day and with thankful hearts we praise Thee for all Thy blessings and that when we arose from our slumbers that we are permitted to go forth in peace to our labors, while ma[n]y thousands have gone down to death. Now, O Lord, we do thank Thee for all blessings for we know they all emanate from Thee and we ask that Thou wouldst guide us in all our walks of life and in every act of our lives. Keep us from doing wrong, and when any of us do commit those things which are wrong and are sorry and repentant, forgive us, O Lord, for our sins for we are weak and need Thee to lead us every day. Inasmuch as we have once again met in this convention for the labors of finishing the framing of a constitution for a new State we would ask for Thy Holy spirit to guide these men in all that they may do that they may adopt not one measure save it be for the good of the people and the state and the nations where in it might affect the Nation. [sic] We pray for the blessing of heaven to rest upon each and every member and let no one go astray. Now, O Lord, take us into Thy kind care and keeping [word unclear] save us from sin, forgive us when we do sin and when the end shall come save us all in Thy kingdom above. All blessings we ask in the name of Jesus. Amen.

[e945472] Mr. Ingraham: I would like to call the attention of the legal fraternity to one phrase used in the proposition, "riparian water rights." The "common law doctrine of riparian rights," is the correct form, I think, rather than "common law doctrine of riparian water rights.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): The gentleman from Maricopa introduced that and I think he must have understood that it was correct.

Mr. Ingraham: I just wanted to know and called the attention of the legal fraternity to that point.

Mr. Lynch: The riparian water rights is an entirely different right.

Mr. Weinberger: To be exact I think the word "water" should be stricken out, and I suggest that it be eliminated.

Mr. Wood: As a member of that special committee, I would say that we deemed that the word as it is used here can in no way harm the meaning of the sentence and it was decided to leave it there.

Mr. Doe: I think that it is not important enough to cause any dispute as the use of the word can be of no harm whatsoever if it is left in the measure.

Mr. Cunniff: It was referred to the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, and in our discussion we decided that the use of the words "water rights" was unimportant, but "riparian rights" might mean the fourth right, so the committee decided to leave the word in.

Mr. Cunningham: I second that motion.

[e945594] Mr. Parsons: You should go down and insert the same in line 2.

Mr. Cunniff: I do not think it should be amended by striking out the word “citizen.”

[e945595] Mr. President: Call the roll, secretary.

Roll call showed 29 “ayes” and 18 “nays.”

Mr. President: The amendment has been adopted.

[e945596] Mr. Ingraham: Mr. President, I move as an amendment at the point where it speaks of road work. I have not the line before me, but amend it so it will read “street work or other public work.” The reason is that, especially down near the Colorado River, municipalities, towns or counties find it necessary frequently to do levee work. Labor from the penitentiary has been used on this levee work.

Mr. Short: I second the motion.

[e945597] Mr. President: You have heard the amendment offered by the gentleman from Yuma, Mr. Ingraham. Those in favor will answer “aye;” opposed will answer “no.” The “ayes” have it, it is so ordered.

[e945600] Mr. Lynch: Under the provision of this bill you could not employ a Mexican laborer to cut wood for a school house. I vote no.

[e945601] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I have turned over these subsequent propositions to the secretary. I think I am needed in my place on the floor. There is a proposition that is of use to the laboring man of this state. I have had no opportunity to speak against the amendment which was first offered and against which I made a fight when the proposition was up on the floor. The proposition is one that was put in the constitution of Utah and other states in the interest of labor, and it is finally lost.

Mr. Lynch: You can use your tax laws—your road law—to compel a Mexican to go out and work assessment on the road, but you won’t hire him on the road and pay for him.

Mr. Bolan: I don’t think we can force him to go out unless he is a citizen of the United States.

Mr. Wills: I voted “no” on that because we have Indians in our county that have to live as well as anybody else. I would rather have them work than have them stealing.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 831-832)

[e945607] Secretary (reading): “Phoenix, Arizona, December 2, 1910, Mr. President: Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 137 and respectfully recommends that the word ‘legislation’ therein be stricken out and the word ‘laws’ be inserted and that the word “carry” be stricken out and the word ‘put’ be inserted and that the appended revised and amended form of said proposition be adopted. [e945613] Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, I move to strike out the word “labor.”

[e945616] Mr. Cunniff: I move an amendment to the amendment of the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Ellinwood, that after the word “black list” the words “of working men” be inserted.

[e945615] Mr. Franklin: I do not understand why the word “labor” is put there. As I understand, they do not blacklist labor; they black list a man for something he has done.

Mr. Ellinwood: That is the reason I move to strike it out. I am opposed to blacklists, whether it be labor of anything else.

Mr. Feeney: Mr. President, the object of putting “labor” in there, and the object of writing it into the constitution is to apply to blacklists, that is, used against labor, and one of the reasons was that the gentleman of the business association here claimed it would stop the listing of the R.G. Dun lists and the exchange of credit lists between stores.

Mr. Franklin: Mr. President, I have never seen a blacklist, but I cannot conceive a possibility where there could be a blacklist of labor.

[e945617] Mr. President: The amendment of the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Ellinwood, to strike out the word "labor" and the amendment of the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Cunniff, to insert the words "of working men." It strikes me that if you will withdraw your amendment we will vote on the other one first. If there are no objections, the last amendment will be withdrawn.

[e945619] Mr. Kingan: Mr. President, I do not know exactly what the word "blacklist" means.

Mr. President: Mr. Feeney, will you give the gentleman a little light?

Mr. Feeney: Yes, I know what it means. I am on several of them myself. There really should be written in there an amendment referring to the blacklisting of men of organization, of the labor organizations. The blacklist is a list exchange between corporations especially, and between labor and the public; listing a man for violating certain ethics of corporations and of labor. It is done for the purpose of preventing their employment.

Mr. Short: Mr. President, there is a kind of so-called blacklist that is gotten out by the railroads. A railroad corporation has many miles of line. A division superintendent will get out at the end of the month what is called a personal record, or where they have the merit system it comes under that heading, and in that he will say: "John Smith, telegraph operator; 36 years of age; dark complected; weighs 148 pounds; discharged on account of failure to deliver train order." That is all that is said. That is sent to all other division superintendents. He does not say that this mans hall not be employed on any other division, in fact, I do not believe it is customary to send it to any other line of railroad other than his own company. If John Smith comes along looking for a position on another division, the first thing that they do is to go to the records and see if John Smith's name appears there as having been discharged for one reason or another. I doubt if you can prohibit an officer from advising other officers that John Smith has been discharged.

Mr. Doe: Mr. President, could this term be construed as going further than as explained by Mr. Feeney, or might it be construed as going to the extent of covering a clerk who gives reference to a former employer and the contemplated employer writes to the former employer for information, and that information is unfavorable to the clerk. I have no objection if it is merely such a blacklist as Mr. Feeney suggests. If it goes further I should have to vote no.

Mr. Feeney: The credit association may exchange information as to their creditors, but I do not believe it has ever been construed as a blacklist. A blacklist applies to whether you are a union man or not.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I do not wish to insist on the amendment I offered, but in order that something may appear in the record, I might say that the word "boycott" is a comparatively recent word. It is not many years old, and was derived, as many of us know, from the name of a man. It took some time for the word "boycott" to become a word of common acceptance, but now nobody questions what the word "boycott" means. The word "blacklist," as commonly understood, is a phrase that is used as the antithesis of "boycott," a boycott being an agreement that certain people will not so business with certain other people. "Blacklist" is used as a term in antithesis with that, as meaning an agreement on the part of certain employers to circulate information about certain classes of employees, and advise others not to hire these employees. It seems to me that if this Convention takes the attitude that the boycott should not be legalized, the Convention should take the attitude that the blacklist should not be legalized. Now that the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Ellinwood, has offered an amendment that the word "labor" be stricken out, I would advocate that the phrase be left just as it is.

Mr. Bolan: Mr. President, quite a few of the gentlemen of this convention have employed men to labor for them. Some of you have had men working for you that did not come up to the requirement that you deemed necessary and you discharged them. A man who will suit one man will probably not suit another. The idea of this blacklist is just simply to keep one man from injuring a man and keeping him from getting work.

Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, take the word "labor." In the mechanics' lien law the word "labor" is always construed to mean manual labor. Now, I am utterly opposed to a blacklist of any kind against any man, whether he be a laboring man, or our good friend from Maricopa county, the preacher. I think the blacklist is vicious. I think the word black list is sufficient and it is broad enough to cover everybody. If it prevents men from their labor it is a vicious thing, and I am in favor of this proposition as enunciated by the gentleman from Yavapai.

Mr. Franklin: Mr. President, I am in favor of voting for this if it will accomplish the object which we intend it to accomplish.

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): When this proposition came up before, I raised the question of the descriptive term "blacklist," and it seemed at the time it was coming into common usage in connection with the interchange of lists between merchants. I think any corporation or any employer of labor knows what the common acceptance of the word "blacklist" is. The most obnoxious form in use is in connection with the suppression of organized labor. A man is not blacklisted for inefficiency, but he might be where there is some labor trouble and he is active in the interest of labor. He is passed down the line and he finds it impossible to secure employment any place. I am in favor of the suppression of the blacklist as it is used against the laboring man.

Mr. Feeney: I don't think there should be any hair splitting over this question. Many men who have been blacklisted have been men of families and have been made wanderers on the face of the earth because of this system of blacklist.

Mr. President: Gentlemen, the question comes up on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Ellinwood, to strike out the word "labor."

Mr. Ingraham: Mr. President, I would say that the word "labor" was inserted there to meet the demands of those gentlemen who are so afraid that information concerning financial standing of persons would be prohibited by this. It seems to me that the objection that has been made to this term "labor" is quibble. It is a labor blacklist as distinguished from a commercial blacklist.

[e945623] Mr. President: Call the roll. Roll call showed 15 "ayes" and 33 "nays".

[e945625] Mr. President: [...] If there are no further amendments the roll will be called on the final passage.

[e945626] Mr. Orme: Mr. President, I would like to ask for information. Suppose a man resigns his position, has the company a right to give him a recommendation? Does it prohibit them from giving him a recommendation?

Mr. Feeney: No, absolutely no.

Mr. Orme: Where a man was discharged for drunkenness, incompetency or neglect of duty, does it prohibit the company from exchanging this class of lists?

Mr. Feeney: It never was so construed.

Mr. Ellinwood: This is a proposition that I wanted to vote for, but with this word "labor" retained, if it means anything, it is the grossest sort of legislation, and I regret exceedingly that I cannot support this proposition.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 834-835)

[e945628] Mr. President: Call the roll on final passage.

Roll call showed 46 "ayes" and 3 "nays".

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

[e945632] Mr. Sims: Mr. President, I wish to move reconsideration of Proposition Number 48. At the time I voted on that proposition I was under the impression that it might impair our constitution in some way, but since looking it up I have changed my mind. As it is in other constitutions, I do not see why we should not have it in ours.

[e945633] Mr. Cunniff: I beg to say that the original proposition was taken word for word from the constitution of Idaho, and provisions of this kind are in the constitutions or laws of most of the states.

Mr. Parsons: This was from Wyoming.

Mr. Cunniff: Well, it is in Idaho, too, and it would be a very bad thing if this were killed. It was killed by a very slight margin.

Mr. President: Do you want the roll called? Those in favor of reconsideration will answer "aye" as their names are called; opposed "no." The secretary will call the roll on the motion to reconsider Proposition Number 48.

[e945636] Roll call showed 25 "ayes" and 24 "nays."

[e945640] Mr. Ellinwood: I would like to ask the proponents what they would do in the case of a Chinese or Mexican interpreter.

Mr. Parsons: He would not be employed on any public works.

Mr. Ellinwood: That is "employment of any kind."

Mr. Cunniff: I should like to say in answer to the gentleman from Cochise that the people who had such an interpreter would get one who had the intention of becoming a citizen.

Mr. Weinberger: I will say, in answer to the gentleman from Cochise, that the interpreter is in attendance on the court under a subpoena, the same as the witness, and it makes no difference whether he is a citizen or not.

Mr. Colter: I want an amendment to work Mexicans. [sic] Up in Apache county we cannot get our road works done without Mexicans.

Mr. Lynch: Before this is passed, let me show briefly what would be the result of the proposition. In the first place, the gentleman from Yavapai states this appears in the constitution of Wyoming. Maybe it is, but Wyoming does not have possibly three per cent of its inhabitants who are not citizens of the United States. It appears in other states where there are very few people who are not citizens of the United States. In Arizona it is different. We have thousands of non-citizens in the territory. We force these people to pay poll tax and then when we have work to do we will not let them do any of it. Does that look right and proper? I say that touches all public work you have. You have got to have labor on your roads; otherwise you would have no roads. No board will employ foreign labor if they can get American labor. On public work they pay the same price to one as to the other. Take your schools, you have Mexicans or foreigners employed to do work around your schools that you cannot get done by Americans. It seems to me this is unjust, unreasonable and unnecessary, and I hope it will be voted down.

Mr. Feeney: There are one million American laborers idle today, and I believe if you pay living wages you can always get American laborers to work on public buildings and roads, You can in Cochise County. The gentleman speaks of Wyoming; he does not recall the big coal mines that have hundreds and thousands of foreign workers who are not, and who do not intend to become American citizens.

Mr. Ingraham: It seems to me that it comes with bad grace from the gentleman from Graham County, Mr. Lynch, to argue against this proposition because of the poll tax, when this convention, as I remember it, voted that we should not hereafter collect any poll tax and did it over the vote of the gentleman from Graham County. I try to take a broad view of this question, looking after the interests of the state now and for years to come. Through the town of Yuma the Southern Pacific takes trainload after trainload of low-browed, small-brained people of various foreign nationalities, and I am glad every time I see them that they are going through; that they are going to the State of California, and not staying in the Territory of Arizona. I tell you that the great employing agencies, chiefly the great corporations, of this country are inflicting upon this country a curse similar to that inflicted by the slave trade before the Civil War. Every train load bears a race problem, the fruits of which will be reaped for hundreds of years. They are entailing Arizona and the other states of the Union in order to get cheap labor, a curse that is similar to the race problem in the South, if not so severe, at least very similar; and I say that when we have a proposition of this kind, which enables us to check this curse to some extent, it is our duty to check it. Let me say also that the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, which provides against class legislation, prohibits the state from regulating many things that are very nearly within the police power. A proposition we had up yesterday, introduced by Mr. Kinney, which prohibited the employment in underground or other hazardous places of people not able to speak English intelligibly,—though I voted for that proposition I am afraid it would have been unconstitutional, yet I was willing to take the risk. In many mines there are more people who speak Spanish, Italian or Slavonian [sic] than who speak English. In these mines, the employment of English-speaking people would be a menace to the other employees, and therefore it might have been argued the employment of English speaking people ought to be prohibited in such mines and that position might have been taken by the courts, because they always take the horn of the dilemma against labor. I say it is unfortunate for the welfare of the state that many of its powers are clipped in that way, but here we have an opportunity in a clearly legal way to check the influx of the lowest class of foreigners, to guard the future welfare of Arizona, and we ought to accept that opportunity. (applause)

Mr. Lynch: I may not be entirely familiar with what is good grace or good form in casting consistent votes in this convention, but I wish to say this, that it is a peculiar conception of good grace on the part of many men from whose names I would judge that their fathers, as I did, came here in the hold of an emigrant ship a few years ago and carved out their fortunes and built up this nation and made it possible for us to build this constitution for this new state. Would it be good grace to pass a law here that sixty years ago would have made them outcasts?

Mr. Feeney: I suppose that was directed at me, but I would say my father declared his intention to become a United States citizen at the age of seventeen years.

Mr. Lynch: And probably voted at that age. (laughter)

Mr. Feeney: Yes, and probably voted at that age. I want those emigrants' children to become Americans and assimilate American freedom and American liberties.

Mr. Orme: The conditions in this county probably differ from almost any other county in the territory. We do a great deal of road work, \ $40,000 or \ $50,000 a year, most of it hauling cement and gravel on the roads. There is not one white man's team on the roads. It is utterly impossible to get white men for this work around here, and this would absolutely prevent out hiring teams to do our county work. It will prevent the building of this bridge across the river, where there are thirty men working in water up to their armpits. White men would not try under any circumstances to take such a position. It would be utterly impossible in this county to do any county road work with white people. If they were here we would employ them, but it is utterly impossible to get white help. Lots of these Mexicans have been here twenty or twenty-five years, and it would keep them from working, and allow them to fill up our jails, and it would be an absurd proposition for any man from this county, at least, to vote for this proposition, which would kill public work in this county.

Mr. Bolan: The sentiment of the gentlemen from Maricopa and Graham counties seems to be that this bill is to cut out Mexicans. That is not the idea. We have quite a number of Mexican citizens in our county, and I venture to say it is the same in Maricopa and Graham Counties. This bill is not intended to prevent them from getting public work. If they want to work they can declare their intention to become citizens. I cannot, for the life of me, see the ground on which the gentlemen oppose this, and I hope it will pass.

Mr. Connelly: It seems, from what I understood Mr. Orme to say, if they have Mexicans who have lived here twenty-five years and have not declared the intention to become American citizens, it would be best to get rid of them. The gentleman from Graham is a lawyer; he had to pass an examination, and now he sits behind that qualification and keeps others from practicing unless they pass a like examination, yet when the laboring man tries to put up a qualification he says that is wrong. I do not see why any laboring men should not have their qualifications raised. Although three per cent of the laborers are Mexicans, I will bet there are not three per cent of the lawyers Mexicans, and it is just because they have a qualification that keeps them from getting in.

Mr. Webb: I desire to explain my vote. I am going to vote "no" for the reason that there is a question in my mind whether a person who cannot speak a word of English could express his intention to become a citizen. If they could not, this is unfair, and if they could, this would be inoperative, for the reason that if I wanted to employ one hundred Mexicans I would let them declare their intention without having any idea of becoming citizens.

Mr. Wills: As I believe in equal rights to all, and special privileges to none, I vote no.

[e946393] Mr. Ingraham: Mr. President, the antecedent of the first "thereto" in this proposition is the old charter and the antecedent of "therewith" is the new charter. I think this is confusing.

Mr. Cunniff: It will be if that is the case. You keep that in mind and we will make the correction.

[e945410] Mr. Cunniff: [...] Mr. President, I move the report of the committee be accepted.

[e945420] Mr. Franklin: I move you Mr. President, that all of the matter contained in this Substitute Proposition Number 52 as amended by the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation after section 1 be stricken out and that a provision be inserted [section 2] as follows: "Provided that any city containing now or hereafter a population of more than thirty-five hundred may frame a charter for its own government in such manner and with such powers and limitations as may be prescribed by law," and that in section 1 on line 4, thereof, the word "article" be stricken and the word "constitution" carried out, which brings it direct to the people.

Mr. Wills: I second the motion.

[e945421] Mr. President: Those who are in favor of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Franklin, will say "aye;" those opposed "nay." Coll the roll.

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): Mr. President, before this is put to a vote, I would like to say that in my opinion this is one of the best things we will have in the constitution. I know the city of Phoenix has been for five years trying to regulate the rates of public utility companies, and has been trying to do dozens of things a city should do, and we have been told we were without power. Besides, this has evidently had a good deal of attention and provides a good clear way in which all cities can regulate their own affairs and adopt their own charters. I think it gives them absolute home rule, and further, I think sections 5, 6 and 7 are very essential. I should hate to see this defeated.

[e945423] Roll call showed 16 "ayes" and 31 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost. Are there any other amendments?

somewhat ambiguous, therefore, and doubtful, to say these rights shall continue until changed by law, and then in the next section wash out any modification or alteration, provide for an entire new charter which, of course, would abrogate them. It seems to me that the words “except as otherwise provided by this constitution” or words equivalent thereto, at the end of section 6, would clear up any ambiguity. I do not make a motion, but I simply call attention to the matter.

[e945427] Mr. Cunniff: I should like to move an amendment at that point. We discussed that very thoroughly in the committee, but did not feel authorized to make the change, and I move these words be added: “subject to the provisions of this constitution.” This is a phrase which would cover any restriction the constitution placed on the laws as then existing or any conditions on the powers of the city, which might be made by the constitution.

[e945430] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, carrying out the line of thought suggested by the gentleman from Pima, Mr. Kingan, and to clear up any ambiguity that may exist in this proposition, I move as an amendment to the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Cunniff, that section 2 be stricken out, inasmuch as it adds nothing whatever to the powers of the municipality and will not alter the existing laws in any way.

Mr. Keegan: I second the motion.

[e945431] Mr. President: You have heard the amendment of the gentleman from Yuma amending the motion of the gentleman from Yavapai. All in favor of striking out section 2 will answer “aye;” opposed “no.” The “ayes” have it, and the motion is carried. Any other amendments?

[e945436] Mr. Winsor: On line 25, page 2, I move that the word “the” the next to last word in the line, be stricken out, and the word “a” inserted. That is to make it conform to the language used in the initiative and referendum.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

[e945452] The motion prevailed.

[e945455] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I would like to know in section 7 what the last sentence means. "All fictitious increases of stock or indebtedness shall be void."

Mr. Cunniff: I beg to say that the revision committee in discussing this matter unanimously decided that they did not know what the word "fictitious" meant. I would like some information from the authors of this proposition, so it can be properly amended.

Mr. Cunningham: It is usually stated "watered."

Mr. Roberts: I might throw a little light on the meaning by calling attention to a case in Colorado, where at a meeting of stockholders of a corporation, 300,000 more shares than they were permitted to issue showed up.

Mr. Cunniff: I beg to say our presumption was that "fictitious stock" was stock issued without money received or labor done, and was really an invalid or illegal issuance of stock.

Mr. Ellinwood: The legal definition of the word "fictitious stock" is "stock issued without consideration." Just exactly what Mr. Cunniff said.

[e945457] Mr. Winsor: In section 7 (which is section 6 of the original Proposition Number 2) I move to amend as follows: before the word "corporations" which is the first word, insert the word "no." Strike out the letter "s" in "corporations" and strike out the word "not." In order to make it conform with the other paragraph before and after, to make it read "no corporation shall issue stock."

Mr. Short: I second the motion.

[e945458] The motion prevailed.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second the motion.

[e945462] The motion prevailed.

[e945469] Mr. Winsor: Section 16 says: “This article shall not be construed to deny the right of the legislative power to impose other conditions upon corporations other than those herein contained.” I move to transpose the sentence to read: “to impose upon corporations other conditions than those herein contained.”

Mr. Crutchfield: I second the motion.

[Editor’s Note: It seems that the words ‘other than those herein contained’ must have been added during engrossment. In the absence of intermediary copies of the propositions, the editors have chosen to refrain from engrossing propositions until the consideration of the draft constitution, when there is more documentary evidence to support these amendments.]

[e945500] The motion failed to pass.

[e945504] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, section 6, lines 13 and 14 says: “The fictitious increase of stock of indebtedness shall be void.” Strike out the sentence “the fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void,” and insert “any increase of stock or indebtedness not in conformity with the provisions of this section shall be void.”

[e945506] The motion failed to pass.

[e945509] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): Mr. President, I move that in that section after the word "laws" in line 13 the balance of that section be stricken out.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

[e945511] The motion failed to pass.

[e945514] Mr. Franklin moved, seconded by Mr. Cunningham, to amend Section No. 4 by striking out in line 19 thereof the following words: "other than in execution of a trust created by law, or by contract."

[e945516] Mr. Franklin: Mr. President, section 4, as printed, reads: "The legislature shall not remit the forfeiture of the charter of any corporation now existing, or amend the same, nor pass any general or special law for the benefit of such corporation other than in execution of a trust created by law or by contract except upon the condition that such corporation shall thereafter hold this charter subject to the provisions of this constitution." As I understand the amendment made by the revision committee, the power there is enlarged and it is made applicable to the legislature and the people.

Mr. Cunniff: Not the power enlarged but the restriction.

Mr. Franklin: The restriction? The part that I take exception to is on line 18: "pass any general or specific law for the benefit of such corporation other than in execution of a trust created by law or by contract." When I first made these observations the convention took a different view and left the provision in. I have had no reason to change my opinion in regard to this. I think it is a matter, if left in the constitution, that the people of this territory will regret. If you will take the phraseology "other than in execution of a trust created by law or by contract," I defy any lawyer in this convention or in this territory, except by due consideration and after the most careful and painstaking research, to define or intelligibly tell to a court or a this convention the meaning of it. I do not know what it means. I looked over 1,200 pages to find what "in due execution of a trust created by law" means, and when we go to the phrase "created by contract" there are 800 pages devoted to that. When the fraudulent Pima County bonds were thrust upon the people of Pima County, and the narrow gauge bonds were thrust upon the people of Yavapai County, the legislature of this territory had no power to enact legislation or validate the action. In the case of Lewis vs. Pima County, the matter was held fraudulent and void as far as these bonds were concerned, and the legislature of this territory was powerless to give the corporations who held the bonds the remedy they sought. They finally went to the Congress of the United States, which had absolute power, and it passed a law remedying the contract and giving to these bonds a validity that they never in fact or law had. I say if you put these words in the constitution you are doing a wrong.

Mr. Cunningham: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 842-843)

[e945517] Carried.

[e945519] Mr. President: Gentlemen, are there any other amendments to be offered?

Mr. Curtis: Mr. President, I do not wish to make an amendment but to call the attention of the convention to section 11 on page 4, the peculiar way of voting: "In all elections for directors or managers of any corporation, each shareholder shall have the right to cast as many votes in the aggregate as he shall be entitled to vote in said company under its charter," etc. I do not know that that would be objectionable, but I presume a good many companies do not use that system of voting, and if it was not called for by any of the stockholders, it is a question whether it would be proper to compel them to vote by that system. I presume the interpretation put upon that would be that if no one requested it they would simply vote in the old way.

Mr. Cunniff: I would say that that paragraph simply says that they may cast their votes that way if they so desire.

Mr. Curtis: It says that such directors or managers shall not be elected otherwise.

Mr. Ellinwood: Under the very paragraph itself a stockholder may distribute his votes to each director, or he may accumulate them and vote for one.

Mr. Short: Mr. President, my understanding of this matter is that it is to compel the majority stockholders to cast their votes in this manner in electing officers. If you are going to allow the majority of the number of stockholders to decide this matter it is a sure thing they will not cast it that way. If they want to freeze out some minority stockholders they will vote to cast it under the old system, but if you compel them to elect officers in this way and no other they will have to run for their money.

[e945522] Mr. President: If there are no other amendments, call the roll on final passage. Hearing none, the secretary will call the roll.

[e945525] Roll call showed 44 "ayes" and 4 "nays."

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

[e945614] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, the committee is ready to report on Substitute Proposition Number 113, being the corporation commission.

Secretary (reading): "Phoenix, Arizona, December 2, 1910. Mr. President: Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 113 and respectfully recommends that the appended amendments be adopted, and the appended engrossed form of the proposition be adopted. M. G. Cunniff, Chairman."

[e945612] [Editor's Note: Substitute Proposition Number 113 was referred to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e945620] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move the report of the committee be adopted.

Mr. Wood: I second the motion.

[e945622] The motion prevailed.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 844)

[e945629] The motion prevailed.

[e945631] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, are there any other amendments to be offered? If not, we will call the roll on final passage.

Mr. Cobb: Mr. President, I move that where the word "three thousand" appears in section 18, it be stricken out, and "thirty-five hundred" be inserted.

Mr. Crutchfield: I second the motion.

[e945634] The motion failed to pass.

[e945635] Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, I wish to offer an amendment; I have this communication of Mr. Ives. I am not interested in the telephone business, but I move that section 9 be amended by adding the following words: "Provided further that no corporation engaged in transmitting telephone messages shall be required under the provisions of this section to transmit any telephone message delivered to it by any other corporation, if such first mentioned corporation operates and maintains a public telephone exchange open and readily accessible to the person from whom such message originated."

Mr. Tovrea: I second the motion.

[e945637] Mr. President: Are you ready for the question?

Mr. Connelly: I do not believe that is a very good thing to put in, for the reason that it will give the Consolidated Phone a monopoly on long distance business. It does not make any difference to the Consolidated people whether I send the message to be sent by long distance in writing, or use the automatic phone. Suppose you have some little community and they ask the Consolidated to put in phones, but they refuse because they say they have no money. Then these people put in a party phone; they connect with town. Suppose one of these farmers wanted to telephone to Tempe. If you put that amendment in, it cuts them out. I do not believe it is fair at any stage of the game. I do not believe in monopolies.

Mr. Moeur: I hope the amendment offered by Mr. Ellinwood will not pass. We have had the same trouble right here today. We asked the Consolidated people to go south of Tempe and Mesa and put in phones, but they refused and the people go out and raised the money themselves. I do not believe in legislating on behalf of the Southern Pacific.

Mr. Standage: Just a word on that subject. When the Overland Line was put in Mesa, they established an office in Mesa and asked for a franchise in Tempe, but by some crook they failed to get that franchise and they cannot put phones in Tempe. I think without the amendment it would be possible for us in the country to talk to Tempe whether they allow us the franchise or not.

Mr. Moeur: I may say the Overland people put in one phone in Tempe, and I have to get up about six times a night and talk over it.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 844-845)

[e945639] Mr. President: All in favor of the amendment will answer "aye;" opposed will answer "no." The amendment is lost.

[e947385] [When the Convention voted to reject Mr Ellinwood's amendment to section 9, they adopted the recommendation from the committee.]

(Editorial)

[e947380] [When the Convention voted to reject Mr Ellinwood's amendment to section 9, the letter from Mr. Ives on the same matter was implicitly dropped.]

(Editorial)

[e945641] Mr. Ingraham: On studying the corporation commission laws of the states of Oklahoma, Louisiana and Virginia, I find that those states are not satisfied with the terms that we have used in section 4. We say that the corporation commission "shall have full power and shall prescribe just and reasonable qualifications." In the corresponding clause in the laws of the states I have mentioned they also have the power to amend. Now it may be that some unfriendly court would say that after the corporation commission had once fixed or prescribed rules, that it exhausted its power and could not do anything more, that is, could not change these. I think we had better exercise an abundance of caution and add a clause at the end of the section to this effect: "Provided further, that such classification, rates, charges, rules, regulations, orders, forms, or systems prescribed or made by the said corporation commission may from time to time be amended or repealed by the commission." I make that motion.

Mr. Wood: I second that motion.

[e945643] The motion prevailed.

[e945646] Mr. President: Any other amendments? If not, we will call the roll on final passage.

[e945647] Mr. Kingan: Mr. President, I want to say a word explaining my vote on this matter. There are many admirable provisions in this measure. It seems to me that entirely too broad a grant of power is given to the commission. They are given power over all corporations that have the power of eminent domain. Now under the bill of rights, that power is exercised by mining companies, irrigation companies, and many companies engaged in private business. To give them that power would be entirely wrong. I therefore vote no, on the entire proposition.

[e945652] Roll call showed 32 "ayes" and 8 "nays."

Mr. President: The proposition has passed.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 845-846)

[e945653] Mr. Franklin: Mr. President, I move you we adjourn.

Mr. Osborn: I second the motion.

[e945654] The motion failed to pass.

[e945655] Mr. Cunniff: The committee on compilation has two other propositions ready for report if you desire. Substitute Proposition Number 15, on education. “Mr. President: Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 15 and respectfully recommend that the appended amendment be adopted and that the appended engrossed form of the said proposition be adopted.”

[e945656] [Editor’s Note: Substitute Proposition Number 15 was referred to the Convention alongside the Committee’s report.]

(Editorial)

[e946483] [Editor’s Note: In the absence of intermediary copies of the propositions, the editors have chosen to refrain from engrossing propositions until the consideration of the draft constitution, when there is more documentary evidence to support these amendments. However, some of these changes are specified in the Convention on further amendment prior to the final passage of the proposition. We have modeled those changes here.]

(Editorial)

[e945658] Mr. Cunniff moved, seconded by Mr. Wood, that the report of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation be accepted.

[e946712] Mr. Cunniff moved, seconded by Mr. Wood, that the report of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation be accepted. Carried.

[e945659] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): Mr. President, on page 5 in line 4, if I remember right, when this bill was up before, the words “or rental” were stricken out, and I see in the engrossed copy they have inserted “or leased.” If you will notice in the next paragraph they say the income derived from this school land shall be used for the yearly maintenance of the school, and in that paragraph it shall go into the permanent school fund. How can it be both? Therefore, I move the words “or leased” be stricken out.

Mr. Crutchfield: I second the motion.

[e945660] Mr. Crutchfield: [...] The lease money should take the same course the interest takes, and the interest on the money from the land sold is used for the yearly maintenance, but before the land is sold the lease money is really the interest, and should go for the same purpose.

Mr. Parsons: I desire to call the attention of the gentleman from Yavapai to the fact that the succeeding section does not provide that the proceeds from leases shall be used, but that it shall be invested and simply the interest used, and that is what we are entitled to use for the permanent school fund.

[e945661] Mr. President: All in favor answer “aye;” all opposed “no.” The “ayes” have it.

[e945662] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I find that in the engrossed copy a whole line has been dropped out in the opening paragraph, through a typewriter’s error, and it has been corrected on the engrossed copy.

[e945663] Mr. Ingraham: I move that in section 3, lines 22 and 23 the words “a principal of a high school and a county superintendent of schools” be stricken out, and that the words “and two citizen members” be inserted.

Mr. Winsor: I second the motion.

[e945664] Mr. Ingraham: That follows the objection I made when we first took up the discussion of this two or three days ago, that this board of education is top heavy with educators. We all know that educators are apt to get a little theoretical, and a board of educators having only one citizen member, that is the governor, and if two citizen members can be added in place of these school officials, I believe it will be better.

Mr. Moeur: I never heard of an education proposition getting too much educators. The idea of putting some clodhopper on this board! I object to this amendment.

Mr. Cunniff: I will support it if he will also have two citizen members on the board of medical examination and two citizen members on the board of law examiners, and various other professions, and not otherwise.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 846-847)

[e945665] Mr. President: Those in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Yuma will answer “aye;” opposed “no.” The motion is lost.

[e945668] Mr. Ingraham: Now Mr. President, I am irrepensible. I want to call the attention of the convention to the Enabling Act in regard to striking out these words “or leased.” I object to that change. If you will look on page 19, the second paragraph of section 28 of the Enabling Act, you will see that the income from the rental of school lands has imposed upon it the same trust that the income from the sale of the land has: that if the income from the sale of the lands must go into the permanent school fund, then the income derived from the lease of the land under the terms of that section must also go into that fund and of course we all must admit that the income from the sale must go into the permanent fund.

Mr. Cunniff: I submit it that the crucial word is the word “therefrom” and the word “therefrom” refers to the word “sale.”

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): Mr. President, I would suggest that the money leased lands is absolutely the same as interest on money loaned out after the sale of the land.

[e945669] Mr. President: Call the roll on final passage.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 847)

[e945673] Roll call showed 37 “ayes” and no “nays.”

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 847)

[e945677] Mr. Orme: I move we adjourn to 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. A great many have already left.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 847)

Mr. Moeur: The statements made by the gentleman from Cochise, Mr.

[e945810] Carried.

[e945812] Mr. Moeur: In section 3, I do not believe that the charitable institutions should be relieved from making a report. I think they should be exempt from taxation or license, but not from making a report.

Mr. Ellinwood: I think that the record will say that they must make a report. I think that it is right they should be exempt from taxation, but the very reason that you have given here in the discussions of the subject before is sufficient to determine that they should make an annual report.

[e945774] Mr. Winsor: The word "auditor" is left out.

Mr. Cunniff: It did not appear in the copy.

Mr. Baker: Mr. President, the word "auditor" should appear, as I took it from the Montana constitution.

Mr. President: The motion will come up on the adoption of the report.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 849-850)

[e945853] Mr. Cunniff: I ask unanimous consent to write in the words "state auditors" in section 11.

[e945856] Mr. President: If there is no objection, the secretary will write in the words "state auditor." Hearing none, it will be so ordered.

[e945857] Mr. President: [...] Now let us have the amendment of the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Moeur, to cut out the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association.

Mr. Parsons: Mr. President, I hope the amendment will not prevail. The gentleman from Maricopa has intimated that he thinks there are some other organizations that are equally entitled to exemption from taxation. If that is true it seems to me that the proper amendment would have been to have added to it such institutions as are on an equal footing with the church. I am not here contesting against the others, if he can establish to the satisfaction of the convention that the property owned by the various lodges ought not to be taxed. I think when this matter was considered that we went into it at considerable length, and would simply say to the gentleman that I am familiar with the work of these other organizations, but it has nothing to do with this amendment. I want to stand here and say that he is asking to cut out two of the most trustworthy organizations that stand within the confines of civilization today. I sincerely and earnestly hope that the members of this convention will not eliminate them from this proposition.

Mr. Chairman: You have heard the amendment as offered by the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Moeur. Call the roll. Those in favor of this amendment will answer "aye" as their names are called; those opposed will answer "no." The secretary will call the roll.

Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President, I would like to explain my vote, as a member of the Y.M.C.A. We do not propose to run our organization exactly as these other organizations are run. We charge admission to nearly everything we have and we charge good rental for our rooms, and we really do not ask for exemption from taxation and I vote “aye.”

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): With the explanation of Mr. Crutchfield, I shall vote “aye;” I would not otherwise.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 850-851)

[e945858] The amendment prevails.

[e945859] Mr. Doe: Mr. President, I have been reading over the proposition, and it seems to me to have been very carefully prepared. The point that seems to me to be objectionable is that the indebtedness is limited to four per centum, but it provides that it may be increased by a vote of two-thirds of the voters. I think that Congress would disapprove an excess of the limitation as imposed by the Harrison Act, that the increase be made at the will of the people who do not necessarily pay taxes. I think it is a safe proposition to say that in many of the counties, at least two-thirds of the voters either pay no taxes or pay only a limited portion of the taxes, but that portion would not be sufficient to deter them from imposing a heavy indebtedness on the county. I therefore suggest as an amendment that in line 20 on page 4, in lieu of the word “two-thirds”, the words “a majority” be substituted, and that for the last word on the line, “voters,” the word “taxpayers” be substituted.

Mr. Colter: I second the motion.

[e945860] Mr. President: Before putting the question, I would like to ask Mr. Doe if a man paying a road tax or poll tax would not be a taxpayer?

[e945862] Mr. Doe: I do not care to answer that off-hand, but I would ask leave to offer a further amendment inserting before the word “taxpayer” [the words] “property taxpayer.”

[e945863] [Editor’s Note: As Doe offered this amendment to his own amendment, the addition was taken into the original amendment.]

(Editorial)

[e945865] Mr. Cunniff: I was elected on a Democratic platform that said “equal rights to all; special privileges to none.” I can add nothing to what I said the other evening on a proposition to this same kind, further than to say that property qualifications and taxpayers’ qualifications were in practically all the early constitutions, and since the time of the change in governmental policy in this nation that came about in the campaign when Thomas Jefferson was elected to the Presidency—a movement that was given further impetus when Andrew Jackson was elected, and Democratic principles and the principles of the Declaration of Independence came into full force in this nation—one by one those qualifications demanding wealth as a prerequisite for taking part in the government have disappeared, until only a few remnants are still left, and I hope that when we get this constitution made—a constitution that will be made by an overwhelming Democratic majority—that none of these remnants of Hamiltonian principles will be left in the state of Arizona.

Mr. Crutchfield: For all ordinary principles I concede that the general principles of democracy require that all citizens shall have a right to vote, but when it comes to the matter of bonds or of special assessments, or anything of that kind, I believe our democratic principles are sound, in that they recognize the special rights of the tax payer to vote on a matter affecting the incurring of a debt. I take exception to the general principle laid down by my colleague from Yavapai, and believe that it is entirely in accord with the purest and best principles of democracy that an election putting a mortgage upon property should be left to the men who own the property. We are bound to recognize that in certain instances the principles of business must characterize us, and I feel the amendment is perfectly in keeping with democratic principles. It would be an inducement and an encouragement to many a man to tie himself to the earth. I think every man, when he gets a little money ahead, ought to get control of some property.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, then let us have some political logic in this matter, and let us cut out from the initiative and referendum, that on all laws that require the spending of the state money nobody can vote on those initiative and referendum laws unless he is a taxpayer, and nobody can sit in the legislature and vote away the money of the state unless he is a taxpayer.

Mr. Lynch: Mr. President, I do not intend to answer the argument of the gentleman from Yavapai, but there seems to me to be some weakness in his logic. My understanding of the principles of democracy is that the people who are to be governed are the people who cast the vote. In putting a tax upon property, the people who are governed are the people who own the property and they are the people who could vote on the proposition.

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): Mr. President, I am in favor of the proposition that Judge Doe has put in if it can be made practical in its workings. But it has never been made practical in its workings, and I would call the attention of the gentleman to the conditions in Denver when the public corporations had control of that city. A lot of taxpayers could put up, say, a watch valued at one dollar and pay a personal tax of ten cents. If this matter can be left to the legislature and can be shaped up in some way where the actual taxpayers would have the voice in it, I would be in favor of it, otherwise I would be in favor of throwing the bars down.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): Mr. President, I am heartily in accord with the remarks made by Mr. Cunniff. I think we have advanced to the day when this question of a property qualification should be a back number. A man who has a right to vote for a legislature, who really fixes the taxes for all the property in the state, has just as much right to vote in any other tax election, and there is no vote cast in Arizona or any other state, that does not affect directly or indirectly the taxes on property. These gentlemen who say that the actual owner of the property is the man who pays the taxes do not go to the bottom of the question. The man who is the ultimate consumer is the man who pays the taxes. If I rent a home for thirty dollars a month, the man who pays the rent is the man who pays the taxes.

Mr. Baker: Mr. President, let me call the attention of the gentleman to the fact that if the amendment of the gentleman from Yavapai carries, we would have a ridiculous provision in the terms of the bill itself. Any ordinary elector would vote for any amount of indebtedness up to four per cent, but any amount above that he would drop out and it would require a vote then of the owners of the property.

Mr. Doe: Have not all the counties got four per cent of indebtedness already?

Mr. Wood: In answer to the gentleman from Coconino, I would state that there is not a county in the territory that has four per cent indebtedness as yet; some of them [have] barely one per cent.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, there is one feature of this question that appeals to me, and that is that we are very likely to have an inconsistency in the two provisions of our constitution which relate to the qualification of electors. In Substitute Proposition Number 21 provision is made relating to the qualifications of electors. Our statutes contain many provisions relating to the qualifications of electors, and if those provisions now in our statutes are to be amended, they should be amended in a single proposition which would cover the whole subject and prevent an inconsistency. As I read the section in question, as it now stands, no such a tax as that described may be had without the assent of two-thirds of the qualified electors voting at an election to be held for that purpose. The question then will be determined by the qualified electors voting and the qualified electors voting will be determined by the provision describing the qualifications of electors. That matter is one I think will be covered in Substitute Proposition Number 21. It seems to me that that is where the subject should be handled rather than here.

Mr. Parsons: Mr. President, I think the gentleman who are advocating this property qualification for voting overlook one phase of the proposition. I think ample provision is made in this proposition to protect the property interests. Frequently we have advocated here that we believe in majority rule, and in any ordinary proposition that is submitted the majority is all that is sufficient, but in the wisdom of the members here we have made this two-thirds, and I think that is protection enough for the property owner. That puts the question of voting bonds on an entirely different basis from the ordinary proposition, where simply a majority is required. A majority may be obtained with the slightest fraction over fifty per cent, but under the provision in question it requires two-thirds, and it seems to me that is all that should be required.

Mr. Doe: My amendment was a majority of the taxpayers.

Mr. Parsons: That, in my judgement, would change it very little from what we have now, and in having it this way we are at least saved from violating two good democratic principles.

Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, the question comes up on the amendment as offered by Mr. Doe of Coconino. Those in favor of the adoption of the amendment will answer "aye;" those opposed "no." The secretary will call the roll. Gentlemen, I vote "no" because I think two-thirds is nearly equal to a majority, and I cannot see much difference.

[e945866] Roll call showed 31 "ayes" and 17 "nays."

[e945867] Mr. President: I will call the attention of the gentleman from Coconino to the fact that his amendment does not fit in the engrossed copy right.

Mr. Doe: It would read "Municipal corporations without the consent of a majority of the property taxpayers therein voting on the election." That would comply with the general territorial law.

[e945870] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I move an amendment as follows: After the word "property taxpayers" as included in the amendment of the gentleman from Coconino, add the words "who must also in all respects be qualified electors."

Mr. Doe: I do not see the necessity for it, but I have no objection to accepting it. I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 854)

[e945871] The motion prevailed.

[e945873] Mr. Wood: I offer an amendment to strike out on page 2, line 16, 17 and 18 the words "all property in the state not exempt under the laws of the United States or under this constitution shall be subject to be ascertained as provided by law," for the reason that in the very first sentence of the proposition it states that the power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away, which I think covers these three lines.

Mr. Keegan: I second that amendment.

[e945874] Mr. Cunniff: I think the gentleman from Yavapai makes that motion under a misapprehension. The first sentence says "the power of taxation shall never be surrendered." It seems to me this is an extremely valuable and important sentence the gentleman wishes to strike out, and of a character we were pledged in our platform in Yavapai County to support.

Mr. Ellinwood: I do not approve of exempting or permitting the legislature to exempt railroads from taxation, which is the only class of property which would be exempt under this. If you have this clause in, the railroads cannot claim exemption, and I think it should remain.

[e945879] Mr. Wood: I withdraw my amendment.

Mr. Keegan: I withdraw my second.

[e945880] Mr. Wood: On page 4, line 22, we have an expression “value of the assessable property.” I would like to ask the chairman of the Committee on Style and Revision if that should be “assessable” and not “taxable” as it is used “taxable property” in a former section.

Mr. Cunniff: I should welcome an amendment by the gentleman from Yavapai to change “assessable” to “taxable.”

[e945881] Mr. Wood: I move to strike out the word “assessable” on line 22, page 4, and insert in lieu thereof the word “taxable.”

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

[e945882] Mr. President: All in favor will answer “aye;” opposed “no.” The “ayes” have it, and it is so ordered.

[e945883] Mr. Wells: I am not certain about the meaning of line 16, page 4. Now the idea intended is that the present indebtedness is to apply to the existing indebtedness at the time of the assessment and that indebtedness shall not exceed four per centum.

Mr. Cunniff: We had all sorts of difficulty in the Committee on Style, Revision as to the question of what the meaning of “present indebtedness” was. Various times are referred to in the different propositions, some to the time the proposition was drawn up, and some to the time of the adoption of the constitution, and another time the admission to statehood; and we took this to mean the time of admission to the Union.

Mr. Wells: That hardly covers the question. The time of admission of the state into the Union would be, say, a year from this time. Now twenty years from now that indebtedness would all be paid, and there might be other indebtedness existing at that time.

[e945885] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, it seems to me that the whole line might be stricken out, including “indebtedness.”

Mr. Ingraham: I believe the point of the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Wells, is well taken. I think the Committee on Style has misconstrued the meaning of the word “present.”

Mr. Cunniff: Between the words “including” and “indebtedness” I move to insert the words “at the time of the admission of the state.”

Mr. Parsons: I second the amendment of the gentleman from Yavapai.

[e945886] Mr. President: If this amendment is adopted, suppose school bonds should be voted between now and admission to the Union?

Mr. Cunniff: The amount of the bonds voted would be under the territorial law at the present time, and at the time of admission they could not exceed the limit of the constitution.

Mr. Goldwater: I would like to ask, suppose we strike out everything from "amount" to "exceeding." Would that be all right?

[e945888] Mr. Cunniff: It seems to me the point of the gentleman from Yavapai is well taken. I withdraw my motion.

[e945891] Mr. Goldwater: I move that everything from the word "amount" to the word "exceeding" be stricken out.

Mr. Winsor: I second the motion.

[e945892] Mr. President: The gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Cunniff, withdraws his amendment with the consent of his second, and the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Goldwater, makes a motion. All in favor of that motion will answer "aye;" opposed "no." The "ayes" have it. Any other amendments?

[e945895] Mr. Parsons: On line 4, page 3, at the end of the line where it reads "an accurate statement of the expenditures of public money shall be published annually in such manner as the legislature may prescribe," I move to strike out the "legislature may prescribe," and insert in lieu thereof "shall be prescribed by law."

Mr. Cunningham: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 855)

[e945898] The motion prevailed.

[e945902] Mr. Winsor: I desire to call attention to section 11, page 5, lines 13, 14 and 15. I move to strike out the words "the governor, secretary of state, state auditor, attorney general" and insert in lieu thereof "the chairman of boards of supervisors of the various counties in the state."

Mr. Colter: I second the motion.

[e945903] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, when this matter was considered in the committee of the whole a few days ago, very few of the members had had an opportunity to give the subject any thought. It seems to me that in providing for this state board of equalization there should be an improvement over the system which has prevailed in this territory for a great many years, and which in almost all of its operations has been decidedly unsatisfactory. The county boards of supervisors or of equalization had no voice or authority whatever in the equalization of taxes, or even in the assessment of taxes, upon certain kinds of property, and as a result certain kinds of property have received marked advantages. With a view to correcting this condition to some extent and to make the burden of taxation fall more nearly alike upon the rich and the poor, a system of going beyond the law has grown up, the result being that instead of property being assessed at its full cash value in accordance with the provisions of law, no kind of property is assessed in any county in the territory at a valuation exceeding probably fifty per cent or its real value and in a great many instances it runs down to twenty or twenty-five per cent. In the case of certain classes of corporations the valuation probably does not exceed ten per cent of the real cash value of the property. In the formation of the board of equalization, the duty of which would be to remedy this condition of affairs, it is imperative that all the different sections of the territory should be represented, and that all the different interests, as nearly as may be, should be represented; that men should be upon that board who are thoroughly familiar and conversant with conditions in their own locality, and with the property thereof—men under whose personal inspection that property comes, in order that they may intelligently assess it, and not only assess it, but intelligently equalize the assessment of similar property throughout the state. As it is now, classes of property are assessed at widely varying valuations in the different counties of the territory. If we should make certain officers of the State, for instance the governor, secretary of state, etc., members ex-officio of the board of equalization, I cannot see any great promise of an improvement over the present condition. The plan is too similar to the system now in vogue. I have heard a good deal of criticism of the method of forming the board of equalization as proposed by myself, on account of the expense it would involve, and I cannot see that it would involve any considerable expense. The supervisors are already paid fixed compensation, and the only added expense would be mileage in traveling to the state capital for the purpose of the state board's meetings and perhaps per diem while in attendance upon the meetings. This same expense is incurred under the provision which permits the board of supervisors to send one of their members to attend the annual meeting of the county boards of supervisors, and under that provision much good has been accomplished in the way of equalization. I submit that the plan proposed by myself would be a much more representative form of government than the other.

[Remarks by Ellinwood of Cochise not located.]

Mr. Winsor: I would like to ask the gentleman a question. You state that when the various chairmen of the boards of supervisors enter the meeting of the board of equalization they will be there as the champions of their respective counties with the desire to shirk their share of the taxes, when the duty of this board would be mandatory to equalize the taxes in the different counties. They have got to fix the taxes on all the different classes of property equally and fairly. In what possible way could they shirk?

Mr. Ellinwood: By raising or lowering the various classes of property in the territory, the burden would be shifted. You take this area in Maricopa County of agricultural, irrigated land. If that board put up the value of irrigated land, it would also be raised on the irrigated land in Graham and Yuma County, but a county like Mohave would not be affected. Take a tax of \ $2 or \ $3 on a head of sheep; if the board should vote to make that \ $4 or \ $5 a head all the sheep raising counties would be discriminated against as against the other counties.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 856-857)

[e945907] Mr. Parsons: Replying briefly to the argument of my colleague from Cochise, Mr. Ellinwood, I want to say his argument would apply with equal force to the system of having the various state officers compose this board. If the governor comes from Cochise, he will be one-fifth of the board, and if he wants a renomination he will lower the valuation to satisfy the voters in dear old Cochise. He will have more than two votes to one from what the chairman of the board of supervisors would have, and would not know one-tenth as much as the chairman about values, for the duty of that chairman is to know the property. Therefore, I do not think it is worthwhile to answer this argument further. I want to amend the amendment to include, in addition to the chairman of the different county boards of supervisors, the three members from the corporation commission, who will be men who know and have access to the books of the various public service corporations under the law, and will be able to help the chairmen of the boards of supervisors to determine what will be an equal and just equalization of the property in the state, because the three men on this corporation commission, will, I believe, have knowledge with reference to a great deal more than one-half of the property of the state, and I think they would be a very valuable addition to the board. I offer that amendment.

[e945909] Mr. Colter: I just want to give an illustration. I have been a member of the board of supervisors of Apache County for four years, and there has not been one year we have been able to comply with the territorial boards' instructions, because they did not understand the conditions in Apache County. I think it is a great deal better to have people on this board who understand conditions throughout the territory.

Mr. Winsor: While I have no objection to the amendment of the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Parsons, it seems to me the board of equalization would have all the advantages he suggests without the addition of these three members. They could secure all the information desired from the public records. There has been a good deal of criticism offered in regard to the wide powers that have been given to thee members of the corporation commission already. If it is the sense of the convention to add these three members to the board of equalization, I shall be agreeable to it, but if such is not the sense of the convention, I still think the board ought to consist of the chairman of the boards of supervisors.

[e945910] Mr. Wood: There seems to be a difference of opinion as to whom should constitute this board, and if conditions should arise that this would not be adequate, we would have to change the system, and, therefore, I move to amend by striking out the whole part between lines 13 and 23, and leave it to the people.

Mr. Keegan: I second the motion.

(Editorial)

[e945912] Mr. Parsons: I rise to a point of order. There are two amendments already.

[e945913] [Editor's Note: As Wood proposed his amendment again later in the session, the editors have inferred that the point of order was taken.]

(Editorial)

[e945914] Mr. Ingraham: I want to call attention to some figures that were produced on the floor of this convention a few days ago by the gentleman from Cochise County, Mr. Ellinwood. He stated he made an investigation at the courthouse in this county or from the officers of this county and they informed him that the taxes in this county were assessed upon the following basis: never less than 20 percent of the actual market value and never more than 30 percent.

Mr. Ellinwood: It was from 25 percent to 33 13 percent.

Mr. Ingraham: I accept the correction. Now the valuation in Yuma County in assessing property is from forty to forty-five per cent, and that shows how the equalizing has been done in the past. That is the trouble all over the United States with general property taxes, and unless Arizona can inject something new we shall have failure. The chairman of the board of supervisors is thoroughly familiar with the property in his county and he knows at what rate this property is assessed. He knows taxation, probably. You need not think you will get property assessed at one hundred cents on the dollar. It never has been and never will be. As for log-rolling, I cannot see how they will log-roll successfully, and every dollar taken off the other counties will leave dollars added in the taxes of the member's own county. There seems to me to be the most perfect balance of power in the board constituted as Mr. Winsor suggests.

Mr. Orme: I cannot stand here and see old Maricopa slandered in this way. The banks are assessed at sixty per cent of their sworn statements. The Noble Block was sold for $150,000, and is assessed for $85,000. The Fleming Block was sold for $80,000, and was assessed for $70,000, and there is not a building in Phoenix but has been assessed for sixty per cent of the present cost of that building. I say Maricopa county has a larger assessment than any county in the State according to her property. This last year she raised the assessment two million dollars, and that was the only raise throughout the territory. I do not care what officer made the statement quoted, I have sat on that board, and this is the first time I have ever heard that Maricopa had the lowest assessment according to her property.

Mr. Ellinwood: I would like to ask a question. I went into the office of the assessor of Maricopa County, Mr. Frank Luke, and I asked him, in the presence of his deputy what was the average per cent of valuation, not of the Noble or Fleming Block, or any particular building, and he thought a moment and then said "not less than 25 per cent and never more than 33 13 per cent."

Mr. Orme: He wanted to sell you some property. We have farming lands assessed from \ $500 down to \ $25 an acre and our vacant lands, wherever there is a title from the government we assess at \ $2.50 per acre. Yavapai and other northern counties assess them at 40 cents. There is not a single acre of desert lands but pays on a valuation of \ $2.50, while in Cochise and other counties they pay on a valuation of 40 cents.

Mr. Ingraham: Will the gentleman yield for a question? At what rate did they assess the Pacific Gas and Electric Company?

Mr. Orme: I tried to assess them at the highest price it could be done. You can see from the records that my colleagues would not raise the valuations. I tried to put them at 60 per cent.

Mr. Ingraham: What per cent do they actually pay on?

Mr. Orme: About 33 13 per cent, but when a corporation comes in and swears that it is all the property they have and you know better, how are you going to get on to them?

Mr. Winsor: Accepting the statements of the gentleman from Maricopa, I think everybody will agree that the chairman of the board of supervisors should be a member of this board to settle the matter equitably.

Mr. Orme: Mr. Chairman, we have had in the last few years meetings of the boards of supervisors throughout the territory. We have come together and discussed county affairs and that has resulted in much good in making the assessments closer together, and I believe the several chairmen of the boards of supervisors would be better qualified to pass on the equalization of the whole property than anyone else, because each and every section would be represented, and there could be but very little log-rolling. I think it would be the greatest benefit we could confer.

[e945917] Mr. Crutchfield: I rise to a question of personal privilege. Since our vote on exemptions, I had a talk with the treasurer of the local Y.M.C.A. and I am informed that it was the expectation of the Y.M.C.A. that they would be exempt, and that the fees charged are not for profit, but for running expenses. I should like to move a reconsideration of the vote by which we removed the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. from the exempted class.

[e945920] Mr. President: You can make that motion when we meet after adjournment. That would be better.

[e945922] Mr. President: You can make that motion when we meet after adjournment. That would be better. The question is upon the amendment of the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Parsons, to add the corporation commission to this board. Those in favor will answer "aye;" opposed answer "no." The motion is lost.

[e945924] Mr. Wood: I move to amend by striking out from line 13 to line 23, on page 5 and leave it to the legislature.

Mr. Roberts: I second the motion.

[e945926] Mr. Winsor: I certainly hope that amendment will not prevail, as it will leave us under the present system of the board of equalization and [that] is not and never has been in any manner, shape or form, satisfactory.

[e945927] Mr. President: Those in favor of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Yavapai will answer "aye;" opposed answer "no." The motion is lost.

[e945931] Mr. Cassidy: I will just say briefly I am opposed to the amendment of the gentleman from Yuma for this reason: it would give the small counties just as much power as the large counties, and half a dozen of the small counties whose total assessments does not equal that of Maricopa could combine and vote her down from five to one.

Mr. Winsor: In reply to that I want to say this: I cannot conceive that the owners of farms in Yuma and Graham counties in the territory will have any desire to raise the valuation of farms in Maricopa when it will raise their own proportionately.

[e945991] Mr. President: Call the roll on the amendment of the gentleman from Yuma.

Roll call showed 26 "ayes" and 16 "nays."

[e945936] Mr. Parsons: I move we take a recess until 2 o'clock.

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 860)

[e945938] The motion prevailed.

Convention stood at recess until 2 p.m.

[e945941] Mr. President: Convention will come to order. There is a quorum present. Gentlemen of the convention, the question before the convention is the motion to strike out the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association.

[e945946] On motion of Mr. Crutchfield, seconded by Mr. Goldwater, a call of the House was demanded.

Present—Baker, Bolan, Cobb, Colter, Connelly, Cooper, Crutchfield, Cunniff, Cunningham, Curtis, Doe, Ellinwood, Feeney, Franklin, Goldwater, Hutchinson, Ingraham, Jacome, Jones, A. M., Jones, F. A., Keegan, Kingan, Kinney, Langdon, Lovin, Moore, Morgan, Orme, Osborn, Parsons, Roberts, Scott, Short, Sims, R. Absent—Cassidy, Pusch, Standage, Tovrea.

Excused—Bradner, Lynch, Moeur, Wills.

The sergeant at arms was instructed to bring the absent members to the bar of the house.

[e945958] Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President and gentlemen of the convention. I would just say that in moving to reconsider this vote—the Young Men's Christian Associations with which I am most familiar have been in California where the board does not ask for exemption, but proposes to pay its own expenses, charging for its privileges. I find on communication with the local board of Y.M.C.A. here that all their arrangements are made with the expectation that their property will be exempt, as all other religious property. And so, because of my statement a number of votes were changed this morning, I feel that it is obligatory upon me to make this motion, and also I believe the Y.W.C.A. of Arizona should be exempt from taxation.

[e945961] Mr. President: The gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Crutchfield, moves to reconsider the motion. All those in favor will answer "aye;" those opposed "no." Call the roll.

Roll call showed 19 "ayes" and 25 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost. Any more amendments to the taxation bill?

[e945973] Mr. Goldwater: Mr. President, in Substitute Proposition Number 106, I move to strike out the entire section 11, page 5. That is the section that was under consideration when we adjourned. It seems to me that we can wait until the new legislature meets to create a board of equalization. I think the matter is entirely legislative.

[e945976] Mr. Winsor: I have seen a great many occasions since the convening of this body when a few hours seemed to work a wonderful transformation in the minds of the members. I trust that this is not one of these occasions, for the motion that has been made is clearly not in the interest of the people, and I think that in more cases than otherwise these transformations that are suddenly worked in the minds of the members are not in the interest of the people. Mention has been made of the expense that will attach to the meetings of the board of equalization, under the system proposed by myself and which was agreed to by this convention this morning. I say that the expense will be infinitesimal compared with the benefits that will accrue to the people of Arizona by the operation of this provision. If tens of thousands of dollars may be saved by such a plan of equalization, I submit that the expense of a thousand dollars for per diem and mileage is not a liability but an asset. I certainly hope this motion will not prevail.

Mr. Cunningham: Mr. President, I am heartily in accord with the statement of the gentleman from Yuma that when changes in the minds of the members of this convention have been made, it has not been in favor of the people, so when the motion of the gentleman from Yuma was made this morning to change the reading of that section 11, I was confident that it would not be for the interest of the people and therefore voted against it. I shall now support the motion of the gentleman from Yavapai that I voted against this morning. A board of equalization only figures out results. It does not assess property. The assessors simply return the valuation of the property, and the board of equalization then acts upon those returns.

Mr. Colter: Mr. President, if we had had a clause such as we are trying to get at the present, there would have been saved in Apache County alone enough to pay all the expenses that the gentleman has just spoken about, in the way of equalization of taxes, especially with railroad lands and corporation matters.

Mr. Webb: Mr. President, I certainly agree with the remarks of the last speaker and I base my conclusions upon the fact that in the past at least twice that I can recall, the chairmen of the boards of supervisors have met in Phoenix when legislatures were in session, for the purpose of consulting together and agreeing on legislation. I have seen them meet here and quarrel for four or five days and adjourn without agreeing on a single thing and I [have] never known them to accomplish a single thing by meeting here.

(Editorial)

[e945979] Mr. Ellinwood: I oppose the personnel of this board this afternoon, but I am in favor of the motion of the gentleman from Yavapai. So far as I know, no constitution was ever written that did not provide for a state board of equalization. You have provided for a board of education, and if there is any one board that should be created by the constitution itself, it is the board of equalization. Now in order that the members may get the matter before them in another light, I move a further amendment that after the words "board of equalization" be added "which until otherwise provided by law shall consist of," etc.

Mr. Winsor: I second the motion.

[e945980] Mr. Ellinwood: Having stated my position, with the consent of my second, I will withdraw my motion with the understanding that if the motion does not prevail I will then move to insert "until otherwise provided by law."

Mr. Winsor: It is satisfactory to me.

[e945982] Description Mr. President: The question will come up on the motion of the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Goldwater, to strike out section 11. Call the roll on the motion to strike.

Roll call showed 18 "ayes" and 29 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

[e945984] Mr. Ellinwood: I move you that after the word "equalization" strike out the word "consisting" and insert "which until otherwise provided by law shall consist of," etc.

[e945986] The motion prevailed.

[e945988] Mr. Cobb: Mr. President, I move an amendment to section 8, page four, that all after the word "shall" in line 17 be stricken out down to and including the word "additional" on page five, line 2, and amend so that the section shall read as follows: "No county, city, town, school district, or other municipal corporation shall be allowed to become indebted in any manner for any purpose to an amount, including existing indebtedness, in the aggregate exceeding four per centum of the value of the taxable property, to be ascertained by the last assessment for the state and county taxes previous to the incurring of such indebtedness, and all bonds or obligations in excess of such amount given by or on behalf of such county, city, town, school district or other municipal corporation shall be void; provided, however, that the legislature may extend the limit mentioned in this section by authorizing municipal corporations to submit the question to a vote of the taxpayers affected thereby, when such increase is necessary for supplying such city or town with water, artificial light and sewer when the works for supplying such water, light and sewer shall be owned and controlled by the municipality."

[e945989] Mr. Lynch: In reference to the system that is in vogue in Colorado, our laws are different. We have bond issues wherein only those who are taxpayers can vote upon the bond issue. The assessment is made practically a year before the taxes are paid, or nearly so. Now the probability of any vote ever coming up whereby the person who becomes a taxpayer not having been possessed of property for less than a year preceding the vote is almost impossible. We will say he is assessed in May. He pays his taxes the first of January. There is a period of eight months that he is not on the tax roll. If an election occurs shortly after that time he will have been a property owner in that county for at least eight months before he votes upon any bond election, so it seems to me under our present system we are safeguarded sufficiently.

Mr. President: Gentlemen, you have heard the amendment as offered by the gentleman from Graham, Mr. Cobb.

Mr. Cunniff: I would like to ask the gentleman from Graham how this differs from the proposition now before us.

Mr. Cobb: The proposition now as amended by the gentleman from Conino leaves it to the taxpayers to increase the debt above 4 per cent.

Mr. Cunniff: So does this.

Mr. Cobb: No, this provides that the legislature may do so.

Mr. President: Call the roll. Those in favor will answer "aye;" those opposed will answer "no."

[e945994] Roll call showed 20 "ayes" and 27 "nays."

The motion is lost.

[e945996] Mr. Cunningham: Mr. President, I am going to offer an amendment. After the word "state" insert "and the auditor of the state who shall be ex-officio chairman of said board," for the reason that there being fourteen members on the board leave it an even number, and by having the auditor of the state as its ex-officio chairman there would be a head of the board always at the capitol for the purpose of keeping files and papers, and he would have the casting vote in case of a tie.

Mr. Winsor: I second the motion.

[e945997] The motion prevailed.

[e945999] Mr. President: Are there any other amendments? If not, we will call the roll on the final passage of the bill.

[e946001] Roll call showed 40 "ayes" and 7 "nays."

Mr. President: Proposition Number 106 is passed. Any other propositions?

[e946027] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, when the report was made yesterday on Substitute Proposition Number 22, it was to be compiled elsewhere, and as that made the record a little incorrect, the committee is now reporting on that paragraph in its revised form: "Mr. President: Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined section 14 on Substitute Proposition Number 22, and respectfully recommends that the appended form of said section be adopted."

[e946031] Mr. Cunniff: [...] Mr. President, I move that the report of the committee be adopted.

Mr. Ingraham: I second the motion.

[e946034] On motion of Mr. Cunniff, seconded by Mr. Parsons, report of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, was accepted.

[e946043] Mr. President: Call the roll on that section.

[e946045] Roll call showed 47 "ayes" and no "nays."

Mr. President: The section is passed.

[e946064] Mr. Cunniff: The next is Number 40. This is the proposition on counties that was referred to the committee the other day. "Mr. President, Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Proposition Number 40 and respectfully recommends that the appended engrossed form be adopted."

[e946070] Mr. Cunniff: The next is Number 40. This is the proposition on counties that was referred to the committee the other day. "Mr. President, Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Proposition Number 40 and respectfully recommends that the appended engrossed form be adopted." Mr. President, I move that the report of the committee be adopted.

Mr. Ingraham: I second the motion.

[e946073] The motion prevailed.

[e946075] Mr. Sims: Mr. President, I would like to move an amendment by inserting the following new section: "A county seat may be removed by a majority of the qualified voters in the county voting on the proposition in favor of such removal, and a majority of the votes cast on the proposition may relocate a county seat." In support of this amendment I simply refer the gentlemen to every constitution of the United States. All that I have looked over have a similar provision and I think it is important enough that this go in. I think one of the best evidences that it is not a matter for the legislature to handle is our present statutes. This is a matter that affects every county in the territory. It is a matter that will never be settled until it is settled right.

Mr. Tovrea: I second the motion.

[e946077] Mr. Roberts: Mr. President, this convention has twice cut out this section. This section will just create a four-cornered fight in Cochise County. It applies particularly to Cochise county at this time, and no other county, and this convention has taken decisive action on this. At this time the people are not able to decide what will take place, and I hope that this paragraph will not be inserted in the constitution, as it will endanger the election of our ticket in Cochise County.

[e946083] Mr. Short: Mr. President, I would offer an amendment to the amendment of the amendment of the gentleman from Cochise as follows: "A proposition of removal shall not be submitted in the same county more than once every four years."

[e946096] Mr. Sims: I accept the amendment.

[e946098] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): Does that amendment say qualified electors or qualified taxpayers?

Mr. Sims: Qualified electors.

Mr. Lynch: Mr. President, as I understand the matter, it is simply this: If there is a vote on the county seat removal, and four towns are in the race for the county seat, unless one of these receives a majority vote, it shall not become the county seat, and if in that election there is no majority vote, the question is resubmitted to the voters upon the towns receiving the two highest votes. I cannot see anything wrong with that proposition.

[e946099] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I would like to move another amendment to this effect: after the word "removal" insert the following: "in accordance with such provision as may be prescribed by law by a majority of the qualified electors."

[e946100] Mr. Sims: I accept that amendment.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I would submit in answer to the gentleman from Santa Cruz that the mere addition of a few words in this proposition as it is before the convention, providing the words taken from Maine, Massachusetts and other states farther west that have adopted the educational qualification to the effect that provisions of the section shall not apply to any person who possesses the right to vote upon the adoption of this constitution, brings it into conformity with those old provisions and establishes a rule in our infant state that only those individuals shall be admitted to the right of suffrage in the state who are able to read and write. If we do nothing more we should do at least that much.

Mr. Curtis: Mr. President, the Mexican population in Santa Cruz County does not object to the main provision, but the point is in not disenfranchising the present voters. We have men there that are fifty or sixty years old, that have paid taxes and helped keep our county together before the new generation came, and before I came to the county, and it is a matter of justice and not of policy. They have a right to vote. They have acquired their property.

Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, it seems idle to reply to the point made by the gentleman from Graham, Mr. Webb, to the effect that it is absurd to put upon our statute books an initiative and referendum law and not to have a qualification requiring intelligence, because that point has been made and answered so many times already that it is threadbare. It seems to me that the very fact of intelligence and education being required to vote upon measures by the referendum system that is sufficient proof no educational qualification is necessary. If intelligence is required, it follows naturally that such voters as are not intelligent enough to vote such a ballot will not vote upon these questions at all. If they cannot read you may rest assured they will not be able to vote upon questions submitted on a referendum ballot.

Mr. Roberts: Mr. Chairman, I hope this amendment will not pass. It has been my fortune, or misfortune, to pass most of my life since I was a boy on the frontiers of our country. I have mingled with a class of men who probably did more good toward the upbuilding of our country than any class of men who have knowledge or book-learning. These men are capable in their walk in life. They have not been associated with schools. I have in mind a number of gray-haired men who are property owners of our country, who have given their time and their life to building up our country, who have ability to vote on anything. They cannot read nor write, but it seems to me it is an injustice to say to these men, "We will deny you the right of citizenship." It seems to me that this amendment is unjust.

Mr. Webb: I want to say to the gentleman from Yuma, Mr. Winsor, that if perchance there be any of this vote left which the Democrats there can control, they will vote on these questions, we will be persistent enough to see that they are taught. As a question of policy, the Democratic party is on record on this matter. I was not one of those in the last legislature who did write it, but it was written and written by the Democrats.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): Mr. President, it seems to me that the object of cutting out this educational qualification is rather inconsistent being that this morning we placed a property qualification on voters who should vote on bond issues. In all other matters with reference to the state we throw the doors wide open.

Mr. Winsor: Let me ask a question. Did the gentleman want this property qualification placed in the constitution this morning?

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): He did not.

Mr. Connelly: I would like a little information on this proposition. Does this constitution bar the legislature from amending and putting in this qualification in the future?

Mr. Cunniff: Not at all.

Mr. Connelly: Then why are we trying to put it in here? It seems to me that it is a bad policy to put in an educational qualification now when we cannot use it until after the first legislature meets. I think it is nothing but a legislative action.

Mr. Cobb: I would like to state that the legislature cannot amend the constitution. If this is adopted we will have it in the constitution.

[e946116] Mr. Cunniff: The next is Substitute Proposition Number 78 on public lands. [e946122] Mr. Cunniff: The next is Substitute Proposition Number 78 on public lands. "Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 78, and respectfully recommends that the following engrossed form of said proposition be adopted." Mr. President, I move the report of the committee be accepted.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 867)

[e946124] The motion prevailed.

[e946127] Mr. Cunningham: Mr. President, in the latter part of section 10, line 5, the revision does not quite seem to have gotten the idea of the convention in making the changes they have offered. The proposition originally read "The lessee shall be paid by the lessor the value of the improvements." But that was changed by the revision committee to read "The former lessee shall be paid by the succeeding lessee the value of such improvements."

Mr. Ingraham: Mr. President, the word used in the amendment here is "lessor." Now the lessor, gentleman, is the State of Arizona, and if the lessee is to be paid the reasonable value of the improvements by the lessor, that means that the state is going to be in the business of buying up these improvements, and we of the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation did not think that the intention of the convention. Of course, if you mean that, we have to sit down.

Mr. Cunningham: I did not quite understand. I think the change is right.

Mr. Cobb: The first eight sections are taken from the Enabling Act, and that is simply a repetition. The enabling acts are always bound up along with the constitution, and anyone looking up the law on public lands will have to look at both the Enabling Act and the constitution, and I think section 10 includes the whole thing. The other constitutions do not seem to copy their enabling act.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 867)

[e946128] Mr. Ingraham: I wish to move an amendment. This is a modification of the attempt I made the other day to have the minerals reserved to the state. I have tried to make it more nearly conform to the wishes of the convention as I judge them. The amendment I offer is as follows: "For the purposes of fostering the mining industry and the development of the school and other public lands of the state, including such lands as may be hereafter acquired by the state, laws shall be enacted establishing the terms and conditions on which mining shall be conducted on such lands. The right and title to all mineral deposits underlying such land shall forever be retained in the state, but such mineral deposits may be mined or leased under such provisions as may be established by law; provided that __ per centum of the lead, coal, petroleum, asphaltum, oil, iron, or other mineral products, except gold, silver and copper, hereafter taken from such land shall be paid to the state."

Mr. Winsor: I second the motion.

[e946130] Mr. Cunniff: I should like to say that if I had had the pleasure of seeing that amendment earlier, I might have been able to suggest amendments that would result in a measure for which I could vote, but I do not see how I could offer an amendment to such a complicated measure at this short notice. In the first place I think lead should be taken from the first class, and put in the second, but I cannot make that amendment and therefore I shall have to vote against the proposition.

Mr. Ingraham: Now, as I understand the situation it is this: The school and public lands that are given to the state by the Enabling Act are not supposed to be mineral lands, and if there are any [words missing] to be non-mineral lands we cannot take the position that no minerals will ever be discovered on them; and when they have once passed to the state, the discovery of minerals does not invalidate the state's title. The state owns the land and the minerals. This means that when all this vast body of land is set apart to the state, that the prospecting and mineral development thereon must stop, until the lands are disposed of in some way by the state. Now, it seems to me that there should be some system of laws by which the State of Arizona will allow the prospecting of these lands, and allow mining to go on upon them under such conditions as the legislature shall deem wise to establish. In the latter part of the provision I state that the right and title to all mineral deposits shall forever be retained in the state, but deposits may be mined under such regulations as may be established by law, provided that at least __ per centum of all lead, coal, petroleum, asphaltum, oil, iron, and other mineral products excepting gold, silver and copper hereafter taken from such lands shall be paid to the state.

Mr. Parsons: Will the gentleman yield to a question? Why do you except the gold, silver and copper? The state would get more out of that than out of all the rest.

Mr. Ingraham: I except these minerals because of what I deem to be the opinion of this convention as expressed in the vote upon my similar amendment of a few days ago, and the argument was made that the gold, silver and copper mining industry were conducted on such narrow margins that they could not afford to pay any per centum to the state, and out of deference to the argument I excepted these minerals. Now it seems to me this provision applies with particular strength to the oil industry; it is not at all likely that we have such a vast territory without an oil deposit under it, and these school lands may be underlaid with valuable oil, although they will not sell for a cent more than if they would if the reservation were not made. If upon such land an oil deposit should be discovered, the state might get enough out of this royalty to equal a large tract of land, perhaps as much as all the other lands of the state shall have brought. It seems to me merely a matter of precaution. It will not reduce the value of the land. We will not get a cent more if we throw in the minerals.

Mr. Lynch: Suppose a man purchases this land for farming purposes and has it highly improved. Now the state reserves the oil underneath, oil is discovered and dug every ten or fifteen feet as in California. Would not that ruin the man's farming rights? Does this not create two conflicting estates to the same land, an estate to the surface and an estate to that which lies below the surface?

Mr. Ingraham: If it became necessary to destroy the man's improvements in order to prospect the land, the state would have to buy those improvements. The matter of the conflicting estate could easily be taken care of in the contracts to develop the oil fields.

Mr. Cunniff: It seems to me that this is not practicable. A proposition might be worked out in this direction, but this one does not take into consideration the practical mining fields. The experience the State of Texas has had in making provisions of this kind has been extremely detrimental to the development of the mineral resources of Texas, and I think this would be unwise in Arizona. If petroleum or coal were discovered in the state and there were a margin of profit beyond the cost of production, the state by levying a tax on profit as it does a bullion tax on gold could get revenue in that way. Therefore, I am opposed to this proposition.

Mr. Franklin: I am opposed to the proposition in its present form. There are two very serious objections. The government of the United States, when it disposes of public lands, does not pretend to reserve any minerals underlying the public land.

Mr. Ingraham: They do not.

Mr. Franklin: The furthest they go is to reserve the known minerals. If we had such a proposition, as the gentleman from Graham has said, we would have two conflicting estates in the land. One who has practiced in the United States land office knows that there is only one way this could arise on government land, and that is where a town site has been previously occupied as a mineral claim. I was interested very recently in a case covering the town site of Ray, where the mineral claimant had dug holes every ten or fifteen feet and absolutely destroyed the uses of the land for townsite purposes. If you have any such provision so there might be conflicting agricultural and mineral rights, it seems to me you would have chaos from start to finish.

[e946132] Mr. President: Call the roll on the amendment of Mr. Ingraham. All in favor answer "aye;" opposed "no."

Roll call showed 12 "ayes" and 34 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 869)

[e946136] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I wish to introduce an amendment as another section to the proposition, as follows: "The lands granted to the state under the provisions of the Enabling Act approved June 20, 1910, shall be selected as provided therein as soon as possible, and in no case shall the selection be delayed longer than two years after the admission of the state into the Union."

Mr. Wood: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 869-870)

[e946138] Mr. Cunningham: The Enabling Act says they shall not be selected for five years. I do not see why we should amend the Enabling Act.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I ask the gentleman to point out to me the whereabouts of this provision in the enabling act.

Mr. Parsons: Section 29 of the enabling act says this shall be done according to the rules in the State of Washington, and Idaho, by Act of Congress, 28 State 294.[sic] Now we would have to have the provisions of that act before we could tell what these terms are.

[e946139] Mr. President: All in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Yavapai answer "aye;" opposed "no." The motion is lost.

[e946155] Mr. Cunniff: The next is Substitute Proposition Number 21 on suffrage and elections: "Mr. President, Your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 21 and respectfully recommends that the appended amendments be adopted, and that the appended engrossed form of said proposition be adopted." I move the report of the committee be adopted.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second the motion.

[e946160] Mr. Colter: Mr. President, I would like to add an additional section to this proposition, relative to voting on bond issues, etc. "The question concerning bond issues or taxes shall be submitted to the taxpayers of the state or any political subdivision thereof, and on said questions those who possess the qualifications of suffrage shall equally have the right to vote."

Mr. Osborn: I second the motion.

[e946161] Mr. Winsor: I ask the gentleman to withdraw that motion because I have one which I think will have the same effect.

Mr. Colter: I will see what you have.

Mr. Keegan: I second the motion.

[e946164] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, we have been frequently accused, and have frequently accused each other, of attempting to legislate in this constitution. The very purpose of the amendment I propose is to avoid legislation. We have upon our statute books qualifications respecting the electors at general elections, at school elections, and at bond elections. In the future we may desire other qualifications for voters at these different elections, and while we have provided for an easily amendable constitution we have found occasion to make frequent use heretofore, and are still making frequent use of the clause "until otherwise provided by law." Now, as a matter of fact, both the meaning and the latitude of this clause is included in the amendment which I propose, although it does not state so in these words. The qualifications for voters are stated negatively, in order that the doors may be left open for such other qualifications as the legislature or the lawmaking power may hereafter see fit to provide, and until the lawmaking power sees fit to change the qualifications now required of electors they will remain as they are. Without entering upon a discussion of the merits of the qualifications now required by law, I submit that the only proper and safe course for us to pursue is to leave the matter in such form that the statutes may be amended by the lawmaking power whenever deemed necessary and [it can] fit the qualifications required of electors to the conditions as they may from time to time exist. I desire to repeat, as I have stated before in the debate upon this question, that there are also important reasons of policy why our constitution should not provide an educational qualification, [the following words are crossed out presumably by Winsor, "and it cannot be said, as it has been suggested, that we can deceive Congress by these means, inasmuch as they know we already have an educational qualification."] If we do not want to incur the displeasure of Congress, and if we want to bring to the support of this constitution as many voters of Arizona as it is possible to enlist, we should eliminate all the dangerous features we can without sacrificing a principle, or endangering the right. I trust, Mr. President, for many reasons, and especially these I have stated, that the amendment will be adopted.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I submit that I do not understand where this theory arose that a constitution is a document that consists of prohibitions and restrictions. A constitution is a document that establishes a form of government, and it seems to me that there is nothing that is more important in establishing a form of government than to set down affirmatively and positively the right of suffrage. The constitutions of almost all the states set that down in positive affirmative form, and do not set it down in a negative way. If this matter is set down in our constitution in this negative way proposed by the gentleman from Yuma we have not established in the constitution the most important point in the constitution, namely the right of suffrage.

[e946167] Mr. Cobb: Mr. President, I move as an amendment that section 2 be adopted as read.

Mr. Webb: I second the motion.

[e946169] Mr. President: The question will first come upon the amendment of the gentleman from Yuma.

Mr. Cobb: The ruling of the chair heretofore has been that the second motion had precedence in a case of this kind.

Mr. Ingraham: Mr. President, I want to say just a few words, as I do not want this educational qualification to go through without my serious protest. We have somewhat peculiar conditions in Yuma county. Our Spanish American vote is about one-third of the total vote of the county, and I tell you, gentlemen of the convention, if this educational qualification is put into the constitution at the insistence of the Democrats in this body, when we go before the people in the ratification election you may expect a solid Spanish American vote against the constitution, and to that vote will be added the solid Republican vote; and under these conditions I do not expect that Yuma County can come through that election with a majority for the constitution. Moreover, we hope that in a short time following that election to have another election, and the Democratic party in that county and in this state will have a ticket that will have to run at that election, and this educational qualification we are adopting here today, if we do adopt it, will not apply at that election. Every Spanish American who has heretofore voted will vote in that election, and I tell you he will not vote for any Democrat under those circumstances. Now I have received communications from Yuma County from our constituents there upon this point. I will read a brief passage written by a prominent leader among the Spanish Americans, speaking of the educational qualification: "Certainly," he says, "if it goes into the constitution I for one will do my best to get it turned down" and I believe a great many others look at it in the same light. I believe, Mr. President, that if the Democrats in this organization "monkey" with this proposition when it is absolutely unnecessary, as our statute books cover the question, they will be “fooling with fire.” If the Democrats attempt to enact this educational qualification aimed as it is at the disenfranchisement of the Spanish American vote, the Democratic party will receive a hard blow. I am opposed to the proposition as submitted.

Mr. Cunniff: I submit the gentleman from Yuma speaks as if we were attempting to do something revolutionary, as if we were attempting to put in the constitution an innovation of a legislative nature. Now, where I grew up it was taken for granted as the ordinary thing as a preparation for qualification that a voter should be able to read and write, and it seems to me more revolutionary to establish the right of suffrage without the educational qualification than to put one in.

Mr. Winsor: I should like to call the gentleman’s attention to the fact that the ordinary qualification for electors, which to my mind is the only fundamental one, has been stated, and inasmuch as we are forming fundamental organic law, then fundamental law is the only thing that should be enumerated in the constitution.

Mr. Curtis: I came from the same state as the gentleman from Yavapai, but it seems to me we should have a provision that this qualification should not apply to any person who now has the right to vote. I think it would be a mistake to disqualify the Mexican vote for the principal reason very few of the citizens that came in under the Guadalupe Hidalgo Treaty are not here but their sons are here, and they have paid taxes long enough before the majority of the members of this convention came to Arizona.

Mr. Cunningham: On looking through the constitution as it has been adopted, it has required a certain residence within the Territory of Arizona before a person is qualified to hold office. The intent was to enable a person holding office to become acquainted with the interests, conditions, and affairs, surrounding him in his official life, and if we are framing a constitution here now after some of the older states and framing it in our knowledge of conditions that exist here, and not in the light of conditions that exist in Arizona, then we are not framing a constitution for the people of Arizona. We should frame a constitution here that would allow all those old men who blazed the way and made it possible for these men to sit here to vote; and because in some other state, in some other country and under other conditions, that we should also do the same, because they have the educational qualification. I think the answer is “no;” we ought to frame a constitution to meet Arizona conditions and Arizona laws. That is what we have been talking about for the whole session, almost sixty days, and it is a wrong view to take of it that we should now attempt in this constitutional convention, in the face of what has been done by Congress, and of what has been done by the legislature, to fly in the face of Congress in that way. We should consider this matter, and treat all the people right, and I, for one, propose to stand for those matters that will treat all the people right, and I do not think it will treat them right if we require an educational qualification of a voter.

[e946172] Mr. President: The question comes up on the adoption of section 2. Those in favor of the motion will say “aye,” those opposed “nay” when the roll is called.

Roll call showed 14 "ayes" and 30 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

[e946175] Mr. Wood moved, seconded by Mr. Roberts, as an amendment to Mr. Winsor's motion that Section No. 2 be stricken out and the following words be inserted in lieu thereof as Section No. 2:

"Sec. 2. Every male person, of the age of twenty-one years or over, possessing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to vote at all general elections and for all elective officers, and upon all questions which may be submitted to a vote of the people; first, he must be a citizen of the United States; second, he shall have resided in Arizona one year immediately, preceding the election at which he offers to vote, and in the town, county, or precinct, such time as may be prescribed by law; third; he shall be able to read the Constitution of this State in English and to write his name; Provided, that the Provision of this section shall not apply to any persons prevented by physical disability from complying with this requirement; provided further, that no person under guardianship, insane or non compos mentis, shall be qualified to vote at any election not shall any person convicted of treason, or felony be qualified to vote at any election, unless restored to civil rights."

[Editors Note: The Records suggest the amendment may have been much less extensive and that the motion was seconded by Curtis.]

[e946177] Mr. President: Those in favor of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Yavapai, say "aye;" opposed "nay." The secretary will call the roll.

Roll call showed 14 "ayes" and 28 "nays."

Mr. President: The amendment is lost.

[e946181] Mr. Ellinwood moved, seconded by Mr. Curtis to amen Mr. Winsor's motion to Substitute, by striking out Section 2 and substitute the following in lieu thereof.

"Section 2. No person shall have the right to vote or be eligible to office under the constitution of this State, who shall not be able to read the constitution in the English language an write his name; provided, however, that the provisions of this section shall not apply to any person prevented by a physical disability from complying with this requisition, nor to any person who shall have the right to vote upon the ratification of this constitution nor to any person who shall have the right to vote at the first election for state officers, nor to any person who shall be sixty years of age or upwards at the time this section takes effect; provided further; that no person under guardianship, non compos mentis, or insane shall be qualified to vote at any election, nor shall any person convicted of treason, or felony, be qualified to vote at any election, unless restored to civil rights."

(The Minutes of the Arizona Constitutional Convention, Pages 375-376)

[e946182] Mr. Webb: Mr. President, the amendment submitted is almost the exact language of the one just voted down, and if the gentleman from Cochise does not know it, he did not know what was going on.

Mr. Ellinwood: This is in the negative and limits the age of men to over sixty.

Mr. Webb: It is almost identical to the one just voted down.

Mr. President: I would state that the amendment of Mr. Ellinwood states the age limit to be sixty years.

Mr. Winsor: I am very glad that the gentleman from Cochise has taken into consideration my position in framing this amendment, but I agree with the gentleman from Graham it is the exact wording of the amendment we just voted down.

Mr. Ellinwood: I was working upon the word of the gentleman from Greenlee, Mr. Cobb.

[e946185] Mr. President: Those in favor of the motion of the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Ellinwood, say "aye;" those opposed "nay," as the roll is called.

Roll call showed 10 "ayes" and 31 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

[e946186] Mr. Cobb: I would just like to say that I feel very much flattered that I should lead the gentleman from Cochise to vote right for once, but he got away from that good influence on that last amendment.

[e946187] The President then put Mr. Winsor's amendment which was carried.

[e946191] Mr. Jones of Yavapai, moved, seconded by Mr. Wood, to amend Section 13, line 4, by inserting between the word "of" and "state" the words "representative to Congress."

[e946192] Carried.

[e946193] Mr. Osborn moved, seconded by Mr. Baker, to add the following words to be known as Section No. 13.

"Section 13. Questions upon bond issues or special assessments shall be submitted to the vote of property tax payers who shall in all respects be qualified electors of the state, or any political subdivision thereof."

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910)

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 875-876)

[e946200] Mr. President: [...] Call the roll on final passage.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 875-876)

[e946202] Mr. Connelly: I think that the women are entitled to vote for the reason that they are taxed and I am in favor of giving the women the right of suffrage. I think that they would vote much more wisely than many men; therefore, I move to amend by inserting the following: "Section 14: Women who are taxpayers and possessed of the qualifications for the right of suffrage required of men by the constitution, shall equally with men have the right to vote."

Mr. Cobb: I second that motion.

[e946205] Mr. President: I ask the secretary to call the roll on that amendment. Those in favor of the amendment say "aye;" those opposed "nay."

Roll call showed 27 "ayes" and 18 "nays."

Mr. President: The amendment is passed. The gentleman from Apache.

[e946207] Mr. Colter: This amendment resolves itself into the same thing that the amendment proposed by myself contained.

Mr. Cunniff: I would like to know who proposed that amendment?

Mr. President: The gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Connelly.

[e946208] Mr. Roberts: I move that section 14 be stricken out.

[e946214] Mr. Cunniff: I move you that the Committee on Suffrage and Elections be instructed to furnish a revised copy of the bill just defeated, covering the bill on suffrage and election.

[e946216] Mr. Winsor: I move that the form as it reads be adopted, without the last amendment.

[e946222] Mr. President: Those in favor of the motion to strike out section 14 as amended by Mr. Connelly, say "aye;" those opposed "nay." The "ayes" have it.

[e946224] [Editor's Note: With the adoption of Cunningham's amendment, Roberts' amendment to the same effect was dropped.]

[e946154] Mr. President: The convention will arise while the chaplain offers prayer.

[e946157] Reverend Crutchfield: O Lord, our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee that Thou hast preserved us through another Sabbath day and through another night, and that we are brought together this morning under circumstances of so much mercy. And now, Lord, as we enter upon the labors and duties of the last week week, perhaps, of this constitutional convention, we should not undertake the work of this week until we have put ourselves under Thy controlling influence, and we pray Thee to guide us this day for Thy Name's sake. We pray Thee, O Lord, if we have done anything wrong up to this day of the convention, we are heartily sorry for it. If it is possible, if we have done anything wrong, for us to right it, help us to right up everything wrong we may have done. If we have neglected to do some things we ought to have done, help us to try to do the right thing the balance of this week, so that these men shall send out this constitution for endorsement or rejection, and, O Lord, we pray that they may have such a constitution as the people will endorse, and they will feel that the confidence they have put in these men in sending them here to frame this constitution has not been betrayed, and may it be such a constitution that we may all be proud of it. This morning, Lord, we need Thee. We dare not take one step without Thy aid. Hold Thou our hands, Lord, so when each of us reaches the margin of that dark river Thou didst cross for us we may find the crossing bright, and when we have wrought Thy will and each one of us has accomplished that whereunto Thou hast sent us into the world, save us in Thy kingdom above, and we will praise Thee forever and ever. Amen.

[e946159] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, the minutes are not quite ready, so we will have to dispense with the reading of them for a while. Any communications this morning?

Mr. President: Read the communication.

Secretary: Reads the letter from Anne Fisher, Brooklyn, New York.

[e946165] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move the letter be submitted to a committee of one consisting of Mr. Connelly.

Mr. Cunningham: I second the motion.

[e946166] Mr. President: If there are no objections it will be referred to Mr. Connelly with instructions to answer.

[e946183] Mr. Wood, Chairman of the Committee on Finance, Accounts and Expense, made the following report:

[e946184] [Editor's Note: The Convention received the report without comment or objection.]

[e946194] Mr. President: I will ask the chairman of the committee on revision if he has anything?

Mr. Cunniff: First will be Substitute Proposition Number 8 on schedule. "Mr. President, your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 8 and respectfully recommends that the appended engrossed form of said proposition be adopted."

[e946195] [Editor's Note: Substitute Proposition Number 8 was referred to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e946197] Mr. Cunniff: [...] Mr. President, I move that the report of the committee be adopted.

Mr. Short: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 878)

[e946199] The motion prevailed.

[e946201] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, are there any amendments?

Mr. Parsons: Mr. President, on page 2, lines 9 and 10, it seems to me an amendment would be in order. "All bonds executed to the territory of Arizona or to any county or municipal corporation, or to any officer of any court" it seems to me right there should be added, "within said territory." I would suggest as an amendment that after the word "court" in line 10 the words "within said territory" be added.

[e946203] Mr. Kingan: Mr. President, it seems to me that this is surplusage.

[e946223] [Editor's Note: The Convention did not vote on this amendment and it was not brought up again so we may infer that it was dropped upon Mr. Kingan's comment.]

(Editorial)

[e946204] Mr. Cunningham: Mr. President, I would like to have section 2 read. I believe there is an omission there but I cannot tell without having it read.

Mr. Wood: If the gentleman from Cochise will turn to the original Proposition Number 8, section 2, he will find it verbatim.

Mr. Cunningham: It leaves the educational qualification for voters absolutely in force in the territory.

Mr. Cunniff: My recollection is that the revision committee made no change whatever in that section. If there was no change made then it does not provide for any change made in the laws of Arizona by the Enabling Act, and therefore leaves the educational qualification intact. I think original Proposition Number 8 appears word for word in section 2 as ordered by the committee of the whole.

Mr. President: Any other amendments to be offered?

[e946206] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): Mr. President, it seems to me that there should be some provision made here whereby judges of the district court should get a salary between the time of the proclamation of the President, admitting Arizona to the Union, and the time superior judges take charge of the superior court. Therefore, I move that at the end of section 7 be inserted: "Judges of said courts shall receive the same salary for such time as is now provided by law."

[e946209] Mr. Cunningham: That would not do. The salaries provided now are partly paid by the United States government and partly by the Territory of Arizona.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I notice in the constitution of North Dakota they provide for paying the state and county officers between the time of adopting of the constitution and the time that the officers are elected, that their pay shall be the same as provided under the constitution. That also is not provided for in this constitution.

Mr. Kingan: The condition which will exist here is so different from that which has existed in most territories that the amendment, it seems to me, is entirely unnecessary.

Mr. Cunniff: It seems to me that if we wish to do sound and careful work as the makers of our constitution, we should chink up all these little holes; therefore, I second the motion.

[e946211] Mr. President: You have heard the amendment of the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Jones. Those in favor of this amendment will answer "aye;" those opposed "no." The motion is lost. Are there any other amendments, gentleman?

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 879)

[e946215] Mr. Moeur: I would like to amend line 6 and have "Thomas Jefferson" inserted instead of "Abraham Lincoln."

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 879)

[e946220] Mr. President: You have heard the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Moeur. Call the roll on the adoption of the amendment.

Roll call showed 18 "ayes" and 29 "nays."

Mr. President: It is lost.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 879)

[e946292] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): Mr. President, I wish to offer the following: "and their salaries and compensation for such time as shall be provided for in this constitution."

Mr. Cunniff: I second the motion.

[e946293] Mr. Winsor: The county officers were provided for by an amendment offered by the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Cassidy.

[e946294] Mr. President: Those in favor of the amendment will answer "aye;" those opposed will answer "no." The motion is lost.

[e946296] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): You have not provided yet how these officers shall qualify. Therefore, I introduce this amendment to be inserted as section 13, and that the present section 13 shall become section 14: "The officers elected at the election provided for under the Enabling Act, approved June 20th, 1910, shall within thirty days after the date of the proclamation of the President, admitting the State of Arizona into the Union, take the oath of office provided by this Constitution, and give the same bond required by the laws of the Territory to be given in case of like officers of the Territory and the counties thereof, and shall thereupon enter upon the duties of their respective offices; but the law-making power may require by law all such officers to give other or further bonds as a condition of their continuance in office."

Mr. Cunniff: I would like to say that in my opinion Mr. Jones has done a very valuable and careful piece of work on these three amendments he has offered, and I think the motion should prevail. I second the motion.

[e946299] Mr. Kingan: Mr. President, I move an amendment to the amendment of the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Jones, by inserting "that the superior courts shall open their sessions at 9:00 o'clock and hold until 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon.["]

Mr. Moore: I second the motion.

[e946300] Mr. President: Those in favor of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pima, Mr. Kingan, will answer "aye;" opposed "no." The motion is lost.

[e946301] Mr. President: [...] It now comes up on the original motion offered by the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Jones. Those in favor answer "aye;" opposed "no." Those in favor of the amendment will please rise; opposed will please rise. The motion is lost.

[e946302] Mr. President: [...] Any other amendments, gentlemen? If not, we will call roll on final passage.

[e946303] Roll call showed 47 "ayes" and 1 "nay."

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

[e946311] Mr. Cunniff: The next is Substitute Number 54, on mode of amending. "Mr. President, your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Substitute Proposition Number 54, and respectfully recommends that the appended, engrossed form be adopted." Mr. President, I move the adoption of the report.

[e946312] [Editor's Note: Substitute Proposition Number 54 was referred to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

[e946313] Mr. Cunniff: [...] Mr. President, I move the adoption of the report.
Mr. Winsor: I second the motion.

880-881)

[e946314] The motion prevailed.

[e946315] Mr. President: Are there any amendments to be offered? If not, we will call the roll on final passage.

[e946317] Roll call showed 41 "ayes" and 6 "nays."

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

[e946325] Mr. Cunniff: The next is Proposition Number 88 on employer's liability. "Your committee on style, revision and compilation begs leave to report it has examined Proposition Number 88, and recommends that the appended engrossed form of said proposition be adopted."

[e946326] [Editor's Note: Proposition Number 88 was referred to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e946327] Mr. Cunniff: This has been revised more or less extensively and the phrases changed, especially in the second part. One thing that has been done is that the fellow servant doctrine in the second part has been cut out, because that has been passed in another form.

[e946328] Mr. Cunniff: [...] Mr. President, I move the report of the committee be accepted.

Mr. Parsons: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 881)

[e946329] The motion prevailed.

[e946330] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I move as an amendment that the word "asserted" in the last line be stricken out, and the word "alleged" be inserted in lieu thereof.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 881)

[e946331] The motion prevailed.

[e946332] Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, this engrossed copy is so entirely different from the original Proposition Number 88 that I think it ought to be typewritten and put on the desk of the members so we can give it some consideration. It is certainly drafted in language I never saw before concerning employers' liability acts. I would suggest that the enumeration of hazardous occupations, or railroading, etc., comes entirely within the rule of ejusdem generis, and would be confined entirely to those occupations. I suggest further that "whenever any defense of contributory negligence is alleged, the presumption shall be that there has been no contributory negligence on the part of the person killed or injured and the burden of proof shall be on the defendant" is tautological and thoroughly unnecessary. All that is necessary to say is that "the burden of proof shall be on the defendant." This is drafted in language I never saw in a law book.

Mr. Baker: I agree with the gentleman from Cochise. As this is a matter of such importance I think each person should know what he is doing on a vote of this kind. Now as I read it hurriedly, the whole proposition is contradictory and absurd. As I understand the proposition at the present time it absolutely cuts out contributory negligence. There is no such thing if we pass this, and no such thing as assumption of risk; there could not possibly be.

Mr. Cunniff: I would submit, in the first place, that this copy has been revised to no greater extent than numerous others that have been presented. The proposition has only had a few words changed here and there, merely to make the meaning clearer. I am not, however, so frightened as the gentlemen who have just spoken in regard to cutting out these common defenses that have existed for some little time. This does not necessarily mean that every time a man is injured the employer will be mulcted a large sum of money. It is merely to insure the using of every possible safety appliance and devise, and to make the employers hold life less cheaply. When the employer finds that there is likelihood of his being held liable for injury, he will be much more careful, and take every precaution for the safety of his employees. I submit that the proposition should be adopted. I will read from section 2 of the Federal Common Carriers' Liability Law, and also a few excerpts from the message of President Roosevelt proposing the adoption of this law. There had been a Federal Common Carriers' Law enacted, and the Supreme Court had declared it unconstitutional because it covered not only interstate but intrastate commerce, over which the Federal government had no control. The President says: "The field of intrastate commerce will be left to the action of the several states. With this clear definition of responsibility, the states will eventually give to the matter the consideration the importance of the subject demands. Almost all civilized nations have enacted legislation embodying principles of this kind, and removing from the employee all the burden of the assumption of risk." To quote from the statute: "In all actions hereafter brought against such common carrier for railroad accident under or by virtue of any provisions of this act to recover damages for personal injury to the employee or where such injuries have resulted in his death, the fact that the employee may have been guilty of contributory negligence shall not bar a recovery, but the damages shall be diminished by the jury in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to such employee." In other words, even contributory negligence is not barred under the Federal statute. There is nothing novel in this proposition as presented here, and although gentlemen say they have never seen language like this in any law book they have examined, that does not say that the proposition is not framed in unmistakable language. At least two of the revisions that were made used the phrasing of the Federal Common Carriers' Liability law instead of the phrasing used in this proposition originally. I submit that is has not been revised to any greater extent than other matter before us. I submit that this is a sound proposition, in line with the action of other nations, and the action of the United States government, and that this is more important for the protection of industrial workers than anything else that will appear in this constitution.

Mr. Baker: No, it could not be used, and the bill is absolutely contradictory in its own terms and unfair. I am not a corporation lawyer; everybody who knows me, knows that. There is not an attorney who has more damage suits against the corporations in the territory, but I wish to be fair, and I ought to be fair in a constitutional convention anyhow. I would not want, as a man prosecuting a personal injury, such a dead easy thing against the corporation. They would have no defense unless they could prove the man had committed suicide, because this says it must be wholly the negligence of the employee.

Mr. Franklin: Mr. President, the ultimate spirit of this bill is satisfactory to me. If this bill was so framed as the United States statute contemplates, so that where the doctrine of contributory negligence is involved, the jury shall have the right, in giving its verdict to take into consideration the matter of contributory negligence and award damages in proportion as they find the negligence of the plaintiff contributed to the injury. Now this law, in my opinion, and I am going to vote against it, absolutely does the injured man no service, for the reason, I believe, if this is ever submitted to a court it is so doubtful and so ambiguous, and the whole scheme is to confine the doctrine of contributory negligence, that the court will say it will have to set it aside.

Mr. Cunniff: I submit that the legal gentlemen who have commented on this have shown no ambiguity and their assertion that the court cannot understand it is farfetched and not well taken. I think this proposition was before the committee of the whole where any gentleman was able to move any amendment he desired, and if even now the gentleman will point out the ambiguity and suggest a word that will cover the ground or which will be more satisfactory to those who are more familiar with the courts, I will welcome such suggestions.

Mr. Cunningham: I believe it has been admitted that the constitution of Oklahoma has been as drastic as most any other constitution in the Union on this question, and I would like to read to the members of this convention just what the Oklahoma constitution has said: "Article 23, section 6, The defense of contributory negligence or of assumption of the risk shall in all cases whatsoever be a question of fact, and shall at all times be left to the jury." That is clear and understandable, and is practically the report of the judiciary committee submitted to this convention, and absolutely disregarded simply because it came from the judiciary committee, and no other reason. A slight comparison by the gentleman from Yavapai of this provision and that in the Oklahoma constitution will serve as an answer to his sarcastic remark concerning the legal gentlemen. It is not necessary to show wherein the proposition of which he is the father is defective.

Mr. Cunniff: In the first place, my references were not sarcastic, and the remark I am going to make is not in the slightest degree sarcastic. If the chairman of the judiciary committee will refresh his memory he will find that a recommendation that the Oklahoma proposition be adopted was not what the committee brought in; and, further, when he says that the Oklahoma law is as drastic as any other law, I would point out that this Federal Common Carriers' Law was enacted a year after the Oklahoma constitution was made. Further, when the members of the Yavapai delegation were framing this proposition to comply with their platform pledges and with what they believed in, we examined this Oklahoma proposition, and like many other provisions of the Oklahoma constitution, it was vague and unsatisfactory, and doubtful and obscure. We found the same condition existing in many cases in other propositions where we were following the ground used in Oklahoma, and that was why this provision was worked out and worked over very carefully.

Mr. Franklin: This Employers' Liability Act was passed by the Federal government in 1906, and it had not been declared unconstitutional at the time the Oklahoma constitution was drawn up, although it was afterwards so declared. It is also true that in 1909 another Federal Employers' Liability Act was passed, and that is now before the courts as to its constitutionality. I am willing to support the language of the Oklahoma constitution for the reason that it leaves this question of assumption of risk and contributory negligence as a fact to be determined by the jury, and not a question of law to be determined by the court.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): It seems to me the whole argument against this proposition is on the assumption of risk. As far as I can read, this proposition of contributory negligence is left entirely to the jury, but the matter of assumption of risk is placed upon the employer, as it should be.

Mr. Cunniff: As to the gentleman's statement that it is somewhat doubtful as to what this proposition does, there is no question as to what it does. It does the very thing that the gentleman seems to doubt it should do. Mr. Roosevelt in his message recommended that the assumption of risk in hazardous occupations should be upon the employer and not upon the employee.

Mr. Baker: Just one word more, simply a repetition. Under this proposition there is no room for contributory negligence; under its terms it absolutely wipes it out. Consequently, the only defense a corporation would have would be to prove that the man committed deliberate suicide.

Mr. Cunniff: I would suggest that the reasoning of the gentleman from Maricopa goes too far, in saying that the man must commit suicide. In a spirit of bravado and daredeviltry, a man takes a risk he is not ordered by the corporation to take and warned by his fellow employees not to take, which risks are not inherent in the nature of the industry. He is ordered not to step off of a skip or bucket until it stops, but the man carelessly and deliberately jumps off without ringing the bell or trying to get the bucket stopped at that level.

881-884)

[e946333] Mr. Franklin: I move that section 2 of Proposition Number 88 be stricken out, and that the proposition read by the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Cunningham, from the Oklahoma constitution be inserted in lieu thereof. I am willing to support that, but I cannot support this.

Mr. Baker: I second the motion.

[e946335] Mr. President: You have heard the motion. Are you ready for the question? Those in favor will answer "aye;" opposed will answer "no." Call the roll.

Roll call showed 26 "ayes" and 21 "nays."

Mr. President: The amendment is carried.

[e946336] Mr. Baker: Now, Mr. Chairman, I move that the word "wholly" be stricken out of section 1.

Mr. Colter: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages
884-885)

[e946337] Mr. President: Are you ready for the question? Those in favor will answer "aye;" opposed "no." Call the roll.

Roll call showed 28 "ayes" and 19 "nays."

Mr. President: The amendment is carried.

[e946338] Mr. Connelly: I would like to ask some legal gentleman if striking out the word "wholly" does not practically kill section 1?

Mr. Ellinwood: No, negligence is always negligence.

[e946339] Mr. Cunniff: I should like to offer an amendment as to section 3: "The right of action to recover damages for injuries shall never be abrogated, and the amount recoverable shall never be subject to statutory limitations."

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 885)

[e946340] The motion prevailed.

[e946343] Mr. President: The secretary will call the roll on final passage.

Mr. Bradner: Mr. President, I would like to know what the words "accidents to the condition of such industry" in section 1, refer to.

Mr. Cunniff: That is to suit a condition of this kind: If a man riding on a freight car, as brakeman, is struck by lightning, that is not an accident due to the industry; it is simply to cover such matters.

[e946344] Mr. President: Call the roll on final passage.

[e946345] Roll call showed 45 "ayes" and 5 "nays."

Mr. President: The proposition is passed.

[Editor's Note: The Minutes indicate that there were only three nays.]

[e946348] Mr. Cunniff: The next is Proposition Number 72. "Mr. President, your Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation begs leave to report it has examined Proposition Number 72 and respectfully recommends that the appended engrossed form of said proposition be adopted."

[e946350] [Editor's Note: Proposition Number 72 was referred to the Convention alongside the Committee's report.]

(Editorial)

[e946353] Mr. Cunniff: [...] Mr. President, I move the report of the committee be accepted.

Mr. Parsons: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 885)

[e946356] The motion prevailed.

[e946357] Mr. President: The question now comes before the convention on the final adoption of Proposition Number 72.

Mr. Connelly: I think that it should be optional with the employee whether he accepts the amount offered by the employer as the amount may be only $1,000, which would not be a fair amount, and for this reason I offer the following amendment: "Provided that it shall be optional with said employee to settle for such compensation or retain the right to sue said employer as provided by this constitution."

[e946358] Mr. Ellinwood: I have no objection to that clause because I think Mr. Connelly's amendment covers that question. I have the New York statutes before me. The New York employer must pay a given amount in case of an accident on death and also a certain amount for an injury and it is optional with the employee whether he accepts the amount offered by the employer or sues him for compensation.

Mr. Cassidy: It seems to me that this is very timely legislation and that if the state legislatures are taking this up that surely ought to be provided for in the state constitution.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 885-886)

[e946359] Mr. President: You have heard the amendment of Mr. Connelly. Are you ready for the question? Those in favor of adopting the amendment say "aye;" those opposed "nay." The motion is carried.

[e946361] Mr. Cunniff: I should like to say that Proposition Number 72 does not seem to be very favorable or very important and since it is along the line of Proposition Number 82, but does not contain all the elements, I think that it is unnecessary.

[e946362] Mr. Ingraham: I move that it be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Winsor: I second the motion.

[e946363] Mr. Ellinwood: I can say that this is in effect in the State of New York, and I will also state further that if this is not provided for in the constitution that it will mean the loss of a thousand votes in the Warren district.

[e946364] Mr. President: The question comes up on the motion to indefinitely postpone Proposition Number 72. Those in favor of the motion say "aye;" those opposed "nay." The "nays" have it.

[e946370] Mr. President: [...] The question now comes up on the final passage of Proposition Number 72 as amended. Those in favor of final passage say "aye;" those opposed "nay." The secretary will call roll.

[e946373] Roll call showed 39 "ayes" and 9 "nays."

Mr. President: By your vote you have adopted Proposition Number 72.

[e946386] Mr. Cunniff: The Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation is through with all the propositions that have been handed to it with the exception of Proposition Number 103, which was referred to this committee and then afterwards defeated in the convention. I do not know what to do with it unless I turn it back to the secretary. The committee has not received Memorial Number 1.

Mr. President: The secretary informs me that Memorial Number 1 was handed to the secretary of the territory.

Mr. Coker: I move you that the action taken on the legislative bureau be rescinded and the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation be instructed to report the bill to the convention.

Mr. Cunniff: I second that motion.

[e946399] Mr. Cunniff: I second that motion. I move an amendment that the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation be instructed to report, but also be authorized to strike out the provision for “clerks for the legislature,” so it will not include that part of the proposition.

[e946400] Mr. President: That was indefinitely postponed November 25.

[e946403] Mr. Ingraham: I rise to a point of order.

Mr. President: State the point of order.

Mr. Ingraham: The committee of the whole of the convention took action upon this bill, and it was referred to the Committee on Style, Revision and Compilation, and as it has not been brought back it is before this body, therefore, we should take action upon it.

[e946412] Mr. Lynch: I do not think that the convention could presume to take action on anything that is in the hands of the committee. It is absolutely dead and let us not resurrect it.

Mr. Goldwater: I would just like to state that this bill was never handed to the committee properly, and we have never had the right to act upon it and it cannot be acted upon until it has been given to the committee properly nor can the committee report it back.

Mr. Cunniff: My colleague is absolutely correct. This proposition is not before the convention as we have not the right to report. This is officially in the box and I herewith hand it back to the secretary.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 886-887)

[e946414] Mr. President: The chair will rule that the motion of the gentleman from Pinal was out of order.

Mr. Coker: I call for the record.

Mr. President: The record shows that the proposition is not before the house.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 887)

[e946449] [Editor’s Note: When Mr Coker’s motion was ruled as out of order, Mr. Cunniff’s motion was rejected in tandem.]

[e946456] [Editor’s Note: When Mr Coker’s motion was ruled as out of order, Mr. Ingraham’s point of order was implicitly adopted.]

[e946434] Mr. President: The convention will come to order. There is a quorum present. Gentlemen of the convention, we will fill in the time reading the minutes. If there is no objection, the secretary will read the minutes.

[e946436] Mr. President: [...] Gentlemen of the convention, we will fill in the time reading the minutes. If there is no objection, the secretary will read the minutes.

[e946438] Mr. Osborn moved, seconded by Mr. Cobb, to dispense with the reading of the minutes of December 3rd

[e946440] Mr. Osborn moved, seconded by Mr. Cobb, to dispense with the reading of the minutes of December 3rd; carried. Minutes for December 3rd approved as if read.

[e946443] Mr. Osborn: Is there anything to come before the convention this afternoon?

Mr. Short: Mr. President, I ask permission to refer to the matter I spoke about before recess. I think we should make provision in the constitution for the government of penal institutions, which we have evidently overlooked. It seems that Proposition Number 44, when it was up for consideration, was indefinitely postponed, and we get the impression some way, probably by report of the committee, that is was taken care of in another proposition, which seems not to have been the case. In order that the matter may be taken care of, I move you the matter of providing for public and penal institutions be referred to the Committee on Education and Public Institutions, with instructions to bring in a proposition.

[e946448] Mr. President: Mr. Short, the chairman of the committee on education is not here. I do not know whether he will be here this afternoon or not.

Mr. Short: In talking it over with the chairman, he was under the impression that the proposition was taken care of in some way and passed third reading, which seems not to be true. The record shows that it was indefinitely postponed, and the matter is not taken care of in any other proposition. We should make some definite provision in regard to that matter. Montana, Oklahoma, and Colorado have the following: "Education and reformatory penal institutions and those for the benefit of insane, blind, deaf and mute, and such other institutions as the public good may require, shall be established and supported by the State in such manner as may be prescribed by law." It seems to me that would be ample. However, it will be necessary under our rules to have some committee bring this up because an individual cannot present a proposition at this time.

[e946451] Mr. President: You can bring it up as chairman of the Committee on Printing and Clerks.

[e946471] Mr. Short: In that case, then, I would like to offer this as a proposition.

[e946472] Mr. President: If there is no objection, it will be accepted. Hearing none, it will be sent up.

[e946477] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): Mr. President, I move the convention stand adjourned until 7:30 o'clock this evening.

[e946481] Mr. President: There is a proposition coming in, Mr. Jones.

[e946491] Mr. President: [...] I would like to ask the chairman of the printing committee when we will get these propositions.

Mr. Short: I called on the printer just before I came over, and he said he would make every effort to get us a number of these articles for consideration at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

Mr. President: I would like to ask the chairman of the printing committee, will you see the secretary of the territory, and find out [if] the constitutions that are to be printed will be sent out of the office of the secretary, and will they be franked?

Mr. Short: I called on the Secretary this morning. He said he was perfectly willing to do so in case it was clear to him that it would be approved by the Department, and he sent a telegram this morning to an official of the Department who has charge of this, asking him if matters of that kind that were ordered done by the convention would be acceptable. He said he would be perfectly willing to do it if we would authorize the help and the expenditure of postage necessary to send out the copies of the constitution to each registered voter within the territory. As soon as he can get a reply to his telegram, which he said should be this evening or in the morning, he will be able to say definitely what he can do. He said he is entirely willing, if we will authorize the expenditure of a proper amount of postage, and authorize the employment of competent help to send them out. Until he hears from Washington, I doubt if we can do anything definite. However, we might go ahead and pass a resolution authorizing the expenditure of this money for the printing of so many copies, and the postage to cover mailing. He says he cannot send them under government frank.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 888-889)

[e946494] Mr. President: If there is no objection the proposition will be read as introduced.

Secretary (reading): "Proposition Number 151 introduced by Mr. Short."

[e946495] Mr. Cunningham: I move the rules be suspended and we have it read a second time.

Mr. Short: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 889)

[e946496] The motion prevailed.

Secretary (reading): "Second reading of Proposition Number 151."

Mr. President: Third reading of the proposition. Those in favor of adopting the proposition will answer "aye;" those opposed will answer "no," as their names are called.

Secretary will call the roll.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 889)

[e946517] Roll call showed 37 “ayes” and no “nays.”

Mr. President: The proposition is passed. Gentlemen of the convention, are there any other matters that you have in mind that we have overlooked?

[e946398] Mr. President: The first reading of Proposition Number 152. What is your pleasure, gentlemen?

[e946401] Mr. President: The first reading of Proposition Number 152. What is your pleasure, gentlemen? A motion to suspend the rules is in order.

Mr. Osborn: I move the rules be suspended and the proposition read a second time by title only and referred to the committee of the whole.

Mr. Roberts: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 890)

[e946402] The motion prevailed.

[e946430] Secretary (reading): "Second reading of Proposition Number 153."

Mr. President: "Second reading of the proposition.

[e946431] Mr. President: [...] It will come up before the Committee of the Whole.

[e946435] Mr. Crutchfield: I would like to have a reconsideration of the vote by which the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. were stricken from the list of taxation exemptions, for the reason that I voted under a misapprehension. Since studying the subject over I have determined that they should be exempted since they are dependent upon the public for support and are institutions which are very beneficial and helpful in many instances, and that fact I do not believe any member will deny. I have also learned that they use all the money left over from building their various institutions to construct buildings in other cities in Arizona, and I believe that it is right that we should exempt them from taxation the same as other institutions that have been exempted. Therefore, I should like to have a reconsideration.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I wish to state that I also voted under a misapprehension in that matter. I have since learned that the facts states are true and if it is reconsidered I suggest an amendment to that part of the clause. I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 890-891)

[e946437] Mr. President: I would suggest, Mr. Crutchfield, that when that part of the constitution comes up that you can make the amendment.

Mr. Crutchfield: I made the motion tonight so that I would not lose my right as it is one day after the sabbath.

Mr. Kingan: I understand that there has already been a motion made to reconsider.

Mr. Ellinwood: I think Dr. Moeur made a motion to reconsider. This is not the day following the time the bill was considered, is it?

Mr. Crutchfield: It was on Saturday and this is Monday.

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I think that a motion to reconsider is in order, as this is the next day for business following Saturday.

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, in the interest of fairness and justice on the part of the members of this convention, I think that the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. should be exempt and I hope that this motion will prevail.

Mr. President: Those in favor of the motion to reconsider will say "aye;" those opposed "no," when the roll is called. The secretary will call the roll.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 891)

[e946441] Roll call showed 31 "ayes" and 10 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is carried.

[Editor's Note: The Minutes record Wood as both voting in favor of the motion and excused.]

(Editorial)

[e946445] Mr. Crutchfield: I think that the motion of Dr. Moeur was that this section be approved as it was before the amendment was made to strike out the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A.

Mr. Weinberger: I think that amendment could be made when that part of the constitution is read.

[e946446] Mr. Cunniff: I think that the correction should be made before it goes to the printer, and I make that as a motion.

Mr. Short: I second that motion.

[e946447] Mr. Osborn: Was that not made by Dr. Moeur the other day?

[e946450] Mr. Crutchfield: I withdraw my motion.

[Editor's Note: Though the Records describe Crutchfield as withdrawing his motion, the editors believe this to be a mistake and that Cunniff, instead, withdrew his motion. Crutchfield's motion to reconsider Moeur's amendment had already been adopted, but Cunniff's motion to make a correction to the text before printing was still under consideration.]

(Editorial)

[e946452] Mr. President: The chairman of the committee on compilation has it in his bill and I think that they could make the correction.

Mr. Osborn: I have an amendment to offer if it is before the house.

Mr. Cunniff: I rise to a point of order. I do not think there can be any amendments made now.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 891-892)

[e946453] Mr. President: When it comes before the committee of the whole it can be amended. Gentlemen, if there are no objections, the convention will resolve itself into the committee of the whole.

[e946454] Mr. Winsor: What shape will you leave this matter in?

Mr. Ellinwood: The motion has been made to strike out the words "Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A." and the question is before the house, shall it be stricken out?

Mr. Winsor: That is what I think.

[e946455] [Editor's Note: Winsor's question was effectively an objection to abandoning the matter in order to resolve into the Committee of the Whole.]

(Editorial)

[e946457] Mr. President: Gentlemen, the question comes up on the motion of Dr. Moeur to strike out the words "Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A." Those in favor say "aye;" opposed "no." The motion to strike out is lost. If there are no objections, the convention will go into committee of the whole.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 892)

[e946458] Mr. Cunniff: May I ask for the members absent?

Secretary: There are seventeen absent.

Mr. Cunniff: I move a call of the house.

Mr. Short: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 892)

[e946459] The motion prevailed.

[e946460] Mr. President: The secretary will call the roll.

Roll call showed all present or excused except Messrs. Cobb, Morgan, Orme and Standage.

Sergeant at arms [sic] instructed to bring these absent members within the bar of the House.

[Editor's Note: According to the Minutes, Webb, rather than Orme, was absent. For this reason, the editors have marked these delegates' attendance uncertain.]

[e946461] Mr. Winsor: I move the call of the house be suspended.

Mr. Lynch: I second the motion.

We come to Thee this morning to ask Thee for the things which we so much need. We address all our wants to Thee. Supply us as Thou seest we need. May we have Thy help to aid us in all that we undertake to do. And now help us to pray: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed by Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread and forgive us our trespasses [as] we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for Thine is the kingdom, and the power and the glory for ever and ever. Amen.

[e946960] Mr. President: Now, gentlemen of the convention, if there are no objections, we will go into a Committee of the Whole to consider the constitution section by section. We will now resolve ourselves into the committee of the whole, the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Goldwater, in the chair.

[Editor's Note: At this point in the negotiation, there were two versions of the Draft Constitution: the one considered in the Committee of the Whole and the one considered in the Convention. The version amended in the Committee of the Whole was referred to the Convention for concurrence on the amendments made in the Committee. In agreeing the amendments made in the Committee of the Whole, the Convention adopted that amended text into its working version of the draft. For this reason, the version of the text amended in the Committee of the Whole was of a more ephemeral nature, as any changes made in the Committee of the Whole could be rejected by the Convention and thus, not incorporated into its working text of the draft. Similarly, the Committee of the Whole was not authorized to make changes to the documents in the Convention. In order to represent the fact that these two bodies were working on two different documents, the editors have modeled the ping pong of the draft between the two bodies so that the Convention's working version of the draft stays in the Convention, while the Committee of the Whole's working version of the draft travels back and forth between Committee of the Whole and Convention.]

[e947182] Mr. President: [...] The question comes up on Article IV of "The Legislature."

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 922-923)

[e947183] Mr. Osborn: Mr. President, I would like to amend section 1 that in line 2 the figures "35" be changed to "36," and that the representatives of Maricopa Count be changed from six to seven. Now, I have made this motion time and time again. I do not expect it will pass. I apologize to the gentleman from Graham and to the rest of the convention, for saying yesterday that that was my last appeal. This will probably be my last appeal, for the reason that it will not come up again. I think Maricopa should be given the same number of representatives as Cochise. Maricopa is entitled to the same, and our vote was almost as large as that of Cochise in the next to the last election, and in the last election it was more than Cochise. It is nothing but justice, right and equity. For goodness sake, give Maricopa what she is entitled to.

Mr. Morgan: I second the motion of the gentleman from Maricopa.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 922-923)

[e947184] Mr. President: Those in favor will answer "aye;" opposed "no." Call the roll.

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

[e947185] Mr. Crutchfield: I should like to explain my vote. I do not think this is just to Maricopa County in the matter of apportionment of representatives.

Mr. Wells: I do not understand the initiative and referendum is included in this?

Mr. President: No, that was passed this morning.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 923)

[e947186] Roll call showed 35 "ayes" and 7 "nays."

[e947193] Mr. Cunningham: In section 9, beginning with the last of the third line, the words "determined by law." I move to strike out the word "determined" and insert in lieu thereof the word "provided." I think that is the proper word there.

Mr. Winsor: I second the motion.

[e947216] Reverend Crutchfield: We thank Thee this morning our Heavenly Father, that we are alive and that we have health of body and health of mind, and have a disposition of heart to call upon our Lord. And now Lord we call upon Thee this morning. Hear us as we pray, and take all our sins away, and from this day may we be wholly Thine. Send upon us Thy grace for the day's duties and responsibilities and labors. We would not undertake anything until we have first invoked the Divine Presence to guide us in all our ways and in all our thoughts and in all our actions, so that we shall honor Thee and be beneficial to our fellow men. Send a blessing to these men in these closing hours of the convention. May they have a conscious void of offense toward Thee and toward their fellow men, and when they have done their work may they have the assurance that they have done that which they have been sent here to do. Hear us; take away our sins; and when the fitful scenes of life are over, save us all in Heaven. We ask all in the Great Redeemer's name. Amen.

[e947258] Mr. President: Gentlemen, you have heard the motion to take a recess for ten minutes. Those in favor of the motion will answer “aye;” those opposed “nay.” The secretary will call the roll.

Roll call showed 15 “ayes” and 31 “nays.”

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

[e947268] Mr. President: [...] Gentlemen, the question will come up on the final adoption of Article VIII, the Recall of Public Officers.

Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I move that Article VIII, entitled "Removal from Office or the Recall of Public Officers," be stricken out, and the following be substituted: "The legislature shall enact a measure for the recall of public officials." This is the exact language of the pledge on which the Maricopa delegation was elected. It was in our platform and was printed and stood there during the campaign, and I am not in favor of adopting any other measure.

Mr. Osborn: I second that motion.

[Editor's Note: The wording of the document text is taken from page 403 of the Minutes.]

[e947273] Mr. President: You have heard the motion of Mr. Baker. Those in favor of adopting this amendment will answer "aye;" those opposed "nay," as the roll is called.

Mr. Cunningham: Is this a substitute for Article VIII?

Mr. Baker: Yes, as far as the word "impeachment."

Mr. President: Secretary call the roll on the adoption of the amendment.

Mr. Cunningham: I voted "aye" for this same amendment and I vote "aye" now.

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I would like to have the record show that I am in favor of a recall, but in my judgement I think that this question is one that should be more carefully considered, and I vote "aye" in this instance.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 925)

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

[e947281] Mr. Cassidy moved, seconded by Mr. Franklin, that subdivision No. 1 of Article 8 be referred to the Committee on Separate Submission with instructions that they report a Proposition thereon to be submitted separately.

[e947286] In the face of this hopeless situation, Mr. Cassidy offered a motion to refer the article to the committee on separate submission that it might be placed before the voters separately from the constitution. The first argument he offered in support of this motion was the statement that [it] would bring out a larger vote at the election on the constitution. It was anyhow, said Mr. Cassidy, a matter that ought to go before the people. It would be an application of the principle of the referendum to a most important matter. Said Mr. Cassidy: 'There are many who doubt the wisdom of retaining the article in the constitution; they believe that it's a menace to statehood. The people are as sincere as the members of this convention and are as capable of exercising judgement and it carries that will forever close to the mouths of its opponents. It will cut the ground from under the feet of the opposition and will rob them of their thunder.'

'Don't you believe it,' was an injunction from a member of the 'opposition.'

(The Arizona Republican, 1910, December 8. Last Futile Assault. Pages 2-3)

[e947290] Mr. Baker: I desire to say one word and before I do say I word [sic.] I ask permission of the gentleman from Graham County, Mr. Webb, to read a communication that he has received from one of the highest officials in the United States and one of the most popular men in the Congress of the United States.

Mr. Webb: In reply to the gentleman from Maricopa I desire to say that Mr. Cobb and I wired several days ago to Honorable Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, and our purpose in doing so was, if possible, to induce the convention to see the situation as the delegation from Graham County have seen it all the time. If you do adopt the recall as it is I will vote for it, but if there is any way possible of getting this question submitted to the people or amended, I am in favor of doing so. The gentleman from Maricopa may read the telegram and the reply.

[e947294] Mr. Baker: I shall now read the communication of both parties. "November 29, 1910, Honorable Joseph W. Bailey, Gainesville, Texas. Constitutional convention has adopted initiative and referendum. Has proposition to insert recall applicable to all officials including judiciary. Would these provisions in your opinion endanger approval of Constitution by President and Congress. Will treat answer as confidential for Democrats or for publication as you indicate. W. T. Webb, Lamar Cobb, Democratic members."

[e947298] Mr. Baker: I shall now read the communication of both parties. [...] "Washington, D.C., December 5, 1910. Honorable W.T. Webb or Honorable Lamar Cobb, Phoenix, Arizona. Your telegram to Gainesville forwarded here. The provisions you specify are apt to provoke opposition of the President and might invite the disapproval of Congress. I am sincerely anxious to see Arizona admitted to the Union, and I advise our friends there to adopt a constitution free from all debatable provisions so as to secure statehood without delay. After becoming a state the people of Arizona can then adopt such amendments to her constitution as her people desire without consulting anybody or incurring the risk of being kept in a territorial condition. (Signed) J. W. Bailey."

[e947307] Mr. Baker: [...] Now, one word, I will say that this is in keeping with the written platform upon which I was elected. This can be submitted to the people at the same time the constitution is and can do no possible harm, but better still is the amendment which is in keeping with the recall measure. I say most emphatically that I am opposed to the recall, as it now stands, being adopted by this convention, and I do hope that it will not be adopted but rather that it be submitted to the people and if they vote for it it will be just the same as though it had been in the constitution and enacted here. It will certainly give expression to the wishes of the people.

Mr. Feeney: Will the gentleman yield to a question?

Mr. Baker: I yield.

Mr. Feeney: Is this more debatable than the initiative and referendum?

Mr. Baker: I am not here to answer that for a Senator. I do not deem that the initiative and referendum is debatable at all.

Mr. Parsons: I had not intended to say anything this morning on this question, but since this matter has taken the turn it has I do not see how I can do my duty without I give some defense of the measure, one of the most solemn and one of the strongest points of the constitution. Talk of leaving it to the people to vote on! If you can depend upon anything at all that the people wish, you can most certainly depend upon their votes and their wishes when they sent this convention here to make this constitution and with this measure pledged for in our platforms. Or if you can depend upon the correspondence [sic.] whose wishes are expressed therein you can certainly understand what the people want from the correspondence that we are getting. Now, if you are going to submit this for the people to vote upon for the purpose of getting a larger number of voters out as the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Cassidy states, the chances are that you will lose more voters than you gain, for many of the voters will not know what they are voting on by submitting this as a matter of separate submission. Let us have a clean cut vote and with reference to the percentage of voters, I would just say that if the report of the percentage of voters can be depended upon, that of seventy-five percent, I think, will be a fair vote of the people, and I dare say, judging from the votes of the minority of this convention, that there will be a greater percentage than seventy-five percent.

We have a communication from Mr. Bailey advising us to leave or to eliminate debatable matter from our constitution, and that debatable matter being the recall. Now we might search all over the United States with a fine tooth comb and I do not believe that we could find another man more prepared to offer such advise [sic, advice] on the matter of the subject of the recall. What constitution would not contain debatable matter? What good could one see in a constitution that contained nothing debatable? I say that without some debatable matter in it, it would be a wishy-washy affair, and for my part I much prefer to have something in that is worthy of debate, and I believe that in the history of great achievements that this question of the recall will yet be known as one of the greatest measures that was ever debated upon and that history will repeat itself many times by having this written into many constitutions before many years have gone by.

With reference to this communication and one that I read in the papers only yesterday, coming from one of our highest officials who does not live more than one hundred miles from this building, I would say that these men are a fine pair and ought to tie up together. In my opinion one is as good as the other. The one giving advice to this convention as to what might invite the disapproval of Congress or the opposition of the President, and the other saying that he did not believe that the constitution as being framed by the convention members would ever be ratified by the people. I would like to ask the members of this convention, and especially the minority members, what authority he had to make such statements before one article of the constitution had been adopted by this convention? What right has he to question the work of this convention and give as his opinion the probable [decision] of the people in the matter before we have adopted a single article, and bring before the Congress and the President such reference to the work as would tend to antagonize them against the members, whose untiring efforts here in the interest of the people whom they represent have endeared us in the hearts of the people, and who have already expressed their feelings with regard to our services here by the words "well done, thou good and faithful servant."

Mr. Wood: In answer to the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Cassidy, on separate submission, I would say that no one county in the territory has declared for the initiative, referendum and recall, and another county, that of Gila, has instructed her delegation that they wanted nothing attached as separate submission questions.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 926-927)

[e947309] Mr. Webb replying to Mr. Parson's statement regarding messages from home said that he had received many advising him to do the thing he now wished to do, submit this matter to the people. As to the delegates from Yavapai and Gila County, Mr. Webb said that they were allowed no choice in the matter but he urged those who were not so bound to support the Cassidy motion as one likely to make statehood more certain.

(The Arizona Republican, December 8, 1910)

[e947311] Mr. Cunniff: I am not here to apologize for Mr. Bailey, but I understand in the remarks of the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Parsons, some harsh references to that gentleman. In my opinion he is one of the ablest men in the United States Senate. Had it not been for that man there would have been no constitutional convention, nor any constitution, for it was through his efforts, the untiring efforts of Honorable Joseph W. Bailey, that we have the Enabling Act, and we should feel very grateful to him for his sincere and ceaseless labors in our behalf. (applause)

Mr. Webb: It is for this reason we sent those telegrams to him, knowing he had our interest at heart, and is very desirous of our securing statehood.

Mr. Cunniff: I do not think it is necessary for us to pay attention to those telegrams, for I do not consider that they were communications from him for they came only as a reply to inquiry and I see no reason for paying any attention to them.

[e947312] Mr. President: The question comes up on the amendment of Mr. Cassidy. The secretary will call the roll, and those voting "aye" will vote for separate submission and those voting "nay" vote against separate submission.

Roll call showed 17 "ayes" and 30 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

[e947324] Mr. President: [...] Gentlemen, the vote now comes up on the adoption of Article VIII. Those in favor of the adoption of Article VIII, entitled the Recall of Public Officers, will answer "aye;" those opposed "nay," as the roll is called.

Mr. Lynch: I desire to offer another amendment. I voted "aye" for the last question, but now I am going to offer as an amendment for expediency; I move you that in Article VIII, Section 1, of the Recall of Public Officers, that after the words "public officers" insert the words "except judges of courts of record."

Mr. Tuthill: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 929)

[e947331] Mr. President: Gentlemen, you understand the motion. Those in favor of the amendment will answer "aye;" those opposed "nay," as the secretary calls the roll.

Roll call showed 15 "ayes" and 32 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost. The question comes up on the adoption of Article VIII. Those in favor of its adoption will answer "aye;" those opposed "nay." Call the roll.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 929)

[e947334] Mr. President: [...] The question comes up on the adoption of Article VIII. Those in favor of its adoption will answer "aye;" those opposed "nay." Call the roll.

Mr. Orme: I wish to explain my vote. I voted for the amendment and for separate submission for the reason that I feared it might endanger statehood to adopt the recall as it stood, but since it seems to be the wish of the majority of the members of this convention to adopt the measure, I shall vote "aye."

[e947336] Roll call showed 38 "ayes" and 9 "nays."

Mr. President: Article VIII is adopted by the convention.

[e947340] Mr. Roberts: Mr. President, I have a resolution I would like to have read.

Mr. President: Secretary read the resolution.

Secretary (reading): Resolution Number 20. "Whereas, the Governor of Arizona publicly expressed through the press in Washington, December 5th, his opinion 'That the Constitution which is being formed will never be adopted.'

Resolved by the Constitutional Convention of Arizona that as no part of the constitution had been finally completed on the date above mentioned, no honest or intelligent opinion could be expressed, it deplores the unfair and presumptuous statement of the Governor as tending to influence Congress and the President in granting the wishes of the people of Arizona as expressed in the election of delegates to the Convention; that a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the President and Congress by telegraph."

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 929)

[e947342] Mr. Cunningham: I think that it would be unwise to adopt such a resolution. We have no evidence that what the newspapers say is true, and even if it were true, I can see no reason why the Governor of any other person should not have the right to express his opinion on these matters. It is their right as well as the newspapers. I do not think that we should be so sensitive to such remarks and I suggest we pay no attention whatever to the matter.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 929)

[e947345] Mr. Cunniff: I move that the resolution be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Wills: I second the motion.

[e947348] The motion prevailed.

[e947207] [Editor's Note: At the conclusion of the Committee of the Whole session on the afternoon of 6 December, Goldwater says, "Gentlemen, we have completed the printed part of the constitution." In the morning session of the Convention, before resolving into the Committee of the Whole, he says, "Gentlemen, we have some other matter to come before the committee of the whole..." It is clear, therefore, that Part 2 of the draft had been disposed of that the following articles were presented to the Convention in a third part.]

Secretary (reading): Resolution Number 21.

[e947285] Secretary (reading): Substitute for Resolution 21. "Resolved that a Committee on Editing to consist of five members be appointed by the President, with authority and instructions to edit and correct the verbatim report, or journal, of the proceedings of the Convention, and to submit typewritten copies of the same to such members as may request, to be by such members verified. The Committee on Editing shall have power and authority and is by this resolution vested with the power and authority of the Constitutional Convention, to employ such assistants as may be necessary in the performance of the duty assigned it.

The Secretary of the Territory is hereby authorized and directed to expend from the appropriation made in section 35 of the Enabling Act, approved June 20, 1910, such sums of money as may be necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this resolution."

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 935-936)

[e947291] Mr. Winsor: I move the adoption of the resolution.

Mr. Roberts: I second the motion.

[e947293] Mr. Cunningham: Mr. President, is it the purpose of that second resolution to keep members of this convention here indefinitely working over the verbatim report, when we have sworn stenographers to take down that report?

Mr. President: That report would have to be gone over and corrected. The Secretary of State would not know how to correct it.

[e947301] Mr. Franklin: Mr. President, as an amendment to that resolution, I move that the verbatim report of this convention be expunged from the records of this convention.

[e947306] Mr. Baker: I am going to offer an amendment, and that is this: That the verbatim report as taken by the stenographers stand as it is at the present time.

Mr. Cunningham: I second the motion. What I have had to say in this convention I have tried to say advisedly. I am willing for it to stand as I said it, and if it is intelligible to any reader I am willing for him to draw his own conclusions, and if he is unable to ascertain my meaning, if I am still alive at the time he may be reading it, I will try to explain to him what thoughts I had and tried to express at that time. But I do not see where the authority would come in to appoint five members of this convention to spend the next six months in trying to find out what the sense of this convention was.

[e947317] Amendment accepted by Mr. Franklin...

[e947326] Mr. Goldwater: Mr. President, I have come in a little late, and I am not quite positive what is under consideration. I find on my desk a sheet of paper endorsed on the back, which reads as follows: "Resolution Number 1." Referred to the Committee on Ordinance, of which I am chairman. Now the Committee on Ordinance, through an oversight, I am sure (as I am sure my colleagues have no desire to neglect any duties assigned to them) have failed to make any report on this resolution. In the editing of this verbatim report I presumed that this resolution will no doubt appear, unless the editing committee slights it out as being frivolous. I am going to read this resolution again: "Resolved, that any member having a prepared speech of which he is proud, and which he desires to have perpetuated, be given leave to file a typewritten or printed copy of same, prepared at his own expense, with the secretary of this convention, to be published in the journal. Be it further resolved, that the secretary be authorized to insert at such intervals as he may deem proper in said speech these words, "hear, hear," "Loud applause," "Laughter," etc. Now, Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that this resolution is certainly germane to the subject just now under discussion, and I bring it up again for the purpose of reminding the members that if they have failed to introduce any speech which they wanted introduced in this verbatim report, they now have an opportunity to go to the secretary and file with him a typewritten copy of such remarks.

[e947335] Mr. Cunningham: I seconded that motion of the gentleman myself.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 937)

[e947338] Mr. Goldwater: I want to return this resolution, which has been returned to the committee, to the files of the convention. I think it is all right, even if it is frivolous, and I am going to return it with the report of the committee to the effect that the committee returns it back to the convention without recommendation.

[e947344] Mr. Cobb: Mr. President, is another amendment in order at this time? I would like to amend by striking out the appointment of a committee of five, and insert the secretary and assistant secretary of this convention. I think they are the most competent people.

[e947350] Mr. Colter: I do not think that amendment is in order.

[Editor's Note: The Minutes names Colter as the seconder of the motion, which seems unlikely to be the case if he objected to the amendment as being out of order. Either the Records or the Minutes is likely incorrect, though it is not clear which.]

[e947353] Mr. Standage: I would like to amend that; that it be the assistant secretary who had charge of this verbatim report.

Mr. Sims: I second that amendment.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 937)

[e947354] Mr. Cobb: There was no second to my motion, and I will accept the amendment as offered by Mr. Standage.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 937)

[e947358] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, you have heard the motion of the gentleman from Maricopa. Mr. Baker moves, seconded by Mr. Cunningham, that the verbatim report will stand as the stenographers have taken it; amended that the assistant secretary of the convention will edit this verbatim report. Are you ready for the question?

Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, is that amendment made on the original motion that was inserted in that resolution, or does it stand alone?

Mr. President: If that motion carries, that portion of the resolution will have to be stricken out that the president of the convention appoint five members.

Mr. Cunniff: Did the provisions of that original motion cover this?

Mr. President: I understand that would be it.

Mr. Morgan: The gentleman from Maricopa made a motion that the original verbatim report be accepted, and we have not had a chance to vote on that proposition.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 937)

[e947360] Mr. Goldwater: Mr. President, I do not know that I am in order, but I have another resolution which I would like to introduce at this time—not as an amendment, but as an addition, and it reads as follows: “Resolved that five hundred copies of the verbatim report proceedings of this convention, as revised and edited, be bound in calf or sheep as may be deemed most appropriate to the member or person for whom the copy is intended.”

[Editor's Note: Goldwater's distinction between an amendment and an addition to the resolution lies in the fact that he is not proposing to replace existing text but add additional text. However, such a change still falls within the definition of an amendment used in this project in that it is a proposed change to – addition or deletion – to a piece of text.]

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 937)

[e948394] [Editor’s Note: Mr. Goldwater’s addition didn’t seem to have received a second.]

(Editorial)

[e947367] Mr. Chairman [sic. President]: The question comes up on the first amendment offered by the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Standage. Those in favor of that amendment will answer “aye;” opposed “no.” The “ayes” have it.

(Editorial, Page 937)

[e947370] Mr. Cunniff: If an amendment is in order, I should like to add a proviso to that resolution. “Provided, that no member shall extend the report of his remarks or his speeches.” The point is, that as I understand, there are places where this verbatim record is not complete, where perhaps a word is dropped out, and I think it would be practical to see that that is straightened out without the members going to inserting things that, say, have been omitted; and therefore, I offer this as an amendment in entire good faith and sincerity, that the verbatim report shall not be expunged.

Mr. Morgan: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 937-938)

[e948400] [Editor’s Note: There is no further mention of Cunniff’s amendment, so it is represented as dropped.]

(Editorial)

[e947372] Mr. Baker: What has become of my original amendment to the motion? We have never had an opportunity to vote upon it. I ask that my original amendment to the motion be put.

[e947374] Mr. President: The gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Baker, moves that the verbatim report will stand as the stenographers have written it out. Those in favor of that motion will answer “aye;” those opposed will answer “no.” Call the roll.

Mr. Osborn: Mr. President, in explaining my vote I want to call attention to the fact that every Republican member has voted “aye,” and every time one of those members made a speech he had it written out and handed to the secretary; therefore, I vote no.

Mr. Wills: I am like Mr. Osborn, I vote no.

Mr. Cobb: I would like to know the status of this question now.

Mr. President: There is no status to it at all.

Mr. Baker: The record stands as it is now?

[e947416] Mr. President: Those in favor of the amendment will answer “aye”—those in favor of the resolution as amended will answer “aye;” those opposed will answer “nay.” The “ayes” have it; so ordered.

[e947435] Mr. Bolan moved, seconded by Mr. Morgan, to reconsider the vote by which motion was carried to leave verbatim report as it is now written.

[e947443] Carried by the following vote:

Ayes Bolan, Bradner, Cassidy, Cobb, Coker, Colter, Connelly, Crutchfield, Cunniff, Feeney, Goldwater, Ingraham, Jones, A.M., Jones, F.A., Keegan, Kingan, Kinney, Moeur, Morgan, Osborn, Parsons, Roberts, Sims, R.B., Simms, Mit, Tuthill, Webb, Weinberger, Wills, Winsor, Wood, Mr. President. Nays—Baker, Cooper, Cunningham, Curtis, Franklin, Hutchinson, Jacome, Kingan, Langdon, Lovin, Lynch, Orme, Pusch, Scott, Short, Standage, Tovrea, White, Wells. Total 19.

[e948396] [Editor’s Note: With the vote reconsidered, the editors have inferred that Franklin’s proposal was dropped.]

[e947448] Mr. Jones of Maricopa, moved, seconded by Mr. Sims, of Cochise, to amend Resolution Number 21 by striking out the words near the beginning “five members” and inserting the words “the assistant secretary working under the supervision of one Democrat and one Republican” and that in the second line the word “with” be stricken out and the words “is hereby given” be inserted.

[e947584] Mr. Feeney: I move that the convention take a recess until 7:30 o'clock this evening.

[e947438] The President resumed the chair.

Mr. President: The convention will come to order. The chair will recognize the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Goldwater.

[e947461] [Editor's Note: At the conclusion of the Convention session on the afternoon of 7 December, after the Convention considered Article X, Hunt says, "I would like to ask the chairman of the printing committee when there will be some other printed matter ready for the convention?" Given that the Convention considered the Draft Constitution as the articles were printed, it is clear that a new group of articles, beginning with Article XI, constituted a fourth part of the draft.]

(Editorial)

[e947447] Mr. President: A quorum is present. Gentlemen of the convention, if there are no objections, the convention will now resolve itself into a committee of the whole.

[e947464] Mr. Cobb: Mr. President, before we go into Committee of the Whole, I would like to move that the entire debate which took place this morning over the recall be stricken from the record.

Mr. Bolan: I second the motion.

[e947465] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, you have heard the motion.

Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I cannot understand any reason for that. I cannot understand the cause for it. Anything that any man says on the floor of this convention ought to be published. It ought to stand. Every man ought to stand by what he has said and by what he has done. There is no need of concealing anything. What each man has said, what each man has done upon the floor of this convention, should be let stand, and nothing be stricken out.

Mr. Goldwater: Mr. President, I would suggest that we cannot do that without putting into the record the motion made by the gentleman from Graham, Mr. Cobb, and to do that would just simply draw attention to the matter that had been omitted. It would make it worse.

Mr. Lynch: Mr. President, I understand that the motion embraced only the debate upon the initiative and referendum, and not the motions that were made. Now, I agree with the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Baker, that we should stand by anything we said, and I am willing to stand by what I said, but there were some remarks made in the heat of the debate that I think would be better stricken from the record when it gets up to Washington.

Mr. Baker: Mr. President, I object to this convention being like jellyfish and spineless. Whatever a man has said upon this floor, let it go for aye and nay forever and ever. There is no necessity of our crawfishing. It is a disgrace to pass a thing of that kind. It is simply unmanly and improper.

Mr. Tuthill: Mr. President, I object to any such motion as that. I was in the very small minority today, but I am willing to let my words stand, and I think this magnificent majority ought to take the same stand.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 943-944)

[e947466] Mr. President: Those in favor of expunging from the records the remarks that were made in regard to the recall will say "aye;" those opposed "no." The "nays" have it.

[e947467] Mr. Goldwater: It seems to me that my recollection is that the gentleman from Graham did not make any extended remarks on that subject.

Mr. Cobb: I was just going to make that explanation.

Mr. Goldwater: I think somebody has misled him into making this motion.

Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, if there are no objections the convention will now...

Mr. Cobb: I made that motion without the suggestion of anyone or without consulting with any one.

[e947468] Mr. President:...go into Committee of the Whole with the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Goldwater, in the chair; so ordered.

[e947696] Reverend Crutchfield: O Lord, our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee that we have come to this hour. For these sixty days these men have been gathering here day after day in this work, and we are permitted to gather here at the last day allotted to them in which to do the work which they have come here to do. We thank Thee, Lord, that none of these men have been caused to die; no sorrow nor sadness has come to any of their homes that is giving them great distress. We thank Thee for the merciful circumstances by which they are surrounded today, and we thank Thee, Lord, that we have the disposition of heart to call upon God, and we pray Thee, Lord, to be with every one of these men this day. We thank Thee, Lord, that there is enough patriotism in these men, though they may not get pay for the labors they have to do in the future to write up this constitution, that they have patriotism to come here a day and work gratuitous, and we pray Thee that they may have courage to do manfully what ought to be done before they adjourn, so that they shall have a clean and a good constitution written. Lord, we thank Thee for our association with these men for these sixty days. We thank Thee for the absence of [word unclear] we have heard—but little—and for the cleanness of these members' conversation and in life. We thank Thee that as representatives of the people they express a high type of Christian civilization and [words unclear] gentility and manliness. We pray Thee that it may characterize them through their lives, and their families and friends with whom they are associated and over whom they have an influence, that they may be influenced to the right that they shall be honorable citizens and fellow citizens of this great country. Hear us, Lord, in these our morning prayers. Forgive us our sins. Lead us along the way of life gently, smoothly and sweetly, and in Heaven give us a home. We ask in the Great Redeemer's name. Amen.

Mr. President: Article XXI has been adopted by this convention. Gentlemen, we will now take up Article XXII, Schedule.

[e948009] Secretary: (reading) Article XXII, Schedule.

[e948013] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, this is not debatable at this time, but section 15 looks a bit doubtful: "Any law of the Territory of Arizona in force at the time of the admission of the state into the Union shall be considered as repealed by this constitution, if the enactment of such law by the legislative power of the state is forbidden by this constitution." If certain things were permitted, or have been permitted by law, and the law has not been repealed, according to another section in our constitution these laws remain in effect until they are definitely repealed, and this constitution merely prevents the operation of anything that is repugnant, to this constitution, —nothing that is forbidden by this constitution. It seems to me that we ought to have a clear idea of these specific laws that there may be that are forbidden by the legislative power of the state to enact subsequently. It seems to me we were a little bit hasty in adopting this last article.

Mr. Ingraham: Mr. President, it is impossible for this convention to adopt any law impairing obligation of contract anyway, as that is forbidden by the United States Constitution. The intent of section 15 is this: we will suppose that there is a certain law, enactment of which is forbidden to the legislature of the new state. Now that forbidding does not repeal the law now on the statute books. There may now be a law on the statute books of the Territory of Arizona to the exact effect of the law which might be forbidden by this constitution. Now are we to let that law of the Territory of Arizona go on still in force while our legislature is prohibited from enacting such a law, and yet we have nothing in the constitution which says that those laws are repealed by this constitution. We have a provision saying laws which are repugnant are repealed, but such a law is not repugnant to the constitution because there is nothing in the constitution repugnant to the law. The purpose of this clause is to put something in our constitution that will be repugnant to the law.

962-963)

[e948018] Mr. Crutchfield: I move that it be stricken out.

[e948021] Mr. Ingraham: It is absolutely necessary, unless we want a whole batch of laws at present on the statute books to continue under our constitution. We have adopted several provisions saying that the legislature shall enact no law concerning this, that or the other, and yet we have such laws now on the statute books.

Mr. Weinberger: Mr. President, I will submit that that provision will work considerable hardship, and is liable to meet with considerable confusion for this reason: it contemplates the repeal of any law which has already been enacted, when the constitution provides that no such law shall be enacted. For instance, we have laws whereby cities have been incorporated by a special act. I think the city of Prescott is working under a special charter, and if this provision should go into effect, that law would be repealed for the reason that our legislative bill provides that no special, local or special law shall be enacted in any of the following cases: incorporation of cities, towns or villages, or amending their charters. This is only one of a dozen similar cases where such laws or other laws have been enacted, and these laws would be repealed.

[e948022] [Editor's Note: Crutchfield's motion to strike out Section 15 appears to have not received a second, as Cunniff proposed the same amendment later.]

(Editorial)

[e948025] [Editor's Note: Crutchfield's motion to strike out Section 15 appears to have not received a second, as Cunniff proposed the same amendment later.]

[e948028] Mr. Ingraham: I would say that unless there is some similar provision put in, there will more inequity creep into this constitution than the members now dream of. It permits the legislature, by simply allowing the present laws to stand on the statute books, to avoid the prohibitions of this constitution. When we prohibit certain things we mean there shall be no laws concerning such things, and now this convention proposes to allow the legislature to continue such a law, perhaps for a hundred years. These laws will never be repealed unless they are repealed by the action of the legislature.

Mr. Lynch: Mr. President, I think if the gentleman from Yuma will stop to consider a moment, he will see his position is not well taken. Under the provisions of the Enabling Act "all laws of the said territory in force at the time of its admission into the Union shall be in force in said state until changed by the legislature of the state, except as modified or changed by this act or by the constitution of the state." In other words, if in our constitution we have changed a law or qualified it or determined that no such law shall exist, and we have suspended absolutely the operation of that law, whether it is changed by the legislature or not, it is absolutely of no force whatever, without any further action.

Mr. Ingraham: The gentleman does not catch my point yet. It is true if we qualify a law then the law is repealed under the terms of the Enabling Act, but we simply say that the legislature shall enact no law concerning this thing or that, or if they say that no law shall be enacted that does not repeal the present law. The present law would stand forever under this provision, in spite of the prohibitions of the constitution. If that provision is not included there must be something similar to that provision, and as the schedule is now being completed this is our last opportunity.

Mr. Cunniff: I submit that where the constitution has changed a law that is what we meant to do, and that is all well and good in places where we have done it, but in places where we did not intend to do it we followed the same procedure that is followed in other states, of saying that all laws in existence that are repugnant to the constitution, which have not been repealed by this constitution, shall remain in force until one by one they are repealed by the legislative power of the state, and it seems to me that is the wise and orderly way to go about it, and not make a sweeping provision of this kind.

Mr. Weinberger: I will say further, that I believe that the legislature can correct any of these contradictions that may appear.

Mr. Cassidy: Mr. President, I was in favor of this section, but since Mr. Weinberger has pointed out that it might operate to repeal the special charters in some way of the cities, I think I will have to vote against it. I believe that is a very important point that Mr. Weinberger has brought up, and I feel that this convention should not, under those circumstances, adopt this section. I was in favor of it, but since the objections have been pointed out I am certainly of the opinion that it ought not to pass.

[e948033] Mr. Ingraham: I will make an amendment, Mr. Chairman, that this shall not be construed to extend to charters of cities or towns.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 964)

[e948036] Mr. Weinburger: I submit that will not help matters any.

[e948038] Mr. President: There is no second to the motion.

[e948039] Mr. Cunniff, moved, seconded by Mr. Jones of Yavapai, to strikeout Section 15 of Article XXII, carried.

[e948053] Mr. Cassidy: Mr. President, it seems to me that the heading of this article ought to be amended so as to read "Schedule and Miscellaneous," because we have put some things in here that really are not schedule, and I moved that it be changed to read "Schedule and Miscellaneous."

[e948054] Mr. Cunniff: Mr. President, I would suggest that we postpone final action on this matter. There are still three or four propositions that have not been acted on in the committee of the whole, and I think they are not yet returned from the printer. One is Proposition 93, which should have been incorporated in legislative but we did not have it in time. One is the state examiner, and the other is the provision requiring that all officers shall receive definite salaries and shall not receive fees for their own use. These might be incorporated under the heading of "Miscellaneous," and I therefore, move that final action on this be postponed until later in the day when those matters are back and all these things can be incorporated and the heading changed.

[e948055] Mr. Short: I would say further, Mr. President, that those printed articles will be here in twenty minutes.

[e948057] Mr. President: If there are no objections we will postpone this temporarily.

[e948059] Mr. Crutchfield: What has become of the two sections referred to—juvenile court and penal institutions?

Mr. President: The chair will recognize the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Bradner.

[e947704] Mr. Bradner: I have a resolution, Mr. President.

[e947707] Mr. Cunniff: In the interim, while the resolution is being brought up, I should like to make a suggestion. The revision committee has now reported everything except the election ordinance, Number 2, which is the one providing for the primary, and which will be ready to report to the convention today. According to the understanding of the revision committee, with these three I have named, now we have incorporated in the constitution every proposition that has been adopted by the convention, and we should be very glad to have the assistance of any delegate in checking over his own propositions or any matters in which he is interested, to see if we have made any error. According to our records, we have now provided, with these three propositions to come in from the printer in a few minutes, for everything that has been adopted.

(Editorial)

[e947716] Mr. Short: I would like to ask the gentleman from Yavapai, Mr. Cunniff, the status of Election Ordinance Number 1.

Mr. Cunniff: Election Ordinance Number 1 has never been referred to the revision committee. As I understand, it is in the secretary's hands, and was referred by the committee to a select committee to fill in some dates. I understand it is awaiting the action of that committee, which cannot act until we have a definite understanding of the time at which we will adjourn. I would suggest that the election ordinance be sent to the revision committee in the interim so we may report on the revised copy of it.

[e947718] Mr. Winsor: I have the special election ordinance in my hands, referred to me by the secretary. I think the suggestion of the gentleman from Yavapai is a good one. That it should be referred to the Committee on Style and Revision, for the sub-committee will not be able to report until we know when we will adjourn.

[e947719] Mr. President: If there is no objection it will be referred to the committee so ordered.

[e947720] Secretary: (reading) Resolution No. 22, (introduced by Mr. Bradner)...

[e947723] Secretary (reading): "Resolution Number 22, (introduced by Mr. Bradner), Be it resolved that the Committee on Printing and Clerks, Be, and it hereby is, instructed to invite bids from the daily newspapers published in the city of Phoenix, for the publication of the Constitution of Arizona as it shall finally be adopted by this Convention such publication to be made twice each week for four successive weeks, and to award to the newspaper submitting the lowest and best bid in accordance with the terms of this Resolution, the contract for said publishing. The said Committee shall require each newspaper submitting a bid to accompany the same with a sworn statement of the actual bona fide circulation of said newspaper, and may exact such other conditions and make such other investigations as will satisfy the said Committee of the circulation of any newspaper so bidding or of the accuracy of any circulation statement so submitted; and bids received shall be considered and the contract awarded with due regard to and upon the basis of circulation statements, verified as aforesaid.

The Secretary of the Territory is hereby authorized and directed to expend, from the appropriation made in Section 35 of the Enabling Act, approved June 20, 1910, such sums of money as may be necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this resolution."

[e947729] Mr. Wood: I move the adoption of the resolution.

[e947731] Mr. President: You have heard the resolution. The question comes up on the adoption of Resolution Number 22. The “ayes” have it; so ordered. Read the memorial by Mr. Osborn.

[e947734] Secretary (reading): Memorial Number 2, introduced by Mr. Osborn of Maricopa County, relating to election for ratification of constitution.

[e947737] Mr. Osborn: I move the adoption of the memorial.

Mr. Standage: I second the motion.

[e947740] Mr. President: You have heard the memorial. The question comes up on the adoption of the memorial—

Mr. Ingraham: I would like to ask how the date of the election can be fixed. We have drawn an ordinance to the effect that notice shall be issued by the Governor of the territory within five days after our adoption of the ordinance calling the election under the provisions of the Enabling Act, which will be not less than sixty or more than ninety days after our adjournment. Now it is contemplated by this memorial that this convention shall fix the time of that election. If we adopt this resolution and send it on to Congress, and await the action of Congress, what position will it leave us in concerning the date of the election? It seems to me the election will have to be called, we must require the notices to be given, and the election having been called, it seems to me great confusion would result if Congress shall later take some action on this memorial.

Mr. Osborn: Mr. President, Congress would have to take action right away to give us any benefit under this memorial, and I believe they will do that. In answer to the gentleman from Yuma, I would say that we can set the date for the election in our ordinance, and say unless otherwise provided by an act of Congress, which I think would do away with this objection.

Mr. President: The question comes up on the adoption of the memorial. Any other remarks? Those in favor of the memorial will answer “aye;” those opposed will answer “no.” Call the roll. Those in favor of the adoption of the memorial will answer “aye” as their names are called. Those opposed will answer “no.”

Mr. Cunniff: I have given considerable thought to that resolution since I first saw it, and the more I think of it the more it seems to me that this action will be of no great value or assistance, and it seems to me it is the wise plan to let things ride as they are, and let the convention set the date of the election within the terms of the Enabling Act, and do not try to be in too great a hurry.

Mr. Osborn: Mr. President, can the gentleman from Yavapai point to any one instance where it will work to the disadvantage of the territory? It may not do any good, but it certainly cannot do any harm.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 996-967)

[e947742] Mr. President: Call the roll.

Roll call showed 17 "ayes" and 32 "nays."

Mr. President: The motion is lost.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 967)

[e947746] Mr. Short: I have a resolution that I would like to offer.

Secretary (reading): Resolution Number 23, introduced by Mr. Short of Yuma, "Resolved that the Convention proceed to elect a Vice-President of this Convention to act in case of failure or inability of the President to perform the duties named in Election Ordinances."

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I second the resolution.

Mr. President: You have heard the resolution.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 967)

[e947749] Mr. Short: In explanation of that, I would like to say that I think it would be a wise precaution for this convention to take some action in the way of a provision for somebody to act in the election matters in case of the inability, or sickness, or death of the President, to act in that capacity, and have prepared an amendment to each of the election ordinances which would provide that the Vice-President should act in the case of the inability of the President to act in this matter.

[e948269] Mr. President: [...] Gentlemen of the convention, Article XV, Corporation Commission. The secretary will read the article for final adoption.

Secretary (reading): Article XV.

[e948270] Mr. Short: Are amendments in order as the section is read? In section 1 of this article, I move that on line 4 the “th” after 20 be stricken out.

Mr. Goldwater: That was already done in committee of the whole and already adopted.

Mr. President: If there are no objections, the record will be made to show that.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 985-986)

[e948271] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): I should like to move an amendment to section 13, and I should like to say that I believe the committee of the whole fell under the hypnotic eloquence of our friend from Cochise. It was not discussed fully, and had been prior to our present action, and I, therefore, move the reinsertion of the words eliminated, commencing on line 4.

Mr. Jones (Yavapai): I second the motion.

[e948272] Mr. Jones (Maricopa): It can do no harm to have it in the constitution, and it will serve a good honest purpose. It will put a restraining hand upon the corporation and help to keep them from committing perjury, and they have in order to keep their rates up and their taxes down, and I believe that ought to remain in there. It will be an equalizer and it can do no harm, and will be a good, wholesome measure.

[e948273] Mr. President: You have heard the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Jones, that on line 4 the part that was stricken out in the committee of the whole be reinstated. Are you ready for the question? On that motion a roll call is called for. Those in favor of reinserting what was stricken out will answer “aye” as their names are called; opposed will answer “no.” The secretary will call the roll.

Roll call showed 22 “ayes” and 23 “nays.”

[e948274] Mr. President: The motion is lost. Gentlemen of the convention, the question comes up on the adoption of Article XV into the constitution of the State of Arizona, entitled “Corporation Commission.” Those in favor of the adoption of Article XV will answer “aye” as their names are called; those opposed will answer “no.” The secretary will call the roll.

Mr. Moeur: I would like to explain my vote on this proposition. There are a good many things I do not like, but I have lived under Republican administrations since 1896 and I do not like that either, so I vote “aye” on this proposition.

Mr. Webb: I desire to say that there are some provisions in this bill that appear to me as being absolutely vicious. There are other things stricken out that I should have preferred left in, but, taken as a whole, I think the good predominates, and I shall vote “aye.”

[e948275] Roll call showed 29 “ayes” and 19 “nays.”

[e948276] Mr. President: Article XV has been adopted by the convention. Take up Article XVIII, Labor. The secretary will read.

Secretary (reading): Article XVIII, Labor.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 986-987)

[e948277] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, the question comes up on the adoption of Article XVIII, Labor. Those in favor of the adoption of Article XVIII will say “aye” as their names are called; those opposed will answer “no.” The secretary will call the roll.

Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, I would like to explain my vote. I am heartily in accord with this article on labor with the one exception of the last section, or the section on the “blacklist.” I find since we passed this that it has been construed twice by the courts up to 1907. In one instance, along the lines indicated by the gentleman from Cochise, Mr. Feeney. In the 8th Northwestern it is construed to apply to the Protective Association of the Retail Merchants, whereby they have a credit list and blacklist certain customers. In my opinion the wording of this section, where it uses the term “labor blacklist,”—I do not know exactly what that would mean; probably it was intended to mean a workingman’s blacklist—that is, the blacklisting of workingmen is prohibited. Therefore you can surely see that there is class legislation in it that prohibits a merchant from blacklisting a laboring man and no one else. You might as well say he should not blacklist blacksmiths or carpenters. For this reason I think it is unconstitutional, and because I believe it is void. I vote “no.”

[e948278] Roll call showed 39 “ayes” and 10 “nays.”

[Editor’s Note: The Minutes mistakenly note Ellinwood as voting “aye”. However, given that he made a speech explaining his “no” vote and the fact that both the Minutes and the Records list 10 delegates voting in the positive, it is clear that Ellinwood voted no.]

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 987)

[e948318] Mr. President: Article XVIII has been adopted by this convention. Gentlemen, the question comes up on the reading of the balance of Article XXII, Schedule and Miscellaneous. We read a portion of it this morning, but there are three or four sections at the end. The secretary will read.

Secretary (reading): Article XXII.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 987)

[e948319] Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, the question comes up on the adoption of Article XXII, Schedule and Miscellaneous.

Mr. Cunniff: I would suggest that the final passage of this be left until we hear from the committee on seal.

Mr. President: A sub-committee. Do you want me to get that in today? Mr. Ingraham, regarding the election ordinance, should not that be acted on this afternoon?

Mr. Ingraham: It was acted on by the committee of the whole and is now in the hands of the Committee on Style and Revision for correction.

Mr. Jones (Maricopa): There was a sub-committee appointed to insert the date on that, and then submit it to the Committee on Style and Revision.

Mr. Cunniff: That proposition is now in the hands of the style and revision committee and copies of it are being written by the typewriter now. The style and revision committee will be glad to get together with that sub-committee and insert that date and have that matter ready with Election Ordinance Number 2 at the first possible moment. If we have a night session tonight we might have it before the convention tonight. I beg to say that the enrolling is quite up with the convention. Some time tomorrow the enrolled copy will be ready for signing.

Mr. President: Mr. Ellinwood says the committee on seal will be ready to report this evening.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 987-988)

[e948320] Mr. Cunniff: I move that we defer final passage of this measure until this evening.

Mr. Wood: I second the motion.

[e948322] Mr. President: If there is no objection, so ordered. Is there anything else to come before the convention,—anything you can think of that has been omitted?

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 988)

[e947790] Mr. Crutchfield: Mr. President, for the purpose of enlisting interest in the election upon the constitution, and also to ascertain the sentiment of the people of Arizona, I propose the following as an amendment, to be submitted separately to be voted upon separately from the constitution.

[...]

Mr. Sims: I second the motion.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 988)

[e947791] Mr. Jones (Yavapai): Is that a motion or a proposition?

Mr. Crutchfield: That is a resolution.

Mr. President: You have heard the resolution offered by the gentleman from Maricopa, Mr. Crutchfield.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 988)

[e947794] Mr. Ellinwood: Mr. President, I move you that further consideration of this resolution be indefinitely postponed.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 988)

[e947797] Mr. President: It has been moved and seconded that further consideration of this resolution be indefinitely postponed. Are you ready for the question? The gentleman has asked for a roll call. All those in favor of indefinitely postponing consideration of this resolution will answer "aye" as their names are called; opposed will answer "no." The secretary will call the roll.

Roll call showed 36 "ayes" and 7 "nays."

Mr. President: The resolution has been indefinitely postponed.

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Page 988)

[e947801] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President: I would like to offer a resolution.

Mr. President: Read the resolution.

Secretary (reading): [...]

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 988-989)

[e947805] Mr. Winsor: Mr. President, I believe the resolution is self-explanatory, but I want to say just a word on the subject. Under the terms of the Enabling Act the Great Register for all of the elections provided for under that Act shall be the Great Register which was prepared in 1908 and supplemented during the month preceding the election of delegates to the constitutional convention. At least another year will elapse before the election for state officers, and hundreds of people in the territory will have been here more than a year and have acquired the necessary residence, but, owing to the fact that their names will not be on the Great Register, they will not be able to vote. As the resolution states, there are at the present time thousands of names on the Great Register of the different counties that were placed there, in some cases, absolutely fraudulently, and in a great many cases represent the names of people who have moved away or died, this leaves the opportunity for stuffing the ballot, and for widespread corruption in these elections. We have witnessed the corrupt practices at times in the past, but I do not believe that for a great many years has there been the same opportunity for this character of voting, that will be afforded in the first state election in case we do not have a re-registration of the voters. I think it is very essential that we should have a re-registration.

Mr. Ellinwood: Is this another proposition for the ignorant voter of Yuma County?

Mr Winsor: Mr. President, we have not discovered very many ignorant voters in Yuma county; therefore, we have taken the position we have with regard to the so-called ignorant voters.

Mr. President: Gentlemen of the convention, the question comes up on the adoption of the resolution as offered by the gentleman from Yuma, Mr. Winsor; those in favor of the adoption of the resolution will answer "aye;" those opposed will answer "no." Call the roll.

Mr. Short: I would like to explain my vote, and correct a statement that my colleague made just as I came in at the door. He said that we have found a large percentage of intelligent voters in Yuma County. That was wrong; a large percent of intelligent voters found us. I desire to vote "aye."

(The Records of the Arizona Constitutional Convention of 1910, Pages 989-990)

[e947809] Roll called showed 28 "ayes" and 19 "nays."

[e947812] Mr. Goldwater: Mr. President, I have a resolution which I desire to offer. As the same is self-explanatory, I shall not make any remarks about it.

Secretary (reading): "Resolution Number 26. Resolved: That the thanks of this Convention be and are hereby tendered to the Honorable George U. Young, Secretary of the Territory, and to Robert F. Kirk, Assistant Secretary, for the courtesies extended to the Members of this Convention.

Resolved that the Secretary of the Territory is hereby invited to be present at the signing of the adopted Constitution and to attest the signatures of the members signing the same and to affix to each of the copies thereof the Great Seal of the Territory."
