

Charles Prosch, of Seattle, was the historian of the Press Association for the past year and at the recent meeting of the editors at Seattle, he read an essay on the various papers of the territory, taking them by counties. When he came to Yakima he spoke well of the Republic, and of the Herald he said:

It is a seven-column folio and democratic in sentiment. If it survives a year it will be an exception to journals of that persuasion. The Press Association was organized for the purpose of advancing the interests of the profession and for good fellowship, and was supposed to be entirely non-partisan. Mr. Prosch's remarks regarding the interests of this individual newspaper nor of its proprietors; they were not intended to promote good fellowship, and certainly were not of a non-partisan nature. Although it is readily understood where Mr. Prosch obtained the basis matter for his statement, it was nevertheless a display of very bad taste on his part and if the association desires to have strength—and this can only be brought about by harmony—it should in the future eliminate from its reports any matter intended to injure any publication, and all matter dictated by envy.

If the Herald was a weakling it would pass over anything of this character, but it is large enough and strong enough to call attention to it for the good of the association and in hopes that in the future such errors of judgment may be avoided. The Herald commenced publication as an independent newspaper and has maintained that character throughout. That its course has been appreciated is evidenced by the fact that its subscription list is double that of the paper whose publisher furnished the material for the statement to which we object; its advertising patronage is much larger, and it is the official paper of the city and county in which it is published. The Herald will live not only through this year, but many years to come, and in the meantime, its envious contemporary goes the way of those which do not form the "exception," this paper will endeavor to furnish with a kindly obituary and one to which even the ghost of a defunct newspaper would not object.

POLITICAL PANLUMENIUM.

Strife among the politicians of Seattle has broken out afresh and this time it looks as though it would be a war of extermination. A combination was formed between the Haines-Post-Intelligencer, and the Squire-Ferry factions, by which Col. J. C. Haines and John R. Kinnear withdrew from the contest respectively for senator and governor, leaving the field open for Squire and Ferry. This was done to promote harmony in the party, but at the same time the Haines faction was to have a delegation in the county and territorial conventions equal in number to the Squire delegation. After Messrs. Haines and Kinnear had publicly announced their withdrawal the Squire men refused to allow them their representation. Then blood appeared on the face of the moon. The hutchet was unsheathed and the Post-Intelligencer announced the candidacy of Judge John P. Hoyt for senator and John R. Kinnear for governor, and stated that the "effort to harmonize the republicans was at an end." The Squire men, it is claimed, were arrogant and domineering and declared Haines should not be a delegate to the state convention and that none of his supporters should have a place on the legislative ticket. Squire has opened wide the mouth of his plethoric sack and stands the heavy drams made on it with blindness and equanimity. The opposition is active, nervy and vindictive, and, if they can't get there, propose to see that the other wing of the party shall not. Appearances indicate that the democracy of King county will tranquilly float to the front and pluck the official plants as they come within their reach.

The Tacoma Globe makes mention of a refrigerator car load of fruit received in Tacoma, lately from Ashland, Oregon, which included among other things 72 watermelons whose aggregate weight was 168 pounds. This may be a pretty good showing for the boasted Southern Oregon country, but Yakima could fill a car after car with melons of double this weight. Melons with weight running from forty to fifty-five pounds are so common here that they excite no comment.

The Associated Press report states that Major Jones has recommended that congress appropriate at least $150,000 for the improvement of the Columbia at Priest Rapids, Rock Island rapids and Cabinet rapids, and on the strength of that the Grande News places the major in nomination to represent the new state of Washington in the senate.

This Brown-Squard "ellais" seems to be the latest fact that has struck the country. It is said to give new strength and vigor to those who have passed beyond the mid-day of life. It is making many converts but seems to be nothing more than a popular dinner dish known as "lamb's fries."

Chief Justice Hammond has ruled that the action of the board of education in the selection of new text books for the schools must hold good and that text books once adopted can only be changed after a lapse of five years.

Tacoma has a running horse named "Yakima Rustler" that has the best record of any horse in the territory. In this respect it follows in the footsteps of the city from which it received its name.

S. C. Hays, of Spokane Falls, is mentioned by the republicans for senator. They claim that all can unite on him, whereas, if either Allen or Brents get the nomination, the defeated candidate and following will either sink or openly knife the successful aspirant.

Miss Huntington, daughter of Many Times Millionaire C. P. Huntington of railroad fame, is to marry Prince Halsfeldt, a chronically impecunious German nobleman. He affects the turf and sporting ways and will bring as a dowry to his bride a large array of porly debts.

The Hoyt-linear crowd, of Klitz county, claim an overwhelming majority at the primaries and say they will have eighty out of the one hundred and ten delegates. The other side strongly intimates that their opponents are too sanguine by far, and that the convention may radically change the complexion of things.

TOWN TALK.

We have had during the week our first visit from the new United States Judge, W. H. Calkins. He has impressed our people very favorably. In fact, we have never been accursed with an unpopular man on the United States bench. Turner was a general favorite here and is now, while Nash, who followed him, is a man none of us can say a word against, in fact we were always glad to see Nash coming and to listen to his stories. Calkins, who at present holds the place, is no exception in point of good-fellowship to the others, and this first little visit, in which he hears some arguments on injunction cases in Chambers, has made for him many friends among us. He is physically a larger man than Turner or Nash and has a jolly way with him that is particularly catching with our people.

Chas. S. Fee, General Passenger Agent of the Northern-Pacific Railroad Co., spent a day with us this week, and went over to the Moxee farms. He is surprised that his road has given no more attention to this place during the five years of their connection; for he says it is in some respects as interesting as Yellowstone Park, with its trees and valleys, and he is from this on a friend of North Yakima, having made acquaintances pleasantly, through their agent here, Mr. Humphrey, with some North Yakima people. In these little matters of outside friendship, it often occurs that chance makes more friends than any system or premeditation, and this is the case with Mr. Fee. Of course he meets a great many people and we may hope for much from his pleasant opinion of Yakima.

Ellensburg, through its papers, has been inclined to poke fun at us for the prominence we are everywhere gaining. This is the only way in which our growing popularity can be met, but it will prove to be totally ineffective and in the end it will be seen that time has passed on beyond the Ellensburg boom, and has settled fast in favor of North Yakima that will rest with us. However much other points may regret this, it is a fact that will be potent on election day in October, and while it may be that we will simply hold a place in the three to be let as highest, it certainly means that in the end this will be the capital. As a matter of fact the hearty way in which our people have undertaken the matter, makes it entirely possible that we shall have on this occasion a clear majority and so be made the capital at once.

C. M. Ogden, who spent a day with us this week, is a young man who has come to the Pacific coast after much thinking about it. For ten years or more he was the man in Washington who selected the Pacific coast despatches from all the telegraphic matter gathered by the Associated Press. When Harrison was made president and Noble secretary of the interior Ogden was given a commission as special agent and is operating on the west side, with Seattle as his headquarters. He came over here to meet his family, which joins him now, and his permanent home will hereafter be in the new state of Washington, and perhaps on this side. He is an old friend of Col. Howlett of this town and during his visit here expressed himself as anxious to make this a place of permanent location, which he will do if everything favors.

The house of Mayor Reed, out on the west side bench, is looking fresh and bright under its parti-colored paint and will soon be ready for occupancy. It is understood now that the mayor will make it his residence since it is within the city limits and seems to favor an opportunity for the "irrepressible Fred" to do some entertaining and in many ways to overlook the town from a most delightful standpoint.

The new chamber of commerce, which brought to itself all the life of the old board of trade and much energy which was never given to that body, is doing good work. The business of attending to our affairs as an important central city has never before been made of sufficient importance to warrant a daily effort. Our people, as the work of the chamber of commerce demonstrates, are at last awake to the fact that they must do what the other towns are doing, and now we have an organization which will attend to all matters of general interest for all time. The trouble heretofore has been that what was everybody's business was nobody's business, and while there were plenty of fertile brains to suggest that this or that ought to be done, there has never been anyone to actually see that all these ideas were crystallized into something tangible. It is really one of the best strokes in our interest to have this chamber of commerce working away daily, with a secretary to do all that the best opinion of the town may suggest from day to day.

Suchomish now has a daily paper, and a very creditable production it is and one that the citizens should give a liberal support to. It is chronicled as number nineteen of the daily newspapers published in the territory.

John L. Sullivan was convicted at Purvis, Miss., of prize fighting and sentenced to one year imprisonment in the penitentiary. His attorneys appealed the case and he was liberated on bonds in the sum of $1,500.

The number of taxpayers in Douglas county is 140; the value of live stock $37,250, and the total taxable property $1,100,830. The population has increased from 849 in 1887 to 2681 in 1890.

The wise men at Olympia adopted a design for a seal—the face of the father of his country, for whom the new state is named, and the figures 1889, to mark the year the state was admitted.

HOW ABOUT YAKIMA?

Listen to the Story as it is Told by Careful Observers from Abroad.

(San Francisco Examiner.) The new State Capital will probably be at North Yakima.

(Spokane Falls Review.) The best and most extensive agricultural region in the Yakima Land District and in the Territory, lies about the City of North Yakima and is known as the Yakima Valley.

(Seattle Post-Intelligencer.) To-day, where four years ago were uncultivated prairies, the home of great herds of unrestrained wild cattle and vicious bands of cayuse ponies who knew no halter, now stands the City of North Yakima, the Queen of Eastern Washington.

(Nor. West Magazine.) The knot of valleys which meet at the new town of North Yakima seems a bit of Southern California here in the north. Public opinion in all parts of Washington has settled upon this place as the Capital of the new State.

(Portland Oregonian.) There is no just reason why this city and county, when they shall have reached their maximum in population, should not have in the city from 15,000 to 25,000, and the county 40,000 to 50,000. Neither is there any good reason why they should not be eventually among the very wealthiest towns and counties in Washington Territory. All the material elements that go to make a big and prosperous city are here. The total taxation of the county is only 13 1/2 mills which includes the total tax, territorial added. There is not a pauper in the county. The taxation is herded to the world as the lowest known from and including Minnesota to and including California. If there is another county in a new country that can show as low a taxation the public would like to know it.

(Tacoma Ledger.) The valley in which the city of North Yakima is situated in the center of a series of very fertile valleys which open into it and have grown famous for their products. With a splendid agricultural country surrounding it and the peculiar advantages of its location for railroad approaches North Yakima cannot but figure in the future brilliantly.

(Spokane Falls Review.) Although less than forty miles apart the difference in climate between Yakima in Yakima county and Ellensburg in Kittitas county is almost as great as that between a northern and southern latitude. The valley surrounding Ellensburg is excellent for producing grain, while in the valleys near Yakima the farmers are devoting more attention to fruits, vegetables, hops, tobacco and similar crops, which can only be grown in a warm climate.

Interview with Judge J. R. Lewis on his return from attending the Mechanics Fair in California, Published in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. It was a great exhibition of the wealth of California, but I found no better specimens of vegetables and many varieties of fruit than Washington Territory produces. I can go over into the Yakima county and in two days collect finer products in those lines than I saw in California. The Yakima peaches are of better quality and flavor than any raised in California, the apples are superior and the prunes are away ahead of anything I ever saw. Then, too, they raise finer melons, squashes and all kinds of vegetables in the Yakima county than any produced in California.

"Seeing that the action of the Biochemic Remedies are so certain to cure, surely every medical man who desires the good of his patients will select from these for the scientific and rapid cure of the sick; and all patients will be anxious to be treated and restored to health in the new way, with safe and truly rational remedies."

Prof. Huxley, before the International Medical College at London in 1883. "Biochemic Remedies, which act in perfect harmony with Nature's laws, have achieved such notable cures that thousands of thinking minds have already accepted this method by which health is so certain to be restored, even in almost hopeless cases, if Providence be pleased to grant ever so small an amount of vitality or powers to further the continuance of life."

Dr. Walker, Dundee, Scotland. "The question whether this or that disease is or is not dependent on the existence of foreign germs or bacilli, is of no importance in Biochemic treatment. If the remedies are applied correctly the great aim of medical science—that of curing disease—will be gained in the only true scientific way."

W. H. Schussler, M. D., Oldenberg, Germany. "I have made Biochemistry a careful study, and like it better and better through the light of actual practice."

Wm. Chapman, M. D., Columbus, W. T. "Long standing chronic diseases, which have been brought on by excessive dosing with drugs that form no part of the human organism, such as quinine, calomel, opium, alcohol, &c., can be cured by small doses of the Inorganic Cell Salts."

Prof. Leibig. "I use the Biochemic Remedies exclusively in my practice, with the most wonderful results. A careful study has convinced me that no so-called medicine can be a remedy that is not a constituent part of the human organism. These remedies are only found in the twelve Inorganic Cell Salts."
