But, as is usually the case, the right man popped up at the right time. McCausland came along. Now, what "Mac" don't know about horses is not worth knowing. He closely examined the steeds and especially the balky horse. He patted his mane; he whispered in his ear; he smoothed down his long bushy tail and finally jumped on the box with a "Get up there!" that fairly shook the trees on the distant hill-side. The spell was broken. The balky horse started to go and his mate started at the same moment. But the balky horse insisted on going in an eccentric manner. His fore and hind feet were alternately raised in the air, as if his body was on a pivot, and finally he straddled the pole and and lumbered down the street in a manner so grotesque as to attract universal attention. "Mac" all the time held the reins with gas-holding capacity is also to be prothe grip of determination, and not till portionally increased. A Seasonable Suggestion.

Allow me through the columns of your paper, to call attention to a matter of great importance to us, viz: The permanent location of the Capital. The City of Olympia has it within its power to have the Capital perma-nently located here, and to have it done in the next two months.
