

10 March 1998,

Mr David Bloomfield,

Thank you very much for sending me a copy of the book. I have read the first few chapters already, and with great interest.

I am delighted that you are going to follow it with a further volume on the Mayhew Talks. A proper authoritative record of what happened, of the type you have produced for the Brooke Talks, is a real contribution to the history of the period, and to the academic study of practical peace-making.

I shall be delighted to help with any further work.
